Parley at Border Arranged to Settle Friction Over Our Pursuit of Villa.

FUNSTON ALSO TO ATTEND

Crushing of Outlawry Before Pershing's Men Withdraw to be Insisted On.

TWO PLANS OF CAMPAIGN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Carranza Government today accepted a proposal from the United States for a conference on the international border between General Alvaro Obregon, Minister of War in the Cabinet of General Carranza, and Major Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff of the United States Army. They will discuss the military aspects of the American punitive expedition into Mexico and the de facto Government's attitude toward the project for the capture of Francisco Villa.

The conference will be held either at El Paso, on American soil, or across the Rio Grande, in Juarez. General Obregon is now on his way northward from Mexico City to attend the meeting with General Scott, who tonight was ordered to proceed immediately to El Paso, and received instructions regarding the scope of his negotiations with General Obregon. These instructions were forwarded by telegraph, after a conference at the War Department between Secretary of State Lansing and Secretary of War Baker.

Details of the meeting were left to General Scott by Administration officials. At the Mexican Embassy it was said that while no word had come that General Obregon was on his way to the border, there was reason to believe he already had left Mexico City. As the two officers hold equal military rank and as General Obregon is a Cabinet officer in addition, it was assumed at the embassy he would suggest that General Scott call on him in Juarez in accordance with diplomatic and military custom, although the succeeding meetings, it was said, probably would take place across the border in El Paso because of the better accommodations there.

Funston to Attend.

Because of his complete knowledge of every step that has been taken in connection with the punitive expedition, it is regarded as highly important that Major Gen. Funston participate in the conference, and he will do so on invitation of Major Gen. Scott and by direction of the Secretary of War. General Funston will be relied on especially to explain to General Obregon the peculiar difficulties under which the operations of the various detachments of the expedition are conducted, and the necessity that exists for the use of railroads and the co-operation of the Mexican military authorities. The fullest assurances will be given both by General Scott and General Funston as to the purposes of this Government and its good faith throughout the whole expedition.

That such a conference probably would be held was stated exclusively in a Washington dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES printed on Friday, April 21. Major Gen. Scott was sent to the border on April 19 on a semi-diplomatic mission. The announced purpose of his journey was to confer with Major Gen. Funston several days, and "solely for the purpose of getting as accurate information as possible for the use of the department."

Coincidental with the departure of General Scott from Washington, the State Department sent a communication to James Linn Rodgers, special agent of the United States in Mexico City, instructing him to suggest to the Carranza Government the holding of a conference with a view to an informal exchange of views between the two highest ranking military officers connected with the War Departments of the respective Governments, in the hope that it would result in a precise understanding of the purposes and attitudes of each Government toward the American project.

Proposed from Washington.

A special cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Mexico City, printed this morning, stated that Mr. Rodgers had submitted the American proposal for a conference and that the de facto Government probably would consent to send General Obregon to the border. The publication of this dispatch forced the admission from the State Department that such a conference had been proposed, but as late as 4 o'clock in the afternoon Secretary Lansing declined to discuss the matter in any detail.

Shortly after 5 o'clock, however, Señor Eliseo Arredondo, Ambassador-delegate from Mexico, called at the State Department—his second visit there today—and informed Secretary Lansing that he had been officially notified that his Government had accepted the proposal for a conference, and that General Obregon had started from Mexico City for Juarez. Secretary Lansing went to the War Department, informed Secretary Baker, and Secretary Baker lost no time in sending the information, with supplementary instructions of a confidential character, to General Scott, who was about to return to Washington because no response had been received showing whether the de facto Government would be willing to have General Obregon talk over the situation with him.

Important results are expected from the Scott-Obregon conference. General Scott is confidentially and intimately informed regarding the purposes of President Wilson governing the execution of the orders of the punitive expedition, and it is understood that he has instructions to make a frank statement of the purpose of the United States to leave the troops in Mexico until the object of its dispatch—the capture of Villa—has been accomplished. The Carranza Government has been endeavoring to "treat" with the United States for the immediate withdrawal of the expedition. It has not "demanded" the withdrawal of the troops, but not later than

TWO BRITISH OFFICERS SHOT IN BALUCHISTAN

Their Two Assassins, Rind Tribesmen, Promptly Killed by Native Soldiers.

LONDON, April 24.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Simla, India, says:

"Mr. Hughes, acting political agent and commandant of the Mekran Levy Corps, and Second Lieutenant Horst, a reserve officer recently attached to the corps, were shot dead at Mand by two Rind tribesmen. Levies promptly killed the two assassins."

The Official Press Bureau appends the following to the above dispatch:

"Mand is a small port belonging to the Khan of Kelat in Mekran, a few miles from the Perso-Baluchistan frontier and about three hundred miles from the frontier of British India. This is the first disturbance of the peace in this region since Bahram Khan's raid last Autumn."

BRITISH PUSHING FAR IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA

Occupy Town of Kondoa and Pursue Defenders Retreating Toward the Central Railway.

LONDON, April 24.—Continuing their advance in German East Africa, the British expeditionary forces have occupied the town of Kondoa, in the district of Irangi. The War Office statement continues:

Telegraphing on Sunday, General Smuts reports that troops under General Vanderventer, after defeating the enemy before Kondoa, Irangi, on April 19, occupied that place. Prisoners were taken and a considerable number of casualties inflicted on the German forces, which retired in the direction of the Central Railway.

Kondoa is about thirty-five miles south of Umbuswe, occupation of which was reported on Saturday. This is the farthest point in the interior which has been reached by the British expedition, which apparently is being pushed forward rapidly. The statement of Saturday said hostile troops had been encountered in some force near Kondoa on April 17 and that it became evident a concentration was being effected in that direction.

BRITISH ON TIGRIS BOMBARD SENNAYYAT

Turks Say Relief Expedition Had Thousands of Casualties in Friday's and Saturday's Fighting.

LONDON, April 24.—The British forces in Mesopotamia are maintaining steadily their efforts to relieve Kut-el-Amara, notwithstanding the check sustained at the hands of the Turks.

Official advices received today state that the bombardment of the Sannayyat position, on the Tigris, was continued throughout yesterday.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24, (via London.)—The following official communication was issued today:

On Thursday night hostile attacks on our positions at Beitsea were easily repulsed.

From Friday until noon Saturday the enemy intermittently bombarded our positions at Felahie, on the left bank of the Tigris. About noon the bombardment increased and the enemy attacked immediately afterward with troops estimated at half a division.

Our reserves, however, directed a strong counterattack on the enemy columns, and after two hours of bayonet fighting the enemy was obliged to retreat to his own trenches with a loss of some 2,000 dead.

The enemy's losses in Saturday's fighting were over 5,000. Our losses were insignificant.

AUSTRIA PREPARING TO INVADE ITALY?

Italian Paper Here Reports a Force of 200,000 Concentrating in the Trentino.

Il Progresso Italo-Americano of New York gives prominence this morning to a dispatch from its London correspondent, Carlo Camaqua, as follows:

"Dispatches have come to hand from Innsbruck, via Geneva, saying that the Austrians are preparing a formidable army in the Trentino for the invasion of Italy—an attempt, be it understood—on the presumption that it will cause us to diminish the number of our troops on the Isonzo.

"The new army will consist of five corps, including 200,000 men, and be under the supreme command of the Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, the heir Presumptive, who has already arrived at Trent with his staff.

"Our aviators have already noticed an unusual movement among the enemy's troops in the Trentino, on the line Bolzano-Trent, but did not consider it in sufficient proportions to justify the figure 200,000 telegraphed from Innsbruck. Even in political and military circles it is deemed that the concentration of the enemy's troops is of a defensive and not an offensive character—an anticipation of the great Italian offensive which is believed to be about due in this sector."

AMERICAN SHIP SEARCHED.

The Chalmette Held Up Off Cuba by Australian Cruiser Sydney.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 24.—The Australian cruiser Sydney stopped the American steamer Chalmette, bound from New Orleans for Havana, last Sunday morning, and permitted the ship to proceed after examining her papers.

The cruiser fired a shot across the Chalmette's bow when she failed to obey the first signal to stop.

SINK GERMAN SHIP OFF IRISH COAST, CATCH CASEMENT

While German Auxiliary, Carrying Munitions, Is Disguised as a Neutral Merchantman.

FACTS HIDDEN FOUR DAYS

And Few Details Are Given of Climax of Career of Irishman Who Sought German Aid for Home Land

LONDON, Tuesday, April 25.—Sir Roger Casement has been captured from a German ship which attempted to land arms in Ireland and was sunk.

This official announcement was made last night:

During the period between the afternoon of April 20 and the afternoon of April 21 an attempt to land arms and ammunition in Ireland was made by a vessel under the guise of a neutral merchant ship, but which in reality was a German auxiliary, in conjunction with a German submarine.

The auxiliary sank and a number of prisoners were made, among whom was Sir Roger Casement.

The news of the capture of Sir Roger was received here with satisfaction, mingled with regret, at the close of what, previous to his alleged activities with the Germans, had been a brilliant career, useful both to humanity and his own country. That he should have engaged in such a madcap enterprise as the official communication gives as the reason for his seizure is thought to lend color to the view, held by old friends here that he is mentally unbalanced.

Little had been heard here of Sir Roger for many months. A returned Irish prisoner last October brought a story of how Sir Roger had visited the prison camp at Limburg and vainly tried to induce Irish prisoners to join an Irish brigade which he was said to be raising in Germany to fight against England.

It was reported a short time ago that Sir Roger had applied for citizenship in Bavaria.

Climax of a Remarkable Career.

This latest, and perhaps final, adventure of Sir Roger Casement is an amazing climax of the persistent efforts of this Irishman since the war began against the country which he had served as Consul and Consul General for eighteen years and which had honored him with knighthood.

Previous to the opening of the great conflict in Europe Sir Roger was best known to the world for his investigation of rubber atrocities in the Congo and later for the report he made in 1912, while Consul General at Rio Janeiro, on the atrocities committed on natives by employes of a British company operating in the Putumayo rubber fields. As a result of this report, a British royal commission, headed by him, investigated the situation and brought about reforms in the treatment of men employed in the industry.

Sir Roger was in America when the European war began in August, 1914. While here he addressed on Sept. 17 an open letter to the Irish press, in which he advised Irishmen to remain neutral, while he would see to it that the country did not suffer the fate of Belgium. He went from here to Christiania in October.

The very next month news came like a thunderclap to London that Sir Roger had become a traitor to his country, having gone to Berlin and conferred with the Imperial authorities with a view, it was said, to opening negotiations between the German Government and the anti-English Party in Ireland.

It was stated, according to one story, that he went to gain, and actually gained, assurances from Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg that under no circumstances would the Germans make a hostile invasion of Ireland—turn it into a Belgium.

Another report was that he obtained a promise that should the German troops land in Ireland all native institutions would be respected. Sir Roger's followers in Ireland were, according to this report, to give every aid to the Germans.

Conan Doyle Thought Him Crazy.

His friends with one accord declared that the reports were exaggerated, or that Sir Roger was not responsible for his actions. His very manner of approaching the German Government, they

Three Zeppelins Raid English East Coast; Aeroplane Driven Off by Dover Guns

LONDON, Tuesday, April 25.—Three Zeppelins visited the eastern counties last night, dropping incendiary bombs, according to the official announcement.

The conditions were ideal for the Zeppelin raiders. The night was dark and the atmosphere clear. There was a light southwest wind, which had generally been considered unfavorable for Zeppelins, but it was little more than a mild breeze, and any threat of a storm which it might ordinarily have presaged was lessened by a favorable barometer.

The raiders appeared at about the customary hour, and seemed a little uncertain as to their location, as the early reports showed that only incendiary bombs were being dropped.

The official communication regarding the attack says:

Three Zeppelins are reported to have come in from seaward over one of the eastern counties tonight. Two crossed the coast of Norfolk shortly before 10:30 o'clock and another followed about 11. A few incendiary bombs had been dropped at the time of the issuance of this communication.

A hostile aeroplane appeared over Dover yesterday morning and was attacked by British guns. It was driven off and dropped no bombs. The following official statement was made last evening:

At 11:45 today a hostile aeroplane appeared over Dover from the east. It circled over the town at a height estimated at 6,000 feet.

Anti-aircraft guns at once came into action. The hostile machine was driven off. No bombs were dropped.

ROOSEVELT WON'T SUPPORT ROOT

Will Head Third Ticket if G. O. P. Names Ex-Senator, Says Judge Nortoni After Conference.

AS IN 1912, BUT WILL WIN

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 24.—Reports that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt might support ex-Senator Elihu Root if Mr. Root obtained the Republican nomination were effectively silenced today by a statement made by Judge Albert D. Nortoni of the Missouri Court of Appeals after a conference with the Colonel.

"I know that Colonel Roosevelt will not support Senator Root on the Republican ticket," was his unqualified statement. "I know that no such support has been promised by Colonel Roosevelt, either directly or indirectly.

"If Mr. Root is nominated it will simply mean a straight-out third party fight right down the lines, just as in 1912, and I believe that this year we can elect Colonel Roosevelt on the Bull Moose ticket."

There were no "ifs" or "buts" in what Judge Nortoni had to say about the situation, and it was generally accepted tonight by politicians as authoritative and final.

Those political leaders also read in his words confirmation of a conviction which has been growing in their minds of late that the Colonel will head a third party ticket after all if steamrolling methods are used by the old guard Republicans at Chicago in June, and the cry can be raised, as in 1912, that the will of the people was frustrated and the nomination stolen by the bosses.

Statement Causes a Stir.

The elimination of Root as a candidate who would be acceptable to the Colonel and the Progressives was accepted tonight as one of the most important of the recent developments in the fight for the Republican nomination, and, coupled with the statement by Judge Nortoni that Roosevelt probably would head a third ticket if Root were nominated, it caused a profound stir in political circles.

Judge Nortoni is an old friend and supporter of the Colonel. He threw his support to Roosevelt in the pre-convention campaign of 1912 and followed him when he formed the Progressive Party. He is the Progressive leader of Missouri and the nominee of his party for Governor of that State this year. He may drop out of the Governorship race if Roosevelt is nominated. He will certainly make the fight if Roosevelt is not named by the Republicans.

He came on to tell Colonel Roosevelt that at least two-thirds of the delegates to the Republican National Convention from Missouri were for him, and that there was great Roosevelt strength in the Middle West. He had heard of the Root boom, and wanted to find out what substance, if any, there was to it. The Judge was the only visitor the Colonel saw today, and they went over the situation carefully. After that conference the Judge authorized THE TIMES correspondent to publish the statements given above. He added that Colonel Roosevelt was the only man the Republicans could nominate who would carry Missouri against Mr. Wilson.

Judge Nortoni was asked if the Progressives in the Middle West would support Mr. Root if Root were the nominee of the Republican Convention. He said unqualifiedly that they would not; that no power on earth could force the Progressives in line for Root.

Progressives Are Organizing.

The Progressives are going ahead with their plans on just the line that Judge Nortoni placed on the situation after his visit with the Colonel. They are organizing in every State or are already organized, and are making it very plain that they will nominate Roosevelt by acclamation at the Progressive Convention unless the Colonel is made the Republican nominee.

Colonel Roosevelt has not said that he would accept a nomination from the Progressive Convention. Neither has he said that he would refuse it if the Republicans balked at accepting him and the Progressives took matters into their own hands and again selected him as their standard bearer.

Progressive leaders like Judge Nortoni apparently believe that the Colonel would make the fight on the third party ticket if the old guard Republicans are in command at the Republican National Convention and have things all their own way, as in 1912. They seem absolutely confident that the Colonel will run again as a third party candidate if Root is the Republican nominee.

With these developments serving to make the situation tense with the conventions of the Republican and Progressive Parties less than six weeks off, the Progressives and the Roosevelt supporters in the Republican Party are preparing to tear things apart when the Colonel sallies forth on his tour in the interest of preparedness and patriotism in the latter part of May. There seems little doubt now that the Colonel, if his campaign proves a stirring success, will remain in the Middle West until convention time and then appear suddenly in Chicago.

West Against Root.

The sentiment against Root has been found to be very deep-seated among Progressives of the West and Middle West, because they charge him with responsibility for the defeat of Roosevelt at the Republican Convention of 1912. Harmony between Republicans and Progressives can never be brought about, they say, by the nomination of Root.

The Progressives of the West and Middle West and the Roosevelt Republicans as well have also made it known that they believe the time is past when Supreme Court Justice Hughes may hope to obtain the Republican nomination and

PREDICT BAY STATE WILL SPLIT ON T. R.

Chances of Colonel's Big Four at Today's Primaries Regarded as Doubtful.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—Unless eleventh-hour indications fail, Massachusetts as the result of the Presidential primaries tomorrow will send a split delegation to the Republican National Convention. Interest here and throughout the country will be focused on the outcome of the Republican primaries. The Democrats have no contest.

The Republican primaries will afford the first outright test of strength between the adherents of Colonel Roosevelt and the "straight goods" Republicans of the Old School who are opposed to his nomination.

The former have placed in the field four candidates for delegates at large of pronounced Progressive tendencies, who, if elected, will go to Chicago pledged to the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt. The "straight goods" candidates for places on the Massachusetts "Big Four," if picked at tomorrow's primaries, will go unpledged.

When the Republican campaign came to a close tonight both sides were claiming the victory. Unbiased observers who have been in a position to watch developments in the Republican fight from the start, however, while admitting that undoubtedly Roosevelt delegates would be elected from some of the districts, were of the opinion as the campaign closed that the outlook favored the election of the unpledged candidates for delegates at large over those pledged to Colonel Roosevelt. The main effort of the old school leaders in the Republican State organization has been directed almost exclusively toward the defeat of the Roosevelt "Big Four" for the effect this would have throughout the country.

With nothing but a local contest, growing out of a clash of personal ambition, to add some little degree of interest to the Democratic primaries, the end of the Republican primary fight was attended by the interesting rumor that a deal had been made whereby thousands—20,000 some say—of Democratic votes would be cast in the Republican primaries. Such a thing would be impossible in the State of New York, where only the enrolled voters can vote in their respective party primaries. In this State, however, it is not only possible but has been practiced.

When the Massachusetts direct primary law was enacted, the lawmakers were actuated by a desire to liberalize the primaries and loosen party lines rather than construct safeguards against such obviously improper practices as persons voting at the primaries for candidates whom they had no intention of supporting in the general election.

Lawson in the Fight.

The first intimation of Democratic interference in the Republican primaries came in half-page advertisements in the Boston papers signed by Thomas W. Lawson of "Frenzied Finance" fame. The financier, after flatly asserting that Roosevelt was the only Republican candidate who could win against President Wilson, said that Governor McCall, who is one of the four unpledged candidates, had been "ragged into the game" by the straight goods leaders with a view of having him run behind the other candidates in the unpledged group and thus discredit him in the eyes of the Republicans throughout the country as a possible Presidential candidate. The impression left by the Lawson advertisement was that this trap had been set in the interest of another of the unpledged candidates, Senator John W. Weeks, who prior to the primaries was out as a rival of Governor McCall in the Presidential race.

It is gossip that to this tune, piped by certain Democratic shepherds, two of the candidates on the ticket with Governor McCall have each obtained a large number of Democratic "lambs and goats," 20,000 each, says Mr. Lawson in his advertisement.

Almost simultaneously with the Lawson advertisement there came a report from Chicago to the effect that a large suite had been engaged at a Chicago hotel which was to be used as campaign headquarters for Senator Weeks.

According to the Democratic leaders here, there is nothing in the report which they ascribe to a desire on somebody's part to create factional strife among the Republicans back of the unpledged candidates in the interest of the Roosevelt faction in the Republican organization.

The latter in the last few days of the primary fight have been intensely aggressive. All Boston is talking today about the stroke of Charles Sumner Bird, the former Bull Moose leader of Massachusetts and twice a candidate for Governor on the ticket of Colonel Roosevelt's party, who is one of four candidates for delegate at large pledged to Colonel Roosevelt.

Mr. Bird on Saturday sent out thousands of telegrams to Republican voters throughout the State to be delivered on Easter Day. None of the Roosevelt campaigners here was willing to say how many telegrams were sent, but the number has been placed as high as 80,000. This is regarded here as a campaign enterprise not paralleled in this or any other State at any time. Messengers were kept busy Easter Day delivering the messages. There has been so much criticism of this form of Sunday campaigning that Mr. Bird today was compelled to issue a statement justifying his action.

Bird Explains His Course.

"I sent that telegram because I believe that this country is confronted with a crisis which can be most safely met by Theodore Roosevelt's nomination and election," said Mr. Bird. "We are on the verge of a war with Germany. We are in the midst of a warlike episode in

BERLIN READY TO REAFFIRM PLEDGES, MAY BALK AT FURTHER LIMITING U-BOATS; KAISER AGAIN TO CONSIDER THE REPLY

After Seeing Gerard, Chancellor Delays Reply Until He Can Consult Kaiser Again

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 24.—The situation of the submarine controversy with America seemingly is more hopeful. Ambassador Gerard entered the Chancellor's palace at Wilhelmstrasse at 11:05 o'clock this morning, having received an invitation late last night to call on Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg for a conference on the situation.

Mr. Gerard, who wore a white carnation in his buttonhole, carried with him several typewritten sheets and a more elaborate document bound in pale-blue paper, and in addition a copy of THE NEW YORK TIMES of Oct. 6, 1915, containing on the front page the exact text of the von Bernstorff submarine letter, which it is understood the Ambassador intended to lay in evidence before the Imperial Chancellor.

[The von Bernstorff note printed in THE TIMES of Oct. 6, 1915, disavowed the Arabic sinking and contained this paragraph:

"The order issued by his Majesty the Emperor to the commanders of the German submarines of which I notified you on a previous occasion has been made so stringent that the recurrence of incidents similar to the Arabic case is considered out of the question."]

Ambassador Gerard emerged smiling from the Chancellor's palace at 12:15 o'clock, having been closeted with Bethmann Hollweg a few minutes more than one hour. Mr. Gerard seemed cheerful and as if well pleased with his morning's work, but absolutely declined to give even a hint as to the subject or result of his long conversation with the Chancellor. The Ambassador on his return still carried his copy of THE NEW YORK TIMES, but there was no evidence that he also had a German answer in official note form.

Undeniably, a more optimistic feeling prevails than at any previous time of the present crisis.

BERLIN, April 24, (via London.)—The American Ambassador was called by telephone to the Imperial Chancellor's palace this morning. He went immediately, and the conference with Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg lasted an hour and ten minutes. When he came from the conference Ambassador Gerard declined to give any information as to the nature of the discussion, and would not answer a question as to whether any one else was present.

It is understood that the German reply to the American note will not be delivered before the Imperial Chancellor has had another opportunity of conferring with the Emperor.

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg devoted the afternoon to conferences on the submarine question with Admiral von Holtzendorff, Chief of the Admiralty Staff, who recently succeeded Admiral von Tirpitz. Several of the higher diplomatic officials participated.

Sees All the Americas Behind Wilson.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 24.—The press continues to show approbation of President Wilson's course with respect to Germany. O Paiz says that the solidarity of the new world is such that, should occasion arise, all the American Governments would support without reserve the action of President Wilson.

A Noticia declares that all indications point to the evolution of the neutrals toward war. It adds: "It is impossible to think that the United States will back down."

Bernstorff Denies Hearing What Berlin's Reply Will Be

With reference to rumors that he had already received from Berlin definite assurances as to the nature of the German reply to President Wilson's note on the submarine question, Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, said at the Ritz-Carlton early this morning:

"I have heard absolutely nothing from my Government as yet with regard to the submarine crisis. THE TIMES can say that much as coming from me. The story that I have made any statement about it is all rot."

BERLIN, April 24, (via London.)—The outcome of the present crisis depends on what President Wilson and the American Government will do. The general view of the present situation as gleaned from conversations with a number of persons close to official circles is about as follows:

If President Wilson and the American Government are arguing that earlier concessions by Germany have not been adhered to and insist that the submarine campaign be conducted without deviation within the limits of German assurances and pledges in former notes, then a settlement probably can be arranged, despite what is considered the "sharp and unfriendly tone" of the American note. The pledges probably can be restated, if need be, and definitely reformulated, so that there can be no possibility of error or question of responsibility.

If, however, the United States insists upon a further limitation of the submarine war against commerce, there appears to be little chance of agreement for a satisfactory settlement; and it is considered that a breach of diplomatic relations, if it should come, would in all probability be only a temporary status, and would soon develop into an actual state of war.

Not Official or Authoritative.

This view is not official or authoritative, but represents the opinion of persons who are in a position to be well informed. These persons carefully refrained from making definite or authoritative predictions, and specified that they were voicing only their own opinions, but these may possible be straws showing which way the wind is blowing.

The request of Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg for a conference with Ambassador Gerard is thought to have been inspired by the desire of the Imperial Chancellor to find out what President Wilson's intentions actually are.

"The Sussex pilaer was or was not torpedoed by the Germans," says the Frankfurter Zeitung in its comment on the American note. "For the present we assume that Herr von Jagow's statement was right and President Wilson's untrue. But Americans must be convinced by striking proofs of the falseness of their assertions."

The paper believes, in the absence of further proofs to the contrary, that the United States does not desire war, which might quickly follow a breach of relations. It adds: "It is impossible and unheard of that two countries should wage war because doubts about the Sussex could not be cleared up, and Germany must clear them up."

Argue Wilson Wants War.

The Cologne Gazette says there is no doubt that the Sussex case, "which is still quite uncleared up," is "only a pretext for President Wilson to undertake a new hostile attack on Germany, while the real reason is to be found in the successes of the German submarine campaign and the damage it does to Germany's enemies."

Berlin correspondence of the Cologne Volkszeitung says: "President Wilson desires war. Many Germans knew and believed that before yesterday. President Wilson demands that the submarine warfare cease altogether. The whole form and tone of the note shows that President Wilson desires a conflict with Germany."

The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette says: "Germans desire no war with America, with which they have so much in common, but they cannot sacrifice Germany's future to this friendship."

TOOK GERMAN CODE IN VON IGEL RAID

GAVE KEY TO HIS PAPERS

Federal Building Hears Rumor That Even a Propaganda in Japan Is Bared.

When Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, demanded of Secretary of State Lansing the return of all documents and papers taken from the raided "advertising office" of Wolf von Igel, at 60 Wall Street, the one document that he wanted above all others was the copy of a German code book which, it became known yesterday, was taken away by Department of Justice agents.

Many of the more important of the documents seized were in cipher and the code book made the deciphering of these documents an easy matter.

That these papers are of the utmost importance becomes more evident every day, and there is no Federal official who has seen the documents but who understands exactly why the German Ambassador is so anxious to get this data out of American and back into German hands.

There is good ground for more than a mere surmise that some of the more important documents which are understood in many instances to have been reports to the Ambassador, were in cipher. It is said all these reports have been uncoded and copies placed in the hands of proper Government officials.

If these documents are ever made public the people will be astounded at the revelations," an official said yesterday.

Von Rintelen Case Stronger.

The Government's case against von Rintelen and those associated with him in labor agitation among munitions workers has been strengthened by the discovery of documents relating to payments made by von Rintelen found among the seized von Igel papers, according to an official who is connected with investigations now being carried on before the Grand Jury relating to the alleged activities of the Labor's National Peace Council.

It was also hinted that superseding indictments might possibly be looked for in the cases of several members of the council who were indicted last January. The raid on von Igel's offices came in the nick of time for the Government, it was learned yesterday. The papers which were laid out had been placed there, in the expectation of trouble, with the object of sending the whole mass straight to the Germany Embassy, and von Igel was busy cleaning up a few last matters before closing up his offices here, it is declared.

It was said yesterday that a delay of an hour would have meant that no incriminating evidence would have been found anywhere on the premises.

The nature of the papers seized cannot yet be learned from any one connected with the Government. One of the sets of papers, it is said, contains a re-

Dutch Ship Shelled and Sunk By Two German Submarines

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 24.—The Dutch steamship Berkelstroom was sunk by gunfire from two German submarines this morning.

The German commanders stopped the ship and demanded her papers, afterward giving the crew fifteen minutes to leave the vessel. They launched two small boats and rowed away, whereupon the Germans opened fire on the vessel. For four hours they shelled the ship, and at 10 o'clock she disappeared.

A message was given to the men in the boats to hang together, and assistance would be sent. Later they were picked up by a British vessel and landed.

The Berkelstroom was bound from Amsterdam with a general cargo.

LONDON, April 24.—The British steamship Parisiana, of 4,767 tons gross, has been sunk. The crew of the vessel was landed today. The Parisiana left Newport, England, April 20, bound for Norfolk.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Indications that powerful influences in German politics are opposed to any action by the Berlin Government which might lead to the severance of diplomatic relations with the United States are understood to be contained in confidential dispatches received today by the State Department from Ambassador Gerard. Socialists and labor leaders are represented as being particularly averse to any such move.

Other dispatches from Mr. Gerard were said to contain strong intimations that the Berlin Government would make some concessions to the United States in reply to the note demanding the immediate abandonment of present methods of submarine warfare. It still is uncertain, however, whether the concessions will be sufficiently broad in their scope to meet the American demands.

Officials allowed it to become known that Mr. Gerard's dispatches indicated that Germany would go to great lengths to preserve friendly relations with the United States. Mr. Gerard is understood to have gained his views during DISCUSS AMERICA IN WAR.

French See Great Practical Assistance for the Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 24.—A feature of the French attitude toward the German-American situation hitherto has been its insistence on the moral support to the Allies of possible American intervention. Today, however, there is a general tendency to discuss the practical assistance America could offer in the event of a rupture.

The Intransigeant's editorial entitled "Allies" sums up the opinion on this subject. It puts the American help in four categories; first, its naval support against submarines—enhanced by the release of the allied ships from the West Atlantic—and a more rigorous blockade; second, the increase of supplies and munitions; third, the settlement of the exchange and freight problems—the latter especially by the utilization of the German ships now in American ports, and last and most important, the loans from America, "which has now become the world's banker."

The Figaro argues that a break is certain, because Germany cannot risk the weakening of her prestige in neutral eyes, which would be involved by her yielding, but the Echo de Paris holds that Verdun has taught the Germans caution—basing its opinion on the marked difference in the tone of the latest message to von Bernstorff from Zimmerman's insolent challenge of last February—and thinks they will try to evade the direct issue by manipulation of the phase in the note, "submarine war, without distinction."

The Temps and the Debats also expect German attempts at tergiversation and delay, but all sections of the press agree that the note leaves no loophole, and that the Germans will be forced to give a straight reply sooner or later, and probably will fight, not from choice but from sheer inability, to abandon the submarine war without its seeming to their own people and to neutrals a fatal avowal of weakness and submission.

PARIS, April 24.—The American situation with respect to the submarine controversy with Germany absorbs the press, practically to the exclusion of other topics, and Secretary Lansing's note, either textually or in the form of copious extracts, appears in the most prominent place in each journal. The morning papers, in their comments on the note, generally express the belief that Germany will try again to play for time, but that President Wilson, being reputedly a man slow to anger, will not budge an inch from the position he has taken.

"The German Government has circulated among neutral nations a semi-official note which commits it to nothing," says the Matin. "We learn that the Berlin press insists on the seriousness of the situation and that it is hoped a solution will be reached compatible at once with national dignity, with the rights of neutrals and the principles of international law and not untavorable to the vital interests of Germany." That is the whole program, and we are curious to see the literary production which will answer to such varied requirements."

A. Fitzmaurice, the foreign editor of the Figaro, writes: "It only remains for Germany, if she desires to avoid a rupture, to give in and humiliate herself. She cannot do both, and when she will, without danger of definitely ruining what prestige she still possesses in neutral countries and without publicly admitting she is afraid of the United States. This would be worse than humiliation. It would be a defeat for which the Germans would demand a strict accountability from Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg and the Kaiser himself. A rupture is inevitable."

FRENCH LINER HERE ARMED.

Captain of the Rochambeau Says Country Will Arm All Vessels.

The first French passenger liner to arrive here with a gun mounted at her stern is the Rochambeau, which came in yesterday from Bordeaux with 140 passengers. She was armed with a 75-millimeter gun, which has an effective range of eight miles and can fire twenty-four shots a minute.

The gun requires three men to handle it, and, according to Captain Juhann, the commander, all the liners on the Rochambeau are capable of firing and loading a 75-millimeter gun.

"All French vessels are armed," he said, "for defensive purposes. The passenger steamships will carry 75s, and the cargo vessels, like the Vulcain and the lone, which already have been to New York, will be armed with 65-millimeter guns."

The gun, covered with canvas, is mounted on a raised platform, giving it a firing radius of about 45 degrees, covering the port and starboard quarters. Customs Inspectors from the Neutrality Squad went on board to examine the gun, and made a report to the Collector of the Port, who will notify the Treasury Department.

TUBANTIA INQUIRY ON.

Dutch Official in Berlin to Investigate Make of Torpedo.

BERLIN, April 24, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—A representative of the Dutch Admiralty came to Berlin today to determine by investigation whether the portions of a torpedo found after the sinking of the Dutch steamship Tubantia are fragments of a torpedo of German make.

German officials will assist in the investigation.

GERMANS INDORSE CAPSTICK

Elizabeth, N. J., Alliance Commends McLemore Resolution Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 24.—The first step toward bringing the anti-Administration sentiment of German-Americans of this vicinity into concrete form was taken yesterday, when the German-American Alliance of Elizabeth indorsed Congressman John H. Capstick for the Congressional nomination because of his action in voting for the McLemore resolution. Twenty-four societies, including 2,300 voting members, are represented by the alliance.

Ernest German, an official of the State German-American Alliance and an active member of the Elizabeth organization, in making public the action of the meeting, today said:

"We are all of the opinion that the Administration wants to have war with Germany. We are led to believe this because much of the Wall Street capital is tied up in France, England, and Russia, and the financiers know that if Germany wins it is unlikely that this capital invested will bring returns. For that reason they are anxious to have the United States give aid, and are urging this upon the Administration."

The following letter was drawn up, to be sent to Congressman Capstick:

Honorable Sir: At the regular meeting of the German-American Alliance of Elizabeth and vicinity, twenty-four societies, consisting of 2,300 voting members, a resolution was passed to offer you a vote of thanks and sincere appreciation for your action in voting for the McLemore resolution, by which we are convinced you are intent upon retaining friendly relations between the United States and Germany.

The letter promised earnest support in the coming campaign and wished the Congressman success.

FIGHTING IN EGYPT RESUMED

Small British Force Holding a Village Driven Out.

LONDON, April 24. — Fighting has been resumed in Egypt, where several British successes have been reported recently. An official statement says that two engagements occurred on Saturday in the Quatia district. The British repulsed one attack, at Duedar, but a small force holding the village of Quatia was compelled to withdraw after a sharp fight. The statement follows:

The general officer commanding in chief in Egypt reports that on April 23 there was fighting in the Quatia district. An aerial reconnoissance indicated that hostile parties of a strength of 200 to 300 were assembling in the desert and were in the neighborhood of Duedar. A strong attack by about 500 of the enemy was made at 5 A. M. on the post held by us at that place.

The attack was beaten off after reinforcements had been brought up, and the enemy withdrew, leaving thirty prisoners. Their known casualties amounted to forty killed. The enemy was harassed during his retreat by a column of Australian troops, acting in concert with aeroplanes, and suffered heavy casualties both from the fire of the troops and from bombs and machine-gun fire from aeroplanes.

Quatia Village, which was held by a small force of yeomanry, was attacked simultaneously with Duedar by a hostile column 3,000 strong, with three field guns. After a severe engagement our troops withdrew from the village.

FRENCH CONTINUE ATTACKS AT VERDUN

FOE SHOWS LITTLE ACTIVITY

British Assaults Near St. Eloi Repulsed—French Airmen Raid a Belgian Station.

LONDON, April 24.—Offensive operations by the French troops continue to be the feature of the fighting around Verdun. Berlin reports attacks by the foe yesterday at three points—northeast of Avocourt, east of Dead Man's Hill, and near Thiamont Farm. All these failed, it is stated.

The Paris day bulletin says, on the contrary, that by the use of hand grenades General Petain's soldiers made progress southeast of Haucourt and northwest of Caurettes Wood and captured about thirty prisoners.

A spirited bombardment by the German guns of French positions at Dead Man's Hill is reported.

French air squadrons have been raiding the railroad station at Wyfwege, in Belgium, dropping forty-eight shells there on two visits.

The afternoon bulletin of the French War Office says:

To the north of the Aisne a German reconnoitring party, endeavoring to penetrate our lines on the plateau of Laissy, was repulsed with losses.

To the west of the River Meuse last night we dispersed several reconnoitring parties of the enemy. To the southeast of Haucourt and to the northwest of the Caurettes Wood we made progress with hand-grenades in the communicating trenches of the enemy and took about thirty prisoners, including one officer.

The enemy has delivered a fairly spirited bombardment in the region of Dead Man's Hill.

East of the River Meuse and in the Woevre district the night passed with relative quiet.

At Les Eparges the explosion of a German mine caused us no damage.

In the Forest of Apremont our artillery has shown activity, and it has been efficacious in combating the fresh gains of our adversaries.

In the Vosges we have captured a small German position in the vicinity of Bonhomme.

In Belgium during the day of April 24 and the night of April 23-24 French aerial squadrons bombarded on two different occasions the railroad station at Wyfwege, to the east of the forest of Houthulst. On the first occasion thirty and on the second eighteen shells of large caliber were thrown down upon our aviators, and many of the missiles reached their objective. All our aeroplanes returned unscathed.

The official bulletin issued by the French War Office tonight reads:

Our artillery was active in the sectors of Westende and Steenstraete.

In the Argonne we successfully carried out fire and destruction of Malancourt.

West of the Meuse the enemy violently bombarded during the afternoon our positions in the region of Le Mort Homme.

East of the Meuse and in the Woevre the artillery activity was intermittent.

There is nothing to report on the rest of the front.

Aviation—Last night our aerial squadrons carried out several bombing operations. Twenty-one shells and eight incendiary bombs were dropped on the railway station at Longuyon, five shells on the station at Stenay, twelve shells on bivouacs in the region of Montfaucon and the station at Nantillois.

The German headquarters bulletin reads:

The artillery along the entire front has shown greater activity than during the past few days. Successful German patrol operations took place at several points.

South of St. Eloi British detachments were repulsed.

In the Meuse sector, minor French hand grenade attacks yesterday against our forest positions, northeast of Avocourt, were repulsed.

Weak enemy advances during the night to the east of Dead Man's Hill failed. A strong attack in the neighborhood of Thiaumont Farm broke down completely in front of our lines.

A British biplane was put out of action after an aerial engagement east of Arras. Its occupants, consisting of officers, were captured.

The British official communication issued tonight says:

There has been mining activity today about the Loos salient and at Neuve Chapelle.

The artillery of both sides has been active about Neuville-St. Vaast, Angres, and the Ypres-Comines Canal, and at Hooge.

A hostile aeroplane was brought down by anti-aircraft gunfire near Ploegsteert. The pilot and observer were killed. One of our machines is missing.

The Belgian communication reads:

Last evening and during the course of the night there was violent artillery action in the sector of Ramscapelle. In the afternoon of April 23 the bombardment was resumed with intensity in the same region as well as in the direction of Dixmude and Steenstraete.

HOPES TO GET PEACE TERMS

Senator Newlands Explains Resolution and Has It Referred.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Senate today, on motion of Senator Newlands, referred to the Foreign Relations Committee his resolution, submitted last week, urging the European belligerents to consider peace.

"I do not propose to invade the jurisdiction of the State Department," said Senator Newlands, "nor to put any obstacles in the way of the President, whose cares it is our desire to lighten, but, as the Senate shares the responsibility for our foreign relations and as we have reached a crisis which is hourly drawing us closer to the European vortex, I entertain the hope that this body can yet gain the attention of the combatants and induce those now conducting the world's tragedy to state in some concrete form, without taunt, acrimony, or threats, what proposals can be made the basis of a desired peace. If the dead could plead, would they not say to those who perpetuate the race: 'It is the time to live and let live'?"

TELL POPE OF PEACE HOPE.

More Than 3,000 Telegrams on Easter Voice Opposition to War.

ROME, April 23, (via Paris, April 24.)—Before sunset tonight the Pope had received more than 3,000 telegrams bringing Easter greetings, besids innumerable letters, messages, and addresses from all parts of the world, far surpassing the number received last year for the first Easter of his Pontificate.

The characteristic note of this world tribute was the expression of wishes for the success of his efforts for peace. Many of the messages said the name of Benedict would go down to posterity inheriting the blessings promised to peacemakers.

PEACE RUMORS DENIED.

Germans Say Report of Offers Are "Pure Inventions."

BERLIN, April 24, (by Wireless to Sayville.) "The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung states," says the Overseas News Agency, "that recently rumors have been spread about peace offers from our enemies.

"It was said that the Russians had taken measures in order to open negotiations. The German authorities will ignore completely any such proposals. All these rumors are inventions."

DENIES STORY OF SEA FIGHT.

German Agency Says There Were No Recent Battles in Baltic.

BERLIN, April 24, (by Wireless to Sayville.) "The Russian newspaper Novoe Vremya says that a naval engagement has occurred off the coast of Courland, but does not mention the outcome," says the Overseas News Agency. "It is stated authoritatively," the Lokal-Anzeiger announces, that this report is an invention, and that for several months there has been no naval engagement off the coast of Courland or anywhere else in the Baltic."

TELL OF RAID ON TRIESTE.

Austrians Say Italians Have Forfeited Right to Have Towns Spared.

BERLIN, April 24, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—A raid on the Austrian city of Trieste by a squadron of seven Italian aeroplanes is reported in the following official communication issued at Vienna under date of April 21:

Seven Italian aeroplanes dropped twenty-five bombs on Trieste yesterday afternoon, killing nine civilians, of whom five were children, and wounding five other persons. The Salesian Monastery, in the chapel of which 400 children were attending divine service, was destroyed. By this attack the enemy forfeited every right to have his towns spared.

Franz Josef Talks to Phonographs.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 24.—Emperor Franz Josef of Austria was recently persuaded to hand his personal ideas about the war down to posterity through talking-machine records in German and in Hungarian, according to a report in Swiss newspapers. It is added that the records will not be made public until after the Emperor's death.

Turks Said to Have Slain German Officers at Trebizond

LONDON, Tuesday, April 25.—The Turkish garrison revolted and slew all its German officers before the Russians captured Trebizond, says The Daily Mail's Odessa correspondent.

GERMAN BALKAN NEWS.

Air Raid Near Sofia Fails—Turkey and Rumania Cordial.

BERLIN, April 24, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—No casualties were caused by the recent aeroplane attack on the outskirts of Sofia, a telegram from that city to the Overseas News Agency says. One school and one house were damaged by the explosion of two large bombs dropped from the aeroplane.

"The flier at the same time," the message continues, "dropped proclamations in which the capture of Erzerum by the Russians was announced. This caused amusement, inasmuch as Bulgaria is perfectly informed about Erzerum."

About 60,000 carloads of corn have been sent from Rumania to Germany and Austria during the last three months, the Overseas News Agency says. It is reported from Bucharest that next week will be begun the forwarding of 140,000 carloads recently sold by Rumania. The news agency states that the British were unable to obtain even half of the 80,000 carloads of corn they desired to purchase.

Progress is being made in the negotiations between the Turkish Government and a Rumanian delegation with regard to a convention similar to the agreement recently concluded between Germany and Rumania, says a dispatch from Constantinople to the Overseas News Agency.

"According to the Turkish newspapers both sides are showing good will and a desire to reach an understanding which, will strengthen the cordial relations existing between the two countries."

FEW TEUTONS IN BALKANS.

German Force Greatly Reduced Because of Verdun Operations.

PARIS, April 24.—The German forces around Saloniki were greatly reduced during March owing to the operations at Verdun and on the Russian front, according to a Bucharest dispatch to the Havas Agency.

There remain only two German divisions defending the Vardar Gorges. The Bulgars number 25,000 men, and there is a small force of Austrian infantry with Austrian artillery.

'ANZAC DAY' IN LONDON.

King Sends Message to the Governor Generals in Australasia.

LONDON, April 24.—"Anzac Day," the anniversary of the landing of the Australians and New Zealanders on Gallipoli Peninsula, will be celebrated tomorrow by a march of 2,000 Australians to a service in Westminster Abbey. Similar services will be held throughout the empire. The King has sent the following message to the various Governor Generals in Australia:

"Tell my people that I am joining them in their solemn tribute to the memory of their heroes who died in Gallipoli. Their valor and fortitude have shed fresh lustre on the British Army. May those mourning their loss find comfort in the conviction that they did not die in vain, but that their sacrifice has drawn our peoples more closely together and has added strength and glory to the empire."

No $1,000,000 Gift by Greek Premier

ATHENS, April 23, (via Paris, April 24.)—Premier Skouloudis has offered to subscribe $1,000,000 to an internal loan if one is floated. This news appears to be the correct version of a former report that the Premier, who is a man of great wealth, had given $1,000,000 to the State outright, that amount being, roughly, the sum due the families of the mobilized troops, and unpaid on account of an empty Treasury.

Opposition Loses Spain Election.

MADRID, April 24.—In the Senatorial elections held throughout Spain to renew the elective section of the House, 115 members of the Ministerial Party were returned and sixty-five members of the various groups of the opposition.

German War Loan Response Heavy.

BERLIN, April 24, (by Wireless to Sayville.) The amount paid in installments on the new German war loan up to April 18 was 8,128,000,000 marks, or 70 per cent. of the total. Payment of only 30 per cent. of the subscriptions was required up to that time.

SINK GERMAN SHIP; CATCH CASEMENT

held, revealed an abnormal mind. His friends recalled his long career in the consular service, principally near the equator, (Consul at Lorenzo Marques in 1895; at Gaboon and Congo Free State, 1898-1905; at Haiti and Santo Domingo, 1907, and Consul General at Rio de Janeiro, 1909-13,) and were sure that the tropical sun had destroyed his moral conception. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle took this view, and sent an open letter to the British press, saying:

"That he should, in the full possession of his senses, act a traitor to the nation which had employed and honored him is inconceivable to any one who knew him. He had, it is true, a strong prepossession in favor of Germany before the war, but this was due to his belief that she was destined to challenge the Monroe Doctrine, which Sir Roger Casement bitterly resented as being the ultimate cause of all that Putumayo barbarities which he had officially to investigate. * * *

"I have never heard him say a word which was disloyal to Great Britain. He was a sick man, however, worn by tropical hardships, and he complained often of pains in his head. Last May (1914) I had letters from him from Ireland which seemed to me so wild that I expressed fears at the time as to the state of his nerves."

But while his friends sought to excuse his actions and the Irish Nationalist Party repudiated him and his works, the German authorities availed themselves of his services. They encouraged him to write and speak against his country and fully approved his plan for raising an Irish Legion among the Irish prisoners captured by the Germans in the retreat from Mons.

Sir Roger set to work in the prison camps. In one, at least, the inmates mobbed him, and he barely escaped with his life, but the German press asserted that he made converts.

In December, 1914, The London Daily Mail published extracts from a 100-page pamphlet, written by Sir Roger, and entitled "The Crime Against Ireland and How the War May Right It." In this document, which was published by the Berlin Foreign Office, Sir Roger suggested an alliance between Germany, Ireland and the United States.

In February, 1915, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt presented a photographic copy of an alleged written offer drawn up by the British Minister to Norway for the Norwegian valet of Sir Roger, promising $25,000 reward for the capture of his master. The document read:

British Legation.
Christiania, Norway.

On behalf of the British Government I promise that if through information given by Adler Christensen, Sir Roger Casement be captured either with or without his companions, the said Adler Christensen is to receive from the British Government the sum of £5,000, to be paid as he may desire.

Adler Christensen is also to enjoy personal immunity and to be given a passage to the United States, should he desire it.

M. de C. FINDLAY.
H. B. Minister.

Writes Grey of Alleged Plot.

About this time Sir Roger addressed an extraordinary letter to Sir Edward Grey, saying that he had renounced his Consular pension of his own free will, and, citing the assertion made by the Earl of Crewe in the House of Lords late in January that "Sir Roger Casement's course of action ought to be severely punished," remarked that the time had come for him to make a statement. He spoke of his services to the British Government and renounced all honors given him for that service. His own idea, he said, had been to save Ireland from the terror of a German invasion and he was surprised that his friends in England had so misjudged his motives.

Sir Roger then went on to recite alleged details of the plot to kidnap him, as revealed, he said, by his valet. The scheme, as furthered by M. de C. Findlay, British Minister to Norway, was to have been seized at Copenhagen and put on board a British warship. His valet, it was asserted, had been commissioned to steal his correspondence.

Sir Roger believed he was in danger, and so changed his plans. In his letter to Sir Edward Grey, Sir Roger wrote in part:

"Instead of going to Copenhagen, as I intended, I left Christiania on the 20th of October, (1914,) as I should like to point out, in full knowledge of the criminal plot which by your representative in Norway was planned against me, while he had no idea that I had any knowledge thereof.

"The rest of the story is soon told.

"I know that you are familiar with all details, because you were constantly communicating about the matter by mail as well as telegraph with your agent. You are also acquainted with the declaration which the Imperial German Government has published on Nov. 20, 1914, in reply to an inquiry made by me.

"The British Government, by press news, as well as by special agents, had spread all over Ireland that the Germans were committing the most atrocious crimes in Belgium, and had told the Irish populace that they would encounter a similar fate if Germany came out victorious from the war. It was the intention of your Government to scare the Irish into a practical assault on a people who had never harmed them, and by false accusations to make them believe that it was their duty. This declaration of the German Government, which, as I know, was made in all good faith, is the justification of my 'high treason.'

"I leave it to you, Sir, to find the justification for the criminal plot of the British Government and its Minister at Christiania, a plot hatched before I set foot on German soil and, moreover, planned in a country in which I had every right to stay; a plot the execution of which was attempted by the basest treachery and corruption. * * *

"Not before Jan. 3 Mr. Findlay compromised himself so far that he gave my protector, (Christensen, his valet,) in the name of the British Government and duly signed by himself, a formal assurance promising Christensen reward and immunity from the law for committing the planned crime. That document is in my hands. I have the honor to inclose a photograph of it.

"I have now the honor, through you, Sir, to place at the disposal of that Government the insignia of the Noble Order of St. Michael and St. George, the coronation medal of his Majesty King George V., as well as all other medals, honors, and distinctions which his Majesty's Government has bestowed on me, and which I feel justified in casting aside."

In August, 1915, according to advices received in Amsterdam, Sir Roger made another attempt to have the Irish prisoners in German hands turn traitors. He then raved in such a manner that a Government agent who was present saw the futility of his mission and advised him to withdraw from the camp.

Ten days ago a report came from Copenhagen that the German Government had caused the arrest of Sir Roger, but no inkling was given as to the reason for this or the time or circumstances.

ALWAYS HATED THE BRITISH.

Capt. Harrison Tells of Casement's Feelings Thirty Years Ago.

Captain H. G. Harrison of the Elder-Dempster liner Appam, which was brought into Hampton Roads on Feb. 1 as a German prize, knows Sir Roger Casement better, perhaps, than any other man in New York. He dates his acquaintance back to when Sir Roger was purser of the British and African Steamship Company's steamer Bonny, which in the early eighties plied between Liverpool and the west coast of Africa. Captain Harrison was First Officer of the Bonny. Casement made about three round trips as purser and then retired from the sea service, but Captain Harrison met him many times afterward.

"This is good news, it makes me as happy as Punch," said Captain Harrison when told last night that Sir Roger was a British prisoner.

"It is about thirty years ago that I first met Casement," he added, "and even in those days he was always telling us how he hated everything English, while at the same time living on good English money. He always was a queer sort of a chap, and of all the Irishmen I have ever known he had less reason than any, in my opinion, to hate Britain.

"He was always a mighty smart fellow, clever as he could be. As a matter of fact, he was too clever for the job of purser, and that's one of the reasons he lost the place.

"Casement is from the north of Ireland, and I think that he is Protestant. I remember that he told me his father had been an officer in the British army, and that the regiment he served in was the Royal Irish Rifles. He is of a splendid, loyal family, another reason that makes it so hard for those who know him to figure out why he entertains such hatred for everything English.

"He is tall, blonde, and quiet. I have seen stories that would indicate him as a noisy, talkative agitator. He is anything but that, and no one who knows would ever call him a 'mouther.' But when he does talk, he generally finds an opportunity to denounce England. We used to ask him why he hated us and the country so, but he never went into details and would simply reply that he did and let it go at that.

"After he left the Bonny, I lost track of him for several years. The next I heard of him he was with Major Fafmenter's expedition to the Congo. I next met him in Nigeria, where he was recruiting carriers for the Congo expedition. I asked him if he had changed his opinion about England and things British, and he answered no.

"I next met him at Calabar in West Africa, acting as Government Commissioner and denouncing the Government he served for what, he said, was its harsh treatment of the natives—charges that, I assure you, were absolutely groundless.

"More years passed, and when next I heard of Casement he was in the Consular service at Lisbon and later in Brazil, and still hating the Government which paid him a salary. The last time I saw him was several years ago when my ship touched at San Thomé, off the west coast of Africa.

"We met and talked for a bit, and I asked him if he still hated the British. I remember his answer.

"They have a lot to be blamed for," he said.

"You ought to be well ashamed of yourself to talk like that and all the time keep on taking British money," I answered, and with that I left him.

"That was the last time I saw Casement. That he took the course he has in this war I am not surprised. I once told him during the Boer war that his place was with the Boers and not with us, but he had a good Government job and his dislike of all things British did not cause him to become a traitor at that time."

GERARD PREDICTS SOME CONCESSION

conversations with Berlin officials including Foreign Minister von Jagow. His dispatches are said to emphasize the difficulties by which the German Government is confronted in endeavoring to find a way to meet the demands of the United States without arousing the element which insists upon a relentless submarine warfare against the shipping of the Entente Allies.

Await Report on Conference.

The State Department tonight was awaiting a dispatch from Mr. Gerard reporting the results of a long conference today with Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor. Press dispatches announcing that the conference had taken place were closely read. Officials expressed a particular interest in that part of the press reports which indicated that the reply to the American note would not be made until after the Chancellor had had another opportunity to confer with the Emperor, who is at the front.

The fact that the conference lasted more than an hour was regarded as being a hopeful sign, it being pointed out that if the German Government was disposed not to meet the American demands it was improbable that there would have been a discussion of such length. A report from Mr. Gerard is expected tomorrow.

All of Mr. Gerard's dispatches received since the present situation arose are held by Administration officials to be of a highly confidential nature. Consequently only a general knowledge of their contents is obtainable.

Reichstag Parties for Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A modicum of optimism has crept into the minds of officials of this Government, who have felt that a break between Germany and the United States was certain. Their more hopeful feeling is based largely on advices that the tone of the German press is calm and moderate. This attitude has been construed as meaning either that the press is not disposed to favor a severance of relations or that it has been instructed by the Government to create the impression that the issue with the United States is not so alarming as the conditions might indicate.

In addition, encouragement has come from reports that the parties in the Reichstag are uniting in an effort to have the Government adopt a conciliatory attitude toward the United States. One report has it that leaders of the parties are bringing influence to bear on Herr von Bethmann Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, to make concessions to Washington. As the Chancellor is supposed to be disposed that way, the outlook for a conservative course on Germany's part is regarded as very good.

It is known, of course, that the submarine warfare against merchant vessels is very popular in Germany, and one of the reasons advanced for the Berlin Government's failure to settle the Lusitania case was that such great feeling would be aroused among the people and in the Reichstag if all that the United States demanded in the way of reparation and disavowal should be granted that the Imperial Government felt obliged to postpone an adjustment to a time when its prestige was at the highest on account of some great victory, when it could afford to take chances. If the various parties are uniting to support the Government in making concessions to the United States in the present issue the danger of attack on the Chancellor in the Reichstag will be obviated.

Practical Aspects.

It was evident from what was said today that officials were becoming impressed with the view that Germany would do everything consistent with what she conceived to be her honor and dignity to avoid a clash with this Government. That the practical aspects of the matter will appeal to the German official mind is not doubted in well informed official circles, and for the first place, as the situation that confronts Germany was explained today, German credit in the event of a break in the United States would go sky-high, and the Imperial Government, already supposed to be hampered in its efforts to get funds to carry on the war, would suffer further. Another disadvantage to the German Government would be that, if a severance of diplomatic relations should lead to war, the British and French warships in United States and West Indian waters would be free to go elsewhere, thus strengthening the naval forces of the Entente allies and leaving to the United States Government the duty of guarding this part of the world against possible aggression by German raiders.

Again, it was pointed out, Germany would lose control of all the merchant ships flying her flag which have taken refuge in American ports. The stipulation in a treaty between the German and American Governments that the citizens of each residing in the territory of the other nation should have nine months after war was declared in which to dispose of their properties probably would be construed as not applying to German commercial vessels.

Whether this Government, in the event of war, would feel that it should furnish a large army and place its fleet in service in Europe is not being taken into consideration at this time. But it is being indicated that from a military standpoint the United States would be able to give immediate assistance to the Allies by furnishing a considerable number of trained commissioned officers to the British and French forces in the field and probably to the Russian forces. This would be a great help on account of the lack of a sufficient commissioned personnel, particularly in the British armies. Of course, it is being said here, American munitions plants would be speeded up, and the Government would respond to any call from the Entente powers for shells, guns, and explosives.

Path to an Understanding.

In these circumstances, which it is not doubted the German Government has taken into consideration, there is a strong feeling in Washington that Germany will hesitate to reject the demands of the United States. Should the demands be complied with there would be no objection on the part of this Government to enter into a discussion with Germany as to the manner in which submarine warfare might be conducted in the future. The ideas of the Administration in this particular are very well defined. It holds that a mere warning to an overhauled merchantman and the permitting of sufficient time to allow passengers and crew to escape before the vessel is sunk, do not constitute compliance with international law and the laws of humanity. This Government maintains that the requirement of visit and search is not figurative or constructive, but must be complied with literally. Its position is that no German submarine commander who halts a merchant ship may determine whether the rights of neutrals on board shall be sacrificed unless he or one of his subordinates visits the vessel and makes an examination to ascertain the character of passengers, crew, and cargo.

Should Germany comply with the American demands and then propose that the subject of the manner in which submarine warfare might be continued against commercial vessels with the consent of the United States be discussed between the two Governments, the Washington Government would comply. But at this juncture the United States wants from Germany a cessation of present methods of submarine operations against merchantmen.

MRS. ROGERS INSANE IS MURDER DEFENSE

Mother Who Poisoned Babes on Trial in Bronx Before a Jury of Married Men.

HUSBAND ASSISTS COUNSEL

State's Evidence Brief, as Manner of Children's Death Is Not Disputed—Alienists to Testify.

Mrs. Ida Sniffen Walters Rogers was put on trial in the Supreme Court of Bronx County yesterday on a charge of murder in the first degree in having caused the death of her 2-year-old son John and her 8-months-old daughter Lorida by giving them bichloride of mercury in December, 1914, at which time she also attempted to take her own life.

Her trial now is on the count relating to her son John. The jurymen are all married, and with one exception have children. Justice Arthur S. Tompkins is hearing the case. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, counsel for Mrs. Rogers, indicated yesterday that insanity would be her defense.

In support of this contention, Mrs. H. Leroy Sea, a close friend of the defendant, testified that on two occasions she had observed Mrs. Rogers acting in an irrational manner. On one occasion, the witness said, Mrs. Rogers had invited her to go out to lunch by telephone, but, as she was on her way to accept the invitation, she met Mrs. Rogers, who did not remember having made the engagement. Mrs. Sea said she went home with the defendant and there found the table prepared for lunch. Cross-examined by District Attorney Martin, Mrs. Sea remained unshaken in her story.

The impaneling of the jury and presentation of the State's case proceeded with such celerity that the defense was able to call several witnesses at the afternoon session. District Attorney Martin, in his opening address to the jury, said that, inasmuch as the defendant had admitted giving the poison to the children, he would call few witnesses. He characterized Rogers as a man who had left behind a trail of broken homes.

Rogers Aids the Defense.

Mrs. Rogers sat beside Lorlys Elton Rogers, who was the father of the dead children and who has since married her, his second wife, a sister of Professor Franklin Giddings of Columbia, having divorced him. Mrs. Rogers was attired in deep black and wore a thick veil. She evinced little interest in the proceedings, seldom lifting her eyes from the table at which she sat.

Rogers, well groomed and debonnair, took a lively interest in the trial. It was evident he was directing or assisting in the defense, as Mr. Chanler frequently consulted him. It was because of a desire of Rogers that juror No. 7 was permitted to remain in the box, though the man had announced that he was childless.

Among the spectators who filled the courtroom was Mrs. Anna Roquemore Rogers, the first wife of Rogers. She had been subpoenaed by the State. It is expected that she will be called in rebuttal after the defense closes. Rogers's second wife, the former Miss Giddings, is in Massachusetts, outside of the jurisdiction of the court.

District Attorney Martin first called Patrolman Daniel Kiley, who told of being called to the house and of finding Mrs. Rogers and the children in agony. He testified that Rogers appeared as the ambulance was leaving and said his second wife had had a "spat" the night before, and that Rogers had identified the woman and children with the words, "my wife and babes." This testimony was substantiated by Patrolman Thomas H. Johnston, who had accompanied Kiley.

Testimony to Show Insanity.

Dr. Harold M. Freund, the next witness, told of the removal of the woman and children to the hospital. He was followed by Coroner Healy, Dr. John Riegelmann, the Coroner's Physician; Professor William J. Geiss of Columbia, and Henry Fuerstenberg, a clerk, all of whom gave testimony concerning the autopsies and post-mortem statements.

Fuerstenberg, although a witness for the prosecution, swore that Mrs. Rogers had told him that she had been led to kill her two children because "so many were dying all over Europe it made me feel crazy."

After the people had rested Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler outlined to the jury what the defense would be. Describing the love of the defendant for her children as "ideal," he asserted that she was unquestionably insane when she administered the poison.

"I am not here to defend the condition of affairs that existed at the Rogers home," he said. "I intend to show that the Mrs. Rogers who deprived herself of her children was not in her right mind."

Mrs. Della Burns, owner of the house at 224 West 167th Street, where the tragedy occurred, was the first witness called by the defense. She said that, on the morning of the occurrence, Mrs. Rogers had come into her apartment and calmly informed her that John had taken poison by mistake. The witness said that she ran upstairs immediately and found the children in agony, but that Mrs. Rogers remained apathetic all the while.

To Call Dr. Hammond.

On cross-examination District Attorney Martin got from the witness that Mrs. Anna Roquemore Rogers, the first wife of Rogers, had been a regular visitor at the 167th Street home. The District Attorney also brought out the information that tradesmen had been waiting for their money for several days before the poisoning.

Mrs. Fred A. Wattz of 1,431 University Avenue and Mrs. Dora Ingwersen of the same address, who followed, testified concerning the home life of the defendant.

An adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this morning, at which time several alienists will be called in behalf of Mrs. Rogers. It was said that Dr. Graeme Hammond, who was engaged in the Thaw case, would appear for the defense.

"COX" M. D. GETS 3 YEARS.

Post Office Robber, to Spare Family, Keeps Identity Secret.

Refusing to reveal his identity in order to spare his family, a prisoner known as Arthur C. Cox, a confessed Post Office robber, was sentenced by Judge Haight in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga., for his part in robbing the Post Office at Leonardo, N. J., on Sept. 9, 1915.

Judge Haight commended Cox for shielding his family. Clemency had been promised him if he would reveal his identity.

Cox pleaded guilty last week to the Leonardo robbery and to a similar crime in Allenton, N. C. In each robbery Cox, with an accomplice, stole money orders and stamps. He was arrested in Santa Barbara, Ca., while trying to cash the money orders on March 3.

Cox told Judge Haight that he was a graduate of a medical school in New York, and that his family moved in respectable circles. He said he bore a good reputation until the Leonardo robbery, which he said he committed because he was in need of money.

NEPHEW ACCUSES HILLIS.

Complaint in $50,000 Libel Suit Charges He Misled Friends.

The complaint in the fifty-thousand-dollar libel suit brought against the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, by his nephew, Henry M. Hillis, was filed yesterday with the Supreme Court. The complaint followed closely that of Percy D. Hillis, brother of Henry, who sued Dr. Hillis in Kings County for the same amount. It reviewed the trading of Dr. Hillis in timber lands in British Columbia, denied that the plaintiff was interested in the lands beyond that of being a salaried employe of the defendant, and denied that Dr. Hillis ever assumed any liabilities of the plaintiff.

The complaint described in detail many of the speculations of Dr. Hillis, and said that the clergyman's agreement with Sir Harold A. Farnsworth of London was that the latter was to put up the money for the purchase of certain quarter sections of timber land and was to receive 50 per cent. of the net profits. The other 50 per cent. was to be divided between Sir Harold's secretary, Pomeroy Burton, and the defendant. Fearing that much annoying publicity would grow out of this transaction, the complaint said, Dr. Hillis made "false, exaggerated, and unwarranted representations" in order that some of the stock might be sold to the estate of Martin Kingman of Peoria, Ill. It was also said that Dr. Hillis was rebuked by one of the executors of the estate, who threatened to sue him for damages.

Part of the profits of the sale to the Kingman estate, the complaint said, was used by Dr. Hillis to purchase his home, at 23 Monroe Place, Brooklyn. The plaintiff, to show that he could not have been personally responsible for any of the large deals in timber land, said it was just after his graduation that his uncle induced him to go to Canada to represent him in obtaining timber licenses from the Government there. His salary was to be $100 a month and certain bonuses, which, he said, he never received. Part of the complaint ran:

> My uncle represented to his friends that he was doing them a great favor by letting them buy some of the land, that the licenses belonged to me and that he was making large profits himself by reason of his investment, whereas the only profit he made was in selling the licenses to his friends. He well knew that the values he fixed upon the land were far in excess of the real value. He led his friends to believe that in the course of a short time the licenses which cost them $1,000 to $2,500 would yield them $40,000. He induced some purchasers to put up money to start logging operations. All of this money was lost.

The complaint said the defendant contracted for nearly $1,000,000 worth of coal and timber land, and when he could not sell the land he found himself in serious financial trouble. The defendant added:

> He could not even pay his installments on the earlier property. He couldn't pay the carrying charges of the licenses. Pressed on all sides he blamed me for all his trouble.

The plaintiff is represented by Aaron William Levy.

RUSSIANS REPULSE TURKS.

Stop Attacks on Coast and in the Direction of Kharput.

PETROGRAD, April 24.—The War Office tonight issued the following:

Caucasus front: In the coast region the enemy made attempts to advance toward Trebizond. These were all frustrated by our advance guards.

In the region of Ashkala the fighting continues. We stopped the Turkish offensive in the direction of Kharput.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24, (via London.)—The following official communication was issued by the War Office today:

Caucasian front: On the right wing there is nothing to report. In the centre we surprised an enemy detachment of some 100 men. One officer and ten men were killed. The others fled.

On the same sector an enemy attack with two battalions was repulsed by our counterattack, in which half the enemy was killed.

On the left wing of the coastal sector isolated enemy attacks were successfully arrested.

Near Sedd-el-Bahr (Dardanelles) two enemy vessels opened an ineffective fire, and some aeroplanes appeared at a great height, dropping bombs which fell into the water.

On the coast of Smyrna two enemy monitors bombarded intermittently. Later they withdrew.

RUSSIAN AIRMEN ACTIVE.

German Aeroplanes Again Drop Bombs on Dvinsk.

PETROGRAD, April 24.—The official communication from general headquarters today reads:

His Imperial Majesty, the Commander in Chief of the Army, spent part of the holy week in religious exercises in union with all the members of his staff.

Enemy aeroplanes threw bombs on Dvinsk. Our aircraft threw thirteen bombs on the station southeast of Friedrichstadt.

On the remainder of the front there was only an exchange of fire.

FEAR FOR CONSTANTINOPLE.

Traveler from Greece Says Russians Are Expected There by August.

Dusan Tripcevitch, a Serbian, whose home is in California, where he was naturalized, returned yesterday from Greece and Corfu on the French liner Rochambeau after spending some months in the Levant. He said that when he left on March 28 there were 120,000 Serbian soldiers at Corfu who were being trained and equipped for the front.

"The Allies number about 350,000 at Saloniki," continued Mr. Tripcevitch, "and when the Russians have captured Constantinople they will march into Bulgaria. I was informed by a high Greek official who had just arrived from Constantinople that the Russians were expected to reach there not later than the first of August."

Frederick Cozzens, an importer, of 119 West Ninety-second Street, said that when he was at Marseilles he saw what appeared to be 200 Japanese soldiers in khaki led by French officers, but they proved later to be Tonkinese troops. Marseilles was full of soldiers, he said, because the recruits for 1916-17 had been called, and there were also troops arriving from Algeria and Senegal.

FRANCIS QUITS SWEDEN.

New Ambassador Goes on to Petrograd After Busy Time in Stockholm.

STOCKHOLM, April 24, (via London.)—David R. Francis, the new American Ambassador to Russia, left today for Petrograd after two busy days spent in Stockholm.

The German and Austrian Ministers to Sweden, by direction of their respective Governments, held lengthy consultations with Mr. Francis while here concerning Teutonic interests in Russia and also with regard to the prisoners' camps which Mr. Francis will inspect.

Mr. Francis also met the representative diplomatists of all the warring powers in stockholm.

COURT CONSIDERS LINCOLN.

Oral Arguments Made Against His Return to England.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Supreme Court after listening to oral arguments today took under consideration the question of whether Ignatius Trebitch Lincoln shall be returned to England from New York to answer a charge of forgery. Attorneys for Lincoln are fighting extradition on the ground that it is sought to extradite Lincoln for a political offense.

They also urge that even if he were to be tried for forgery, his announcement some time ago that he would reveal certain experiences as a German spy would result in his being given unjust punishment.

OBREGON STARTS TO MEET GEN. SCOTT

today it asked the State Department, through Señor Arredondo, for an early reply to the Carranza note of April 12, suggesting that the time had come for such withdrawal.

General Scott's Program.

It is understood that General Scott will make it plain to General Obregon, in polite but firm language, that while the United States Government has no intention of encroaching on Mexican sovereignty, and is not engaged in any "invasion" of Mexico, it intends to leave the troops in Mexico until Villa and his band have been eradicated, whether this is accomplished by the American forces acting alone, or in harmony with the forces of the de facto Government, or by the forces of the de facto Government acting alone.

General Scott, it is believed, will indicate the willingness of the United States to permit its forces to co-operate fully with those of the de facto Government in common cause against Villa, or is ready to allow the American expeditionary force to rest on its arms for a reasonable period, while recuperating from its forced marches and pending the demonstration by the Carranza Government of its professed ability to crush Villa and his followers.

The de facto Government has been making the plea that it is itself strong enough to cope with the Villa situation and relieve the American expeditionary force of its specified task. Should General Obregon, as is expected, reiterate this suggestion to General Scott and intimate that the de facto Government feels there is no longer need for the American forces to remain in Mexico, General Scott, it is understood, will respond that the United States Government does not care to withdraw its forces until General Carranza proves that he can crush Villa.

If the de facto Government is able to crush Villa after the American troops are withdrawn, it will be argued, then it should be able to dispose of Villa all the more quickly while the American troops are remaining in Mexico. The stretch of 400 miles covered by the disposition of the Pershing expedition restricts to that extent the zone within which it would be necessary for the Carranzista forces to operate.

General Scott likewise will be expected to ascertain from General Obregon whether the attack on Major Tompkins's detachment at Parral, the subsequent threats of attack on these forces should they try to cross the so-called Parral "dead line," and the recent massing of Carranzista troops around Parral are to be interpreted as meaning that it is the intent of the de facto Government to oppose by military force the further advance of the Pershing expedition into Mexico.

Scott's Diplomatic Successes.

Officials declined to disclose the source of the suggestion of a conference. Neither State nor War Department would lay claim to the honor, and it was asserted that General Scott had not proposed it. That officer, however, has an enviable and unusual record for conducting friendly negotiations. The arrangement of a neutral zone at Naco, Sonora, during fighting between Carranza and Villa troops, a later conference with Villa which resulted in the release of American goods detained by him, and the quelling of an uprising of Pima Indians in Utah are recent examples of his skill as a diplomat. He is known to have believed that a greater degree of co-operation could be procured from the Carranza forces if a personal conference with any of the leading commanders could be arranged.

In the redisposition of the American forces in Mexico it is expected that some of the territory now controlled by them will be relinquished. The American soldiers probably will be concentrated at strategic points along a shorter line so arranged as to provide protection against attack for the American colonies in the Casas Grandes, Pearson, and Babicora districts, as well as American border towns. Meanwhile the American forces will recuperate and be strengthened. If, after a reasonable time, the de facto Government shows it is either unwilling or unable to stamp out Villista brigandage and capture Villa, the United States, it is understood, will actively push its campaign against Villa at a proper and favorable opportunity.

It was pointed out at the War Department today that most of the American troops were now in the vicinity of Casas Grandes, 100 miles south of the border and 300 miles north of General Pershing's most advanced column near Parral. It is reported that this camp is now situated at Adela, a village not far from Parral. Officers here would not be surprised if the redisposition saw all these outlying commands called northward to the Casas Grandes region, where they could be fully supplied without danger of being cut off, no matter what happened.

Official hopes that the Carranza Government may press its campaign against Villa were heightened somewhat today by the receipt of a telegram from Marion Letcher, American Consul at Chihuahua City, confirming press reports of the capture of Pablo Lopez, one of Villa's chief Lieutenants, near Santa Ysabel, on Saturday. The dispatch stated that Lopez had been taken to Chihuahua City.

Secretary Baker today received a telegram from Major Gen. Funston stating that Lieutenants Willis and Dargue, aviators attached to the Pershing expedition, while reconnoitring in and around Chihuahua City had been forced by a bad motor to descend northwest of that city. Their aeroplane was broken to pieces when they landed. Lieutenant Willis was bruised and suffered an injured ankle. Lieutenant Dargue was unhurt. Both aviators, after destroying their machine, walked to San Antonio, a point on the Mexico North Western Railway, west of Chihuahua City.

OBREGON TO ARRIVE IN JUAREZ SATURDAY

Mexican Officials Gratified Over His Coming Conference With General Scott.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, April 24.—General Alvaro Obregon, Minister of War of the Mexican de facto Government, is expected to reach Juarez Saturday for a conference with Major Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff, who is expected to arrive here tomorrow night to arrange the details for the meeting. The conference, which will be secret, will be held in the Juarez Custom House or the Federal Building here, depending on General Obregon's desire. Arrangements have been made at Fort Bliss for guards to protect the two Generals. General Gavira, Carranza commander in Juarez, said today that he would use every precaution while General Scott was in Juarez to prevent anti-American demonstrations.

Army officials here have two theories regarding the possible outcome of the conference. One is that the American troops will be left in Mexico until General Carranza demonstrates his ability to guard the American border from further raids by bandits. Should the Carranza Government prove unable to handle the situation, the policing of the country will then be resumed, the American troops being held in readiness to move into the interior in the event that the Carranza Government, for any reason, fails.

The other and more generally accepted theory among the higher army officers on the border is that the troops will have a period of rest and recuperation during the conference, and that it will be proposed by General Scott that the American and Mexican troops cooperate in policing the northern country and in exterminating the bandits which have been a menace to property of Americans and Mexicans alike in the northern part of the republic.

Mexican officers and officials in El Paso and Juarez made no effort to conceal their satisfaction at the turn the situation had taken. They all agreed that the conference would have a most wholesome effect on both sides of the border and result in a closer friendship and better spirit of co-operation by the Mexican troops. They said that the punitive expedition went into Mexico in such haste that there was no time to make clear to the Mexican people its real purpose, as proved by later developments, and this was the cause of much friction and lack of co-operation.

General Gavira Pleased.

"This is the most significant thing that has developed in the Mexican situation," General Gavira said. "To me it is especially pleasing, for I have been here on the border long enough to feel and realize that the intention of the United States Government is only for the best. Now we have a tangible proof of it. Your greatest General is to treat with our military commander-in-chief on equal terms regarding the future plans of the two armies. Nothing could be better for the relations between our two countries. Sunday we doubted the good intentions of the Americans. Tonight we have no questions to ask, for we realize that we are being treated as equals by a powerful nation which has in its power the elements to crush us should it so desire. For my part I am ready to pledge the closest co-operation in chasing the bandits of the north, acting with the American army, and I believe every Carranza officer feels the same way."

The Carranza Consul here, Andres Garcia, declared tonight that the parley could mean only a better understanding and the combing of the entire State of Chihuahua for not only Villa and his bandits, but all of the undesirables who have been evading the law for years. He said that he believed that the crisis in the Mexican situation had been passed and that the troops would soon return to the border, their mission fulfilled and peace restored.

Information received here today by an American mining concern with large interests in the Guerrero district stated that the majority of the American troops were now concentrated near Namiquipa. Two weeks ago, according to the same sources, there were 2,000 United States soldiers camped at San Antonio, sixty-five miles southeast of Namiquipa, with a large quantity of supplies. It is said that at present there are not more than 300 troops at San Antonio, the rest, with most of the supplies, having been withdrawn north.

According to the most reliable information obtainable here General Pershing has concentrated his forces at Namiquipa and Colonia Dublan with heavy detachments guarding the much shortened line of communication. This movement has caused considerable dismay to the interventionists here, who see in it a preparation for a rapid withdrawal of the expedition if satisfactory arrangements are made with the de facto Government at the forthcoming conference between General Scott and General Obregon.

One question bothering the military has been the rehabilitating of those troops whose clothes have been worn to shreds in their rides for Villa. Two carloads of clothing have just been sent south via Columbus, and these have been flanked by a shipment of 5,000 pairs of shoes, 10,000 pairs of hose, 4,000 overshirts, and 2,000 gloves, sent to Columbus to be forwarded as needed. It will be only a short time until all the men in need of new clothing will be entirely reoutfitted.

Report Villa Coming North.

According to Mexicans arriving here from the interior today, reports have been spread that Villa is coming north to attack the American forces. They say the bandit now has some 300 followers, and will be joined later by Pedro Bracamonte of the Torreon district, who has 1,500 men, and General Banuelos, whose command numbers 1,000.

The Mexicans assert that the peace negotiations initiated by Canuto Reyes are intended to draw General Trevino, the Carranza commander at Torreon, into a trap, and that Reyes expects to join forces with Villa.

Twenty-three Villa prisoners are reported held by the Carranza authorities in Chihuahua City for execution. All is quiet in the city, although this is largely due to numerous arrests of persons suspected of revolutionary tendencies.

No news of a disturbance in Mexico of any kind has reached the border for several days. Reports of the ravages of typhus, especially in the central States, and of the growing scarcity of food in almost every part of the country, have come in increasing volume. A letter received today from Saltillo announced the death from typhus of Percy E. Noll. Carr, General Manager of the Mazapil Copper Company and the Coahuila & Zacatecas Railroad. Mr. Carr was an Englishman and controlled some of the largest mining interests in Mexico.

HOWZE TRACES VILLA SOUTH OF SAN BORJA

Averts Clash With Carranzistas—Rumor of Americans Fighting Native Force at Satevo.

By FRANK B. ELSER.

Special Correspondent of The New York Times.

GENERAL PERSHING'S HEADQUARTERS NEAR NAMIQUIPA, April 23, (via Radio to Columbus, N. M., April 24.)—Major Robert L. Howze, after penetrating south of the Durango line, reports cumulative evidence that Villa is alive and has turned westward into the mountains south of San Borja.

Near San Borja Carranzistas charged Americans for some unexplained reason. A conflict was averted only when Major Howze rode forward, waving his hat.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, NAMIQUIPA, Mex., April 24, (by Wireless to Columbus, N. M.)—American military authorities today obtained reliable information that Francisco Villa had not crossed the Durango-Chihuahua line. He is northwest of Parral. Today's report placed him last near Nonoava.

EL PASO, April 24.—Early today the local police received a rumor that fighting had begun between Carranza and American forces at Satevo.

According to the police here, the information came from influential sources in Juarez. The police believed the rumor to be true. It was stated that several negro soldiers had been killed in the fighting.

Neither General Bell at Fort Bliss nor military headquarters at Columbus, N. M., had any information early today regarding the report.

PERSHING READJUSTS LINE.

Orders Sent Him to Move Troops as He Has Recommended.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 24.—General Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, and General Alvaro Obregon, Carranza's Minister of War, will formally discuss at El Paso or at some point near there the questions that have arisen because of the entrance into Mexico of General Pershing's punitive expedition.

Just when this conference will take place will depend on when General Obregon can reach the border. General Scott received his instructions to meet him late today after he had purchased his transportation to return to Washington. He will remain here until it is known when General Obregon can get to El Paso. It is assumed that it will require three or four days for the Mexican Minister of War to make the trip.

General Funston sent to General Pershing today preliminary orders for the reconcentration of his troops along the lines he had recommended and which had been approved. Already General Pershing has begun drawing in the mobile forces that have been operating in advance of the southern terminus of his long line of communication, and the line itself will be shortened. His headquarters will be moved from Namiquipa to Colonia Dublan, and stronger units will be grouped along the shortened line from Columbus to a point nearer the border.

Reports from General Pershing today indicated that Francisco Villa had been located again, this time west of Parral, in the mountains of Western Chihuahua. He was last reported at Nonoava, 85 miles southwest of Satevo. The reports indicated that Villa was wounded, but only slightly, and that he was far from being incapacitated. General Funston regarded the information that General Pershing had secured as authentic. No troops have been sent in pursuit because it was said such a campaign could not be successfully conducted.

Overnight reports from General Pershing made no mention of fighting at Satevo, as was rumored at El Paso. Colonel W. C. Brown, Major R. L. Howze, and Major Frank Tompkins are in the vicinity of Satevo.

Little difficulty now is being experienced in getting supplies over the Mexican Northwestern to Casas Grandes, but the use of the direct line from Juarez to Chihuahua has been a failure. None of the supplies sent to Chihuahua have been forwarded, and reports to headquarters confirm earlier unofficial reports that they have been held at Chihuahua by Carranza authorities.

The troops that have been moving for the last few days toward Columbus are entering Mexico almost as soon as they arrive at the border base, and it is expected that the entire 2,300 will be along the line of communication within a day or two.

SEVEN BANDITS TO DIE FOR COLUMBUS RAID

Found Guilty of Murder at Deming, They Are Sentenced to Pay Penalty May 19.

DEMING, N. M., April 24.—The seven Villa followers who were captured after the raid on Columbus and convicted of murder in the first degree were today condemned by Judge Edward L. Medler to die on May 19.

The prisoners pleaded that they were ignorant of where they were going at the time of the raid and that they were forced to follow Villa under penalty of death.

Six of the bandits listened unmoved to the sentence of death, but the seventh, José Rangel, who had been wounded in the raid and was carried into court on a cot, cried for mercy.

Judge Medler ordered the prisoners to the Santa Fé Penitentiary for safe keeping.

RAOUL MADERO ON BORDER.

Late President's Brother Reported on His Way to El Paso.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, N. M., April 24.—Raoul Madero, brother of the assassinated President of Mexico, passed through Columbus this afternoon en route to El Paso, and on the train briefly discussed the present Mexican situation with a civilian, who got off at Columbus. It is known that juntas of politically important Mexicans have been organized in El Paso lately, and here it is thought probable that Madero was on his way to attend a conference of other Mexicans.

Madero would not talk directly of the American expedition into Mexico, but said he thought it highly probable that reports of the break between General Obregon and General Carranza were founded on fact; and that ever since the American expedition began such a break had been looked for in certain quarters.

Except the sending out of more supply trucks today there was very little activity in camp. General Pershing is refitting his men during the lull. As has been the case for the last few days, everybody seems to be waiting impatiently for definite orders regarding the further conduct of the campaign.

GEN. REYES NAMES TERMS.

Demands His Title and Face Value of His Villa Money.

TORREON, Mexico, April 22, (via El Paso Junction, April 24.) Negotiations for the surrender of General Canuto Reyes and other generals continue. Reyes insisting that he be allowed to retain the rank of General and receive command of the Nazas district, with allowance for the face value of his Villa money.

General Huerta Vargas reported from Saltillo today that his troops overtook bandits under Florentino Escaival at Apistolava, State of Zacatecas, killing five and wounding four, including Escaival. Vargas's troops suffered no losses.

BISHOP TO SEE PRESIDENT.

Methodist Prelate Going to Washington at Wilson's Request.

DAWSON, Penn., April 24.—Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Mexico City, who is atending the conference of the Board of Metho-list Bishops here, has been called to the White House to discuss the Mexican situation, it was learned tonight.

He will confer with President Wilson on Wednesday morning. Bishop McConnell refused to discuss the matter.

port and voluminous notes from certain agents in Tokio regarding the possible attitude of Japan toward this country on leading questions which are coming up between the two nations.

It is declared that among the papers are strong instructions to German agents in Tokio.

Memoranda among the documents are said to reveal a plan to get us into trouble with Mexico and then cause the dispatch of as many troops as possible to the border, including the National Guard, with the idea that in event of a break with Germany, certain cities might be left as far as possible undefended.

It was asserted that as many as 10,000 names and addresses were contained in one set of papers of Germans ready to side against this Government in case of trouble.

Other plans showed plotting to foment trouble in England's colonies, proceeding from Japan to India, and also working among the Irish element in this nation to stir up trouble at home.

Get Witness from Chicago.

The same Grand Jury is investigating both the case of von Igel, von Papen, Hans Tauscher, and that of Labor's National Peace Council. Arthur A. Hassell, an associate in the firm of George R. Reade & Co., 34 Nassau Street, who had charge of the leasing of von Igel's offices at 60 Wall Street, testified yesterday that the lease was made by von Igel as a private individual, and that he took oath at that time before a notary public that he was leasing the rooms for "advertising purposes only," thereby rendering void the German Embassy's assertion that the raid was made on official German territory.

In connection with the Government's case against Labor's National Peace Council, it was learned that Assistant United States District Attorney Sarfaty went to Chicago last week on a mission connected with the case.

Mr. Sarfaty would not tell what he had learned in his Chicago trip, but it was admitted that one of the witnesses before the Grand Jury yesterday, G. F. Hummel, a resident of Chicago, and a member of the Friends of Peace and the Teutonic Sons of America, was called as a result of what Mr. Sarfaty had learned in the West.

Other witnesses in the same matter were Henri Rozowski, a printer, 444 Pearl Street, who printed in June and July, 1915, the only two issues of The Industrial News which ever appeared. In that paper were articles lauding Congressman Buchanan for his efforts in Labor's National Peace Council, and also strongly condemning the Federal Reserve banks for participation in the Anglo-French war loan.

It was declared by District Attorney Marshall yesterday that the arraignment of von Igel had been postponed until next Monday. Mr. Marshall refused to make any comment on a report that Attorney General Gregory had declared there was no necessity of giving back the seized papers to the German Embassy.

FAY PLOTTERS TO FACE JURY.

Trial for Conspiracy to Destroy Munition Ships Begins Today.

The trial of Lieutenant Robert Fay, his brother-in-law, Walter Scholz, and Paul Draeche for conspiring to destroy munition ships will begin today before Judge Howe in the Criminal Branch of the United States District Court. It is expected that the trial will last ten days, for the Government will call about thirty-five witnesses to testify to the activities of the defendants in attempting to destroy ships of the Allies in this port.

A four-foot model of a form of a single screw vessel, to the rudder of which is attached a simple mechanism for winding up a bomb to explode when the proper tension of spring was reached; several devices that it is alleged were designed to set off explosives on shipboard; curious bombs, from which the explosives have been removed, and a suitcase containing parts of machinery and other odds and ends will be brought into the courtroom this morning from the office of Assistant United States Attorney John C. Knox, who will prosecute the case for the Government. They are the principal exhibits.

It was said by officials in the Federal Building yesterday that the peremptory challenges allowed both sides will probably be exhausted before the jury box is filled up. Each juror will be asked his opinion as to the right of the United States to ship munitions to the nations at war. A man's belief as to whether Germany or the Allies should win will not relieve him from jury duty.

Fay has been called the head of a conspiracy to destroy ships. He is credited with having told several stories since his arrest on Oct. 24. One of these was that the plot was engineered in Germany by officers of the German Secret Service, and that he was picked from the army for the work. He and Scholz were arrested in the woods near Grantwood, N. J., where, it is charged, they had a proving ground for testing explosives. They were indicted on Nov. 8.

If found guilty of conspiring to destroy vessels with intent to cause loss to those who have underwritten cargo or ship the prisoners may each receive a maximum sentence of ten years in a Federal prison. The penalty for conspiring to attack vessels within the waters of the United States with intent to destroy the vessel or cause loss to the owners of the wares on board is from one to two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

NEWTON FREED; JAILED AGAIN

Accused of Stealing Shrapnel Shell from Munitions Plant.

Harry L. Newton, who came to this city from St. Catherines, Canada, where he was foreman in the munitions factory of the McKinnon Dash and Hardware Company, and offered to blow up the Brooks Locomotive Works at Dunkirk, N. Y., for $5,000, or J. P. Morgan for twice that amount, according to the police, was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday morning before Magistrate Handy and freed of the charge of attempting to commit a crime. Immediately upon his release Newton was rearrested by Deputy United States Marshal Frank Bowler on the charge of grand larceny based upon the fact that in his possession was found a shrapnel shell which he is accused of stealing from the plant in St. Catharines.

The prisoner was arraigned before United States Commissioner Houghton in the Federal Building in the afternoon. C. Clive Bailey, British Consul General in this city, appearing as complaining witness.

Two Consul General explained that Newton was wanted in Canada for the theft of the brass shrapnel shell for a five-inch field piece which had been found in his suitcase in the New York Central Station in Buffalo. The shell is worth about $65, and the people of Canada, through the British authorities here, are asking that Newton be sent back to face the charge of having stolen it.

Thomas J. Sullivan, lawyer for Newton, argued that the prisoner had bought a discarded shell and was bringing it to this city with him as a souvenir. Newton himself declared that the whole thing was a frame-up to send him to prison because of the joke he played on the police, pretending to blow up munitions plants.

Newton was held without bail by Commissioner Houghton for a further hearing next Monday.

ST. CATHARINES, Ontario, April 24.—Harry L. Newton, formerly munitions foreman here, now under arrest in New York, is declared by the woman with whom he boarded in this city to have offered to her as a gift the shell case found in his trunk at Buffalo, but she said she declined to accept it.

Variety Was the Spice of Easter

LIFE was once dull in London because of the ubiquitous, monotonous, never-to-be-avoided frock coat and top hat.

Now the soft hat and the sack suit are worn by men-about-town in London streets.

Easter brought out a great variety of smart styles for New Yorkers—sack suits as well as cutaway coats.

When a Body needs a Tonic

THE careless rapture of the first few days of Spring sunshine, the glorious sense of new life—and then—spring fever! Kept keyed to the highest pitch by a winter of exacting work and "too much indoors," the system suddenly lets go.

Not seriously ill at such times—simply out of balance. What is needed is a tonic—yes, more: A food-tonic, to replace the accumulated fatigue with a fresh store of vigor in the shape of actual cell nourishment.

It is because Sanatogen presents albumen (the builder) and organic phosphorus (the vitalizer) in easiest assimilable form that it has proven an ideal cell-food and tonic, to restore the balance to body and nerves during the critical change of the seasons.

Having tested it in actual practice thousands upon thousands of physicians daily recommend Sanatogen. In fact, more than 21,000 have endorsed it in writing, as have also scores of prominent laymen, such as Colonel Watterson, former Secretary of the Navy Chandler, Lady Somerset, John Burroughs and Rear-Admiral Sigsbee, who know for themselves the help Sanatogen gives.

So "when a body needs a tonic" you may be sure that Sanatogen will help in a manner that will beget the highest praise.

Sir Gilbert Parker writes:
"Sanatogen is a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy and giving fresh vigor to overworked body and mind."

LABOR DENOUNCES 2 IN SCHOOL BOARD

Meeting Demands Resignations of Abraham Flexner and R. B. Fosdick.

CALLED ROCKEFELLER AIDS

Gompers Says It Is Regrettable That Use of Schools for Gatherings Had Been Abused.

The demand for the immediate resignation from the Board of Education of Commissioners Abraham Flexner and Raymond B. Fosdick, on the ground that they were the "paid agents of Rockefeller," was renewed by organized labor at a meeting in Stuyvesant High School, Fifteenth Street, near First Avenue, last night. President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, President James P. Holland of the State Federation of Labor, Commissioner James M. Lynch of the State Industrial Commission, and General Organizer Hugh Frayne of the State Federation of Labor were some of the labor chiefs who sat on the platform.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Conference of Organized Labor on Education for the purpose of enabling organized labor to announce "their program for the improvement of our public school system to all those interested in the highest development of our educational system, and so that public education may be kept free and unhampered from vicious and insidious influences." Secretary Peter Brady of the Labor Conference read a list of seventeen demands of organized labor in connection with matters of education and the correction of alleged evils. The Gary school system was unreservedly condemned by him.

President Samuel Gompers said he indorsed all the demands read by Mr. Brady, but that he was not ready to commit himself on the Gary method of teaching. He said it was his practice to approach all propositions with an open mind and to gather all the data available before reaching a decision. He thought it would be a good thing if a commission were appointed to draw up a new survey of the whole subject, and a heavy-set woman in the audience demanded if he would stand by that statement after the meeting was over. This sudden interruption in the midst of a comparatively harmless statement seemed to irritate Mr. Gompers, who demanded that he be not interrupted again.

"I'm not a fledgling who makes statements on the platform he is not willing to stand by," he said, and as further proof of his readiness to stand by his utterances he referred to two occasions when he faced prison sentences for his rights. The heavy-set woman explained after the meeting that she had meant no disrespect.

Mr. Gompers made a reference in his speech to the "hell-with-the-flag" incident at the Washington Irving High School, although he mentioned no names. He said it was a great privilege to be permitted to use schools for public gatherings, and that it was regrettable if the privileges had ever been abused. But, he said, it was better that a privilege should be occasionally abused than that it should never be enjoyed at all, especially if the abuse was a mistake that could be corrected. It was one of the rights of democracy, he said, to make mistakes.

Mr. Brady said organized labor's program called for "an immediate grant of funds for the erection of new school buildings to provide every child decent accommodations in a full-time class without resorting to the deplorable expedient of the double shift commonly designated as the duplicate school or the double session."

Labor also demanded: Night and day schools to teach English to foreigners; the immediate appointment of necessary teachers so that there would be no more than forty children in a class; the immediate erection or renting of needed temporary school buildings; elimination of substitute teaching; the immediate stopping of all attacks upon branches of the teaching staff by city officials and the Board of Education; an immediate organization of advisory committees for each trade taught in the schools; compulsory schools for children with working papers between the ages of 14 and 16 for eight hours a week and for the elimination of the assistant teacher evil.

Mr. Holland, as Chairman of the meeting, urged the reduction of the Board of Education from forty-six to five members.

M'COMBS WILL QUIT AS COMMITTEE HEAD

Democratic National Chairman Notifies the President That He Cannot Lead Campaign.

LYNCH MAY SUCCEED HIM

Ambassador Morgenthau, Washington Believes, Will Head a Non-partisan Wilson League.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The announcement was made at the White House today that William F. McCombs of New York had tendered his resignation as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee to take effect after the Democratic National Convention in June. This action was expected. It was regarded as certain in political circles that the coolness between Mr. McCombs and leading political friends of the Administration made it inevitable that he would not manage President Wilson's campaign for re-election.

Letters exchanged between President Wilson and Chairman McCombs, which the White House made public, were of a cordial tone, and gave forth the impression that the only reason for the retirement of Mr. McCombs from the National Committee Chairmanship was that he had formed a new law partnership and was obliged to devote more time to his private affairs. No open friction has occurred between the friends of the Administration and Mr. McCombs, but it has been no secret that they were not on good terms, and that some other man would be selected to manage the Democratic National political campaign of 1916.

The man who is most favored by Democratic politicians close to the Administration as Chairman of the National Committee and campaign manager this year is Frederick B. Lynch of Minnesota, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Committee. He is the member of the National Committee from his State, and was recently chosen for another term in the Democratic primaries in Minnesota, in spite of the opposition of the pro-German element which made a fight against him on the ground that he was shipping horses for the use of the Allies in France. He defeated this element handsomely. Mr. Lynch has had long experience in politics, and for twelve years has been prominent in the national Democratic Party. He is a man of affairs, has a large following in the party, and is regarded by party leaders here as fitted to manage the President's campaign for re-election.

Practically no other leading Democrat has been thought of among close friends of the Administration as Mr. McCombs's successor, although Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has been mentioned. He stands well at the White House. There have been suggestions recently that Henry Morgenthau of New York, the present Ambassador to Turkey, now in this country on leave of absence, might manage Mr. Wilson's campaign. But Mr. Morgenthau has other political plans in mind and is in thorough accord with some of the President's closest friends with reference to them.

Mr. Morgenthau has contemplated the organization for the campaign of what has been called a non-partisan Wilson league. He is said to be very much interested in undertaking to form this league, and prior to the departure of Secretary McAdoo for South America went over his plans with Mr. McAdoo and other supporters of the President. According to what is said in Democratic political circles here, Mr. Morgenthau felt that he could not take charge of the league and remain in the diplomatic service, but some of those with whom he conferred were of the contrary opinion, and it is said that they have urged him to have his leave of absence extended and retain the Ambassadorship while in charge of the political campaign that has been outlined.

Mr. Morgenthau has made an excellent record as Ambassador in Constantinople, and he is looked upon as a political asset of the Administration. That is the reason that friends of the Administration do not want him to resign. Mr. Morgenthau has been credited as saying he would return to Turkey in May. Officials here profess not to know what his plans are.

McCombs Explains to President.

In his letter telling the President of his intentions, Mr. McCombs said:

I have just formed a new partnership for the practice of law, which will become effective on May 1. The change will necessitate my devoting substantially all my time to my profession. My political activities must be largely curtailed. My arrangement, however, will justify my proceeding through to the end of the convention at St. Louis.

In view of the party precedent that the nominee for President is requested to indicate his preference for the Chairmanship of the National Committee, and in view of the unity of sentiment for your renomination, I am writing you at the earliest moment to let you know that I could not, under any circumstances, assume the leadership of the coming Democratic campaign. I am happy in the thought, however, that there are hosts of able and true men who can very readily take my place.

The Democratic organization is loyal to your policies and purposes. We all feel assured of a triumphant result for you and for the party nominees throughout the country in November.

For five years now I have been in the active service of the party, and it is with a keen feeling of regret that I am forced to conclude that my activities are of necessity to be more limited. If within the limit of my time I can be of assistance, be assured that I am always available.

The President's Reply.

In replying to Chairman McCombs's letter, President Wilson wrote:

I have your letter of April 20, apprising me of your inability to retain the Chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee for the approaching campaign.

I fully appreciate the necessity you feel yourself to be under to resign after the convention shall have been held in June; I know that you would not have reached such a decision had not your new business obligations made it unavoidable. I do not feel at liberty, therefore, to urge you to make the sacrifice that a retention of the Chairmanship would in the circumstances involve.

You have made many and great sacrifices already for the party, and I know that I am speaking the sentiments of all loyal Democrats when I express the very deep appreciation I have felt of the great services you have rendered. I am sure that the greatest regret will be felt at your retirement and that a host of friends will join me in the hope that your new business connections will bring you continued abundant success.

McCOMBS OUTLINES PLANS.

Will Now Follow Gentle Art of Making a Living.

Returning from Washington yesterday, Chairman McCombs gave some of the details of his future plans which were merely referred to in his letter to the President telling him that he could no longer serve as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. McCombs's new law office will be at 15 Wall Street, and his partners will be Francis L. Wellman, Herbert C. Smyth, and Frederick Ryan.

"I have devoted one-half of my time for five years to politics in a managerial capacity," said Mr. McCombs. "I have found that a very expensive luxury, and I intend to devote myself more entirely to the gentle art of making a living. It was in January, 1911, in which month Woodrow Wilson was inaugurated Governor of New Jersey, that I opened an office at 42 Broadway from which to manage and direct the propaganda that made Mr. Wilson President of the United States. I gave all my time to that work for just about two years, and I had cause to be well satisfied with the result.

"Colonel Harvey had mentioned Mr. Wilson's availability for the Presidency in 1909 and 1910, I believe, but I must be held responsible as the 'original Wilson man' in any managerial or propaganda capacity.'

Mr. McCombs recalled the fact that President Wilson offered him several offices, including that of Ambassador to France, and that Governor Glynn had also besought him to take an appointment to the Supreme Court bench and to the Public Service Commission.

"I was strongly tempted to go to Paris as Ambassador," said Mr. McCombs, "but I was then not 37 years old and the expenses of maintaining the Embassy in Paris calls for $100,000 a year. Those are two reasons why I felt impelled to give up one of the most pleasant possibilities ever presented to me."

Mr. McCombs said that he was confident President Wilson would be re-elected and that there was no longer any necessity of his remaining in a managerial capacity.

In Democratic circles in this city it is believed that Frederick B. Lynch, Democratic National Committeeman from Minnesota, will be Mr. McCombs's successor, although there is considerable talk here that the place may go to Ambassador Morgenthau. When he was asked about his successor, Mr. McCombs said it was too early to select a Chairman. There was no need of speculating, he said, until after the Democratic National Convention. Mr. Lynch, it is known, stands high in the President's estimation, and has the support of Secretary Tumulty and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

The fact that campaign headquarters for the re-election of President Wilson have been opened in the Forty-second Street Building led to the rumors that Ambassador Morgenthau was to be selected to succeed Mr. McCombs as National Chairman. Mr. McCombs said yesterday that he did not know such headquarters had been established, although he said he believed that Mr. Morgenthau, who has his office in the same building, was making preliminary financial plans for the campaign. The Progressive national headquarters is in the same building.

It was said yesterday that as soon as Mr. Morgenthau, who is Chairman of the Finance Committee of the National Committee, gets his financial committee in working order, the regular headquarters of the National Committee, from which Mr. Wilson's campaign will be directed will be established in the Forty-second Street building.

Arrest Four State's Witnesses.

Four men were arrested yesterday morning by Detective Sergeant Kiely of Hoboken and turned over to United States Marshals by Recorder Carsten on bench warrants issued by Judge Haight of the United States District Court of Newark, N. J. Three months ago the four men testified against Meyer Ettman, who had a junk shop at 95 Park Avenue, Hoboken, and was charged with receiving stolen goods from steamship piers. Ettman is now serving eighteen months in the Atlanta Federal Prison. The men arrested, Max Groth of 327 Washington Street, Albert Breitenbach of 529 Bloomfield Street, William Sankowsky of 102 Clinton Street, and Jacob Cornelius of 42 Willow Avenue, Hoboken, are charged with being fugitives from justice.

PREDICT BAY STATE WILL SPLIT ON T. R.

Mexico. Theodore Roosevelt is the one man who can surely and adequately meet this crisis.

"Because of the gravity of the situation I made a personal appeal direct to the Republican voters of Massachusetts. I asked them in that telegram, as I earnestly ask them now, to do their share on Tuesday in safeguarding the country."

The prediction here tonight is that the vote tomorrow, even in the Republican primaries, will not be heavy. According to all reports, there is plenty of Roosevelt sentiment in Massachusetts, and there is no doubt that the Colonel is a great deal stronger with the Republican voters than are the candidates for delegates at large pledged to his nomination.

It was said here tonight that with the rival aspirants for places on the Massachusetts "Big Four" not pledged to any candidate, and in a position to swing to the Colonel should the situation when the Republican National Convention meets point to him as the logical leader in the fight, thousands of sincere admirers of the Colonel would vote for the unpledged delegates as a matter of party regularity, and trust to the leaders to adopt the proper course when the delegates reached Chicago.

The managers in the "unpledged" campaign have taken pains to convey to the voters the idea that the Colonel would be sure to get a square deal at Chicago from the unpledged delegation, and they have pointed to the fact that Senator Lodge, a warm friend of Colonel Roosevelt, is at the head of the unpledged Big Four.

The Roosevelt Big Four is composed of Grafton D. Cushing, Charles Sumner Bird, Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, and State Senator Robert M. Washburn.

The "unpledged" delegation is composed of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Governor Samuel W. McCall, Senator John W. Weeks, and ex-Senator W. Murray Crane, the Republican boss of Massachusetts.

An unbiased eleventh hour forecast places the Second, Sixth, Ninth, and Fourteenth Congressional District surely in the Roosevelt column, which would give the Colonel at least eight out of the thirty-two district delegates.

FORD MOVEMENT IN OHIO.

Peace Advocates Inject His Name on Eve of Presidential Primaries.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 24.—A movement started by pacifists to scratch out the name of ex-Senator Burton in tomorrow's Presidential preference primaries and write in the name of Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, is the subject of much speculation in political circles here tonight. It is asserted that an organization of several thousand has been built up. It is not planned to defeat Burton, it is said, but to make a showing that will convince the Washington authorities that Ohio favors peace.

The Republican Presidential preference ticket bears only the names of ex-Senator Burton of Ohio and William Grant Webster, Chicago attorney. President Wilson's name is the only one on the Democratic Presidential preference ticket.

Ex-Governors Campbell, Cox, and Harmon, with Senator Pomerene, are the Democratic candidates for Delegates at Large to the St. Louis Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 24.—On the eve of the Ohio Presidential primaries the name of Henry Ford has been injected into the fight. The movement is fostered by "The People's Church" of this city, of which Herbert Bigelow is the head. Bigelow is a follower of Henry George, single tax advocate; the late Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, and "Golden Rule" Jones of Toledo.

"Henry Ford for President and Peace" is the caption of an advertisement published in the name of "The People's Church" which appeared on two different pages of every issue of all the Cincinnati papers today.

"Scratch the name printed on your Presidential primary ballot and write in the name of Henry Ford with a cross before it," reads the advertisement. "This will make Washington, D. C., sit up and take notice that you are against war."

PRIMARIES IN JERSEY TODAY.

Roosevelt Sentiment in Three Districts Only.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 24.—The State-wide Presidential primary election tomorrow is expected to bring out only a light vote. President Wilson will cast his ballot at Princeton.

The polls will be open from 1 until 9 P. M. The voting will be for the naming of the delegates at large, alternate delegates at large, and district and alternate delegates to both the Republican and Democratic National Conventions. The Progressives named their delegates at the recent State Convention.

In the candidacy of the Rev. I. W. L. Roundtree for alternate delegate at large on the Republican ticket the "Big Four" ticket has its only contest. Mr. Roundtree, who is the negro politician-preacher of this city, makes the fifth aspirant for the four places to be filled. There also is one Hughes candidate, Franklin W. Fort, a son of John Franklin Fort, in the Ninth District.

ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT

The next four years will probably be the most critical that America has seen since 1861. It will be no time for a President of uncertain action.

We will need a leader whose convictions are above party lines, whose wisdom is practical, whose actions are sure, whose creed and deed are straight Americanism.

On the Vital Issues of the coming campaign patriotic men of all parties can agree. They are:

National honor; peace with the world; firm and wise methods for insuring peace without sacrifice of American rights; preparation for the industrial conflict following the war.

The one big question, therefore, is,—Who is the man that as President can best handle these momentous propositions with certainty and success?

A rapidly increasing number of men, from all parties, believe that the answer is—Theodore Roosevelt.

It is needful to convince the National Conventions, and Roosevelt himself, that the country demands him. Quick action is necessary. If you agree with this, cut out, sign and send us the coupon below.

Roosevelt Non-Partisan League

A Union of Patriotic American Citizens of all Parties

PATRIOTIC citizens of all parties who believe that Theodore Roosevelt is the man America needs as President during the next four years are invited to become members of the Roosevelt Non-Partisan League.

There are no membership fees or dues. Money, however, is required for Publicity, and voluntary contributions of from $1.00 to $10.00 are earnestly asked for.

While he was President, Theodore Roosevelt stood for American honor without sacrifice of rights, for unbroken peace through wise diplomacy, for the protection of American citizens the world over.

This is the story we wish to tell the people everywhere, so that they will realize that no other American is so well fitted by character and experience to lead our country during the four critical years ahead.

bring about a satisfactory coalition of the Republican and Progressive Parties.

The Roosevelt backers assert that they will have at the Republican Convention anywhere from 300 to 350 delegates who will vote for Roosevelt and for no one else; men who could not be won over to Justice Hughes.

The Progressives and Roosevelt supporters in the Republican Party from the first narrowed the fight for the Republican nomination down to Hughes and Roosevelt. They say the stand they have now taken against Justice Hughes has left the situation in a dangerous condition for any sort of harmony at Chicago when the two conventions meet unless the Republicans will accept Colonel Roosevelt.

The Colonel was in much better health today. He went to New York this morning to consult Dr. H. Holbrook Curtis, the throat specialist, and was informed that he would probably be in good shape to deliver his addresses at the end of the week if he took a complete rest. He will consult the specialist again tomorrow and Wednesday, but will not go to his offices before Thursday.

SEEKS CO-OPERATION FOR T. R.

League Advertises for Supporters to Send In Their Names.

The headquarters of the Roosevelt Non-Partisan League at 12 Vanderbilt Avenue will probably begin to buzz with business shortly because this morning newspapers will contain advertisements asking all those who favor Mr. Roosevelt's nomination for President by the Republican Convention to send in their names, their politics, and their addresses. The appeal to procure the active co-operation of men of all parties in the work of nominating Mr. Roosevelt is attractive.

Time is short, the advertisement points out, and those who see peace, quiet, and prosperity in the wake of Mr. Roosevelt are urged to use their influence to the end that the national convention may be convinced that he is the man who ought to be nominated.

The league has been in operation for some time, quietly feeling its way by the sending out of literature and carefully weighing the quality and quantity of the replies that were received. That these replies have been of a satisfactory character is shown by the growth of the work into the realms of newspaper advertising.

It was said by a representative of the league at its headquarters that many influential men were behind it ready to spend their time and money in making it a factor in the campaign if Mr. Roosevelt is the candidate for President.

Guy Emerson is the league's Secretary, and his name is the only one that so far appears publicly as being actively identified with the new movement.

YUAN'S NEW CABINET DENOUNCED IN CHINA

Though Premier Is Certain Troubles Will End, 216 Assemblymen Object.

RETIREMENT IS DEMANDED

Compromise with Ministers Meeting Outside Palace Gates Is Not Enough.

SHANGHAI, April 24.—Two hundred and sixteen members of the National Assembly met here last night and unanimously adopted a resolution denouncing President Yuan Shih-kai's mandate creating a Constitutional Cabinet, and refusing to accept any resolution of the political situation that included Yuan Shih-kai as President.

It is understood that two prominent foreigners recently approached leaders of the Southern party asking guarantees for the safety and property of Yuan Shih-kai and his supporters if the President retires; but the Republicans demand the impeachment of Yuan Shih-kai and his coterie of private advisers for high treason and also that they render acount of unaccounted public funds alleged to aggregate 200,000,000 taels.

PEKING, April 24.—Confidence in the ability of the new Chinese Cabinet to restore peace was expressed today by Tuan Chi-jui, who on Saturday accepted the Premiership, in an interview granted to the correspondent of The Associated Press. The first task of the Cabinet, he said, would be to restore tranquility.

"Yunnan (in which the uprising started and Kwei-chow provinces undoubtedly will fall in line with the reorganized Government," Tuan Chi-jui continued. "Tsai Ao (the rebel leader) is very reasonable.

"Feng Kwo-chang (commander of the Imperial forces in the Yang-tse-kiang region) is now settling the difficulties in the Yang-tse-kiang provinces and doubtless will succeed in his efforts. Kwang-tung is the only province in which fighting is now going on.

"Some of the demands made in the southern provinces are unreasonable, but I believe everything will soon be adjusted."

In reply to a question regarding the respective powers of the President and the new Cabinet, the Premier said:

"China now has a responsible Cabinet and Premier. Full power lies in their hands, not in those of the President. The Cabinet will move outside the palace grounds, and only matters of the greatest importance will be referred to the President for discussion.

"The military hereafter will be under the Minister of War. It has been found that it was not good for the country to have the army solely under the President. The new Parliament will promulgate a constitution."

The new Cabinet is constituted as follows:

Premier and Minister of War—Tuan Chi-jui.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—Lu Cheng-hsiang.
Minister of Interior—Wang Yih-ting.
Minister of Finance—Sun Pao-chi.
Minister of Marine—Admiral Liu Kuang-hsun.
Minister of Education—Chang Kuo-kan.
Minister of Commerce—Ching Pang-ping.
Minister of Communications—Tsao Yulin.
Minister of Justice—Chang Tsung-hsiang.
Chief of the General Staff—Wang Shih-chen.

The first formal meeting of the new Cabinet with President Yuan Shih-kai will be held tomorrow.

MAY SEND MILK TO GERMANY

Dr. von Mach Would Equip Ship and Defy British Blockade.

The proposal that an American ship commanded by an American Captain, "who is not a coward," be loaded with milk for German babies and sent from New York harbor with its mission widely advertised and unquestionable was made yesterday by Dr. Edmund von Mach, Executive Chairman of the Citizen's Committee for Food Shipments, speaking before a meeting of the American Women of German Descent at the Hotel Astor.

The speaker said that assurances that the ship could be legally sent and would be given clearance papers had been sought from Secretary Lansing, and that if the Secretary replied in the affirmative, the next step would be to equip and dispatch the vessel.

"We will send the ship," said Dr. von Mach, "under American colors and the milk for distribution under the supervision of the American Red Cross so that there will be no fear that the milk will reach the German army, and we will obtain such advertisement for the mission that the whole public sentiment of America will be with it. Sent under such conditions, I believe that the ship would go through to its destination."

At the end of the meeting resolutions introduced by Mrs. Edith Reiffert, President of the organization, were unanimously passed. The resolutions said in part:

"Be it resolved, That the American Women of German Descent request, nay, demand, that our Government, the Government of the United States of America, notify the British Government that the shipment of all Red Cross supplies to any of the belligerents must and shall cease until such time when the British Government and its allies should signify their willingness to observe the principles of international law and permit the American Red Cross to make shipments of supplies impartially to any of the belligerents, lest otherwise a cloud of suspicion be cast on our declared neutrality and avowed position as the protector and champion of humanity."

The resolutions will be sent to the Secretary of State, the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, the two New York Senators, the Speaker of the House, and the President of the United States.

FRANCE GRATEFUL TO US.

She Fully Appreciates America's Generosity, Educator Asserts.

PARIS, April 24.—"Some persons have dared to say that France did not appreciate the brotherly affection and inexhaustible kindness of the Americans," writes Professor Victor Basche of the Sorbonne University, in the course of a long article in the Petit Parisien reviewing the work of various American war organizations in France.

"It is a monstrous calumny," he adds. "The truth is that France's gratitude equals America's charity, that she will never forget the sacred debt she contracted toward her sister republic, that the links binding the United States of America to France, always close, are strengthened by our gratitude and that henceforth, more widely than ever, our schools and our hearts will be opened to America's citizens."

During the life of the mortgage we look after the taxes, interest and fire insurance. WILL PUT $6,000,000 IN NEW HOTEL HERE

E. M. Statler Says His Company Is to Erect Building of at Least 2,000 Rooms.

NO SITE SELECTED AS YET

Both Pennsylvania Terminal and Grand Central Neighborhoods Under Consideration.

New York is to have a new 2,000-room hotel, to cost from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000, to be one of the Statler chain, according to an announcement made last evening by E. M. Statler, an officer of the hotel company.

The site probably will be near the Grand Central Terminal, although the neighborhood of the Pennsylvania Station also is being considered. Negotiations have been under way for several weeks, but have not as yet been completed. Mr. Statler has been staying at the Hotel Belmont, and when seen there last evening confirmed the rumors current about the proposed hotel.

"Our Board of Directors," said he, "voted on Feb. 15 last that they would build a hotel in the City of New York. We are operating large hotels in Buffalo, Cleveland, and Detroit, and are building one in St. Louis. When the decision is reached to build a hotel in a certain city the matter is settled.

"We are in the business of building hotels and are applying modern business methods to such enterprises. I regret that I cannot, at this time, announce what the site will be, for the reason that we do not yet know ourselves. The enterprise is not in any way connected with any other proposed hotels in the vicinity of the Grand Central Station.

"The structure will have a site of from 40,000 to 50,000 square feet in area. There will be at least 2,000 rooms and perhaps 2,500. As is well known, the rates of our hotels are moderate. We operate only large hotels, because, with houses of smaller size, it would be impossible to give the rates which we offer to the public.

"Our company decided to come to New York because we saw the opportunity for a hotel of the class which we operate, and we hope soon to be able to make a definite announcement as to site."

There have been within the last few days several reports about hotels to be built in the neighborhood of the Grand Central Station. THE NEW YORK TIMES on Sunday printed the announcement that interests connected with the Hotel Biltmore were preparing to build a hotel at the corner of Lexington Avenue and Forty-second Street, on the site of the Asylum for Crippled Children. Several other rumors have been current concerning great hotels in that neighborhood.

EGYPT TRIP WAITE'S PLAN.

Woman Was to Accompany Poisoner, Prosecutor Says.

In seeking to learn just how much information Dr. Arthur Warren Waite confided to Mrs. Horton, his studio companion, concerning his "plans for the future," Assistant District Attorney Dooling called before him yesterday Mrs. Horton's friend, Mrs. Dorothy von Palmenberg. After his interview with Mrs. von Palmenberg, the Prosecutor said he was convinced that Dr. Waite intended to flee to Egypt with a "woman companion," after he had obtained some of the fortune which would be available through the death of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Peck.

Mrs. von Palmenberg, who at one time lived with Mrs. Horton in West Eleventh Street and got to know her very intimately, told the Assistant District Attorney of many conversations. Mr. Dooling says she told him that Mrs. Horton manifested much interest in germs and the uses to which they might be put. Not only did she accompany Dr. Waite on many occasions when he purchased drugs and germs, but according to Mrs. von Palmenberg, it was Mrs. Horton who bought the sulphonal which Dr. Waite consumed in such large quantities as a sleeping potion on the night before his arrest.

Dr. Waite's case was assigned for trial before Judge Crain in Part V. of General Sessions. Judge Crain sits during the month of May, but it is understood that Walter R. Deuel, counsel for Dr. Waite, will apply for an extension of time. He does not expect to be ready for trial before June 1.

A French Chef in your kitchen

In the culinary world there is no word so eloquent as "French."

Franco-American Soups are French. French in their delicacy, their finish, their originality, their variety, their sheer food value.

Not every one can boast a French chef in the kitchen. But to serve these soups on your table is to relish the products of a past master in all the culinary arts and graces of the French. Such soups cannot be duplicated in the home kitchen, because they represent the genius of one man.

Why try to duplicate them? Since you can serve them without the slightest tax on your own kitchen, why isn't that the easy and the sensible thing to do? Your grocer has them.

400 Miles From Home, Fire Got Us; Ruined Our Car; Spoiled Our Tour

Touring. Home, 400 miles behind.

"Devil take business," said I, and sniffed the country air.

"A month of this and I'll be a new man."

Bang! Went the carburetor.

"What's the matter?" I demanded, as George stopped the car with a jerk.

"Jump," he yelled. "It's on fire."

We jumped not a second too soon. Quick as a flash the whole car was one roaring flame.

George sprinted for the nearest house. Too late. Before he got half way there the new machine was gone. Scrap-iron.

"Good-bye, Tour," I moaned. "Only last week I saw a whole window full of those Pyrene Fire Extinguishers and didn't stop to buy."

A Pyrene gun would have stopped the fire dead; saved us from the danger of being burned alive; saved the car; saved the tour; saved my disposition.

It took us two weeks to select a new car—two months more to get delivery. We were without a car when we needed one most—right in the middle of the touring season.

Take a tip from me and don't start anywhere in your car without Pyrene.

All merchants are displaying Pyrene this week. Don't let it go by without buying one for your car and one for your home.

MISS KELLER 'HEARS' TENOR

Caruso Sings, and, Though Blind and Deaf, Her Fingers Feel Aria.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, April 24.—Helen Keller, the world's most famous blind and deaf woman, placed her fingers on the lips and throat of Enrico Caruso, the Metropolitan tenor, in his rooms in the Georgian Terrace Hotel today and "heard" him sing the lament of Samson from Saint-Saëns's opera, "Samson et Delila."

Through the medium of her marvelously sensitive fingers the matchless voice of the great tenor was transmitted to her soul, and as she sat and "listened," her lips apart, her sightless eyes wet with tears, she whispered over and over again: "Wonderful, wonderful."

Caruso sang the aria in the first scene of the last act of the opera and sang with power that brought tears to the eyes of other Metropolitan singers who were in the room. And as he sang his voice grew husky with the pathos of the song.

"Though I cannot see your face, I can feel the pathos of your song," said Miss Keller.

And Caruso said, with his lips against her hands: "In your fingers I can feel your soul. In your blue eyes your soul is shining."

Miss Keller almost collapsed, so powerfully had the voice of the tenor stirred her.

RICHMOND'S NOISY PROTEST

27 Factory Whistles Blow in Anti-Garbage Dump Din.

An unusual method was resorted to by twenty-seven of Staten Island's leading manufacturers, last night, to voice their protest against the action of Mayor Mitchel and other members of the Board of Estimate, who are trying to force the garbage "dump" upon the people of Staten Island. For twenty minutes, from 7 o'clock, last night blasts from the twenty-seven manufactories and mills continued. The plants that were not equipped with whistles used huge bells and other loud-sounding apparatus and appliances, with the result that the people of the island never heard such a din—not even on New Year's Eve celebrations.

This protest was a fitting climax, the manufacturers said, to the campaign that has been waged by them against the erection of the garbage "dump" in their midst, and occurring on the eve of the visit of the people of Staten Island to Mayor Mitchel, was meant to draw the attention of the citizens to the visit to the Mayor today. The noise caused many persons to rush from their homes, believing that the island was burning up.

LOYAL GERMAN BORN STAND BY PRESIDENT

William Lustgarten, Head of League of 10,000, Denounces Pro-Kaiserism.

WILL MEET IT WITH VOTES

Says Koelbles, Weismanns, and Ridders Do Not Speak for All Americans of German Birth.

William Lustgarten, President of the recently formed Loyal American League at 68 William Street, said yesterday that it had reached an enrollment of 10,000 names of men of foreign birth, principally of German descent. He said the league members did not approve of any act of pro-German propaganda here nor of the idea of dual citizenship. In reply to the announcement in the morning newspapers that the German-American vote was being organized against candidates who were not in opposition to President Wilson or his policies, he said:

"The members of the Loyal American League have no sympathy with any movement of this kind. While our organization has not been formed for political purposes I have no hesitation in saying that we shall adopt a political program to meet any political movement which has for its object the expression of pro-Germanism as against American ideals and democracy. Above all we stand for loyalty to President Wilson at this time and for the American issues which he represents."

The names of Victor Ridder, brother of Bernard Ridder, editor of the New York Staats-Zeitung, and Henry Weismann, President of the German-American Alliance, were mentioned in the reports of the organization of the German-American vote, and in the beginning of his statement Mr. Lustgarten, who is an attorney, made this reference to their activities:

"At a time like this, it is well to emphasize the fact that the Koelbles, Weismanns and Ridders, who have fostered the various pro-Kaiser societies, do not speak for all Americans of German birth. It is not necessary to denounce them, for the platform upon which they have joined to defeat any candidate at the comms election not in sympathy with the success of German arms and the preservation of the Kaiser on his throne is in the very exposure of its alien aims, its own, scathing denunciation.

Would Defeat Kaiser Candidates.

"The large mass of citizens of foreign birth, and particularly of German origin, have no sympathy with the outrageous political intrigues of these men. We denounce the attempt to inject the test of loyalty to the Kaiser as a criterion of the political character of candidates for public office.

"Ex-Governor Colquitt of Texas should be beaten by the votes of loyal Americans of foreign birth as a fitting rebuke for having trifled with that which is treason in spirit, even if it has not yet quite thrust itself beyond the tolerance of the law. Every candidate who is indorsed by these German imperialistic loyalists or who truckles to their support should be beaten by the voters who are, in spirit as well as in birth or naturalization, Americans.

"This is the one time when every instinct of loyal Americanism demands that ex of foreign birth or origin be not misled by the trickeries and intrigues of demagogues serving the imperial double eagle of Germany instead of the single-headed eagle of this free United States.

"Sentiment and sympathy with German hills and rivers, its poetry, its music, and its learning and its intimate home customs must not be confused with the loyalty to its imperialistic and feudalistic political institutions. There are thousands of Germans who are not blind to the fact that it is this same feudal political German Kaiserism that drove Carl Schurz and some of the ablest minds of Germany as fugitives out of the land of their birth. It was men such as those German fugitives of sixty years ago who found refuge in the United States and established the German-American colonization.

To Stand by the President.

"The Loyal American League is composed of such men. It is the answer we make to the Koelbles and Weismanns and the pro-Kaiser neutrality leagues, financed in the dark, whose naturalization is a convenient cloak to conceal conspiracy and intrigue inspired in the interest of an alien, liberty-hating feudal monarchy.

"It was well said that no man can serve two masters. The recent exposure of the political intrigues of the pro-Kaiser hyphenates to destroy the political life of all candidates who do not accept pro-Kaiserism is injecting an element into our politics too dangerous to tolerate.

"Now is the time when it is necessary to stand by the President, whatever our birth or politics. This is a crisis, big in the history of world affairs. It is no time for traitors to the country to be tolerated in any political camp of any political complexion. It must be made apparent that these Koelbles and Weismanns and Ridders do not represent the whole German contingent, that they are the unnatural exceptions, who exploit disgraceful un-American political intrigues for personal or alien advantage in one of the gravest hours this country has ever faced.

"And this I have said speaking as the representative of the Loyal American League, composed of thousands of Americans who wear the badge of hyphenation as an honorable family distinction and not as the livery of an alien imperialism."

According to Mr. Lustgarten, the politics of the individuals composing the league are unknown to him. Its members are enrolled in the States of California, Wisconsin, Illinois, and New York, and in lesser numbers in other States, but he believes that the league represents the attitude of many German-Americans not identified with it. Mr. Lustgarten is an independent Democrat, and says he has never been connected with any political organization. He is a member of the City Club and has been active in civil service reform movements.

Ridder Denies Interview.

Under the caption "Nailing Another Lie," the evening edition of the Staats-Zeitung yesterday published the following editorial relating to the article in the morning newspapers concerning the organization of the German-American vote in this country:

The extraordinary newspaper conspiracy designed to discredit everything connected with Americans of German origin has reached its culmination in the manufactured interviews supposed to have been given out by Victor Ridder, as published in the morning newspaper of today. These interviews are absolutely false.

The World in its Sunday edition tried to prove that the German-American vote throughout the country was united for the purpose of electing only anti-Wilson men. The World then devoted three columns to proving that its premises were wrong by showing a difference of opinion in the State of Texas as to the Senatorship and by showing that the Staats-Zeitung supported the candidacy of Congressman Henry, who is a friend of President Wilson. Furthermore, we have never corresponded in any manner whatsoever with ex-Senator Colquitt as to this or any other question.

Great joy is in store this morning for 6,238 boys and girls whose lives are not overcrowded with that elusive commodity, for this is the day on which the circus performance given annually in their honor will take place. At 10 o'clock Barnum & Bailey's performers will go through all their stunts expressly for the youngsters gathered from sixty-one charitable institutions in the city.

SAYS CITY NEGLECTS ITS ORPHAN CHARGES

Attorney Bowers Scores the Mayor in Summing Up at Charities Inquiry.

HOTCHKISS MAKES REPLY

Lawyers for Both Sides Conclude Their Arguments—Strong Adjourns to Prepare a Report.

The inquiry into the State Board of Charities before Commissioner Charles H. Strong at the Bar Association was concluded yesterday with the summing up of the evidence by William H. Hotchkiss, counsel for the City Department of Charities, and John M. Bowers, counsel for the State Board of Charities. The summing up consumed the whole day's session.

Mr. Bowers, who spoke first, asserted at the outset that Mayor Mitchel could have compelled any improvements in the institutions whenever the city desired, and, he added, "the duty was clearly on the City of New York." He quoted the law to show that while it was the duty of the State Board to inspect and supervise the institutions used by the city for boarding out children, there was no duty incumbent upon the board in the way of administration or management. He said:

"In the sense that the public funds are sought to be given to certain institutions and not to others of the same class, this brings us closer to socialism than any of the other fads of recent years. The generations of Americans since the days of the Revolution have received no such consideration. Indeed, for the most part, the foremost men of the nation obtained as children little but the ordinary grammar school education.

"In a financial way the standard proposed by the Department of Charities is shown to be absolutely prohibitive, and it would prevent the maintenance of a great number of child-caring institutions. What, then, is the meaning of this so-called child-caring movement? It interests some enthusiasts like Doherty, but its true backing is to be found in those who have in mind the secularization of the child-caring institutions—physical and mental development, casting aside the development of the religious element of the child, and hoping to develop its morals by methods other than the teaching of religion.

"The board has not felt, and there is no reason that its members should feel, that it needed a large force of inspectors to watch the housekeeping methods of hundreds of private charitable institutions. That was the duty of their Boards of Managers. The municipal authorities which employed such institutions were also under obligation to see that the institutions were properly maintained.

Mr. Bowers took up one by one the persons connected with the city department. Of Mayor Mitchel he said: "The evidence of the Mayor and the two reports cited are so greatly at variance as to indicate grave carelessness on his part in making accusation against others.

"Commissioner Kingsbury claims conditions, to his knowledge, to have been bad in many of the private institutions employed by the city, and yet, during two years and three months, only investigates some of these institutions. Though alleging the conditions aforesaid in twenty-six institutions, he continues to certify their bills for payment."

He told of alleged attempts to check the city's investigation, and intimated that attempts had been made to check the present inquiry before Commissioner Strong. He called the charge that the methods of the City Department were idealistic was ridiculous. William Rhinelander Stewart, President of the State Board, he said, had recommended in reports the same things which were now condemned as "idealistic."

Commissioner Strong adjourned the investigation, subject to the call of the chair. He may make an investigation of his own on some of the phases of the inquiry before reporting to the Governor.

Swann Throws Out Instrument the Governor Had While District Attorney.

PERKINS USED IT ALSO

Stenographer in Prosecutor's Office Took Down Conversations Supposed to be Private.

District Attorney Swann has had torn out of his office a detectaphone system installed and said to have been much used by District Attorney Whitman. The detectaphone was also in operation last year when Charles S. Perkins held the office by appointment from Mr. Whitman when the latter became Governor.

District Attorney Swann threw out the detectaphone because he believed its use a violation of the personal rights of persons who believe they are talking to the District Attorney alone.

The detectaphone, as installed and used by Mr. Whitman, hung beneath a desk in a small private room directly in the rear of the District Attorney's main office. There is no entrance to this room except from the District Attorney's office. It leads to a lavatory. Besides the desk beneath which the detectaphone hung there are a table and four chairs crowding it.

Wires from the detectaphone led along the wall through the partition into the District Attorney's office and to a receiving instrument at a high-backed desk in the corner, the back of which was turned outward so that the stenographer who sat there would not be seen by any one passing through the District Attorney's office on an invitation into the inner room. The receiver could be regulated as to loudness.

According to old attachés of the District Attorney's office, Mr. Whitman used the detectaphone much during the Becker trial, having in the little back room most of his talks with the State's witnesses and persons whom he would have had as State witnesses. It was also said that often the then District Attorney would ask to be excused while in conversation with two or more possible witnesses or suspects, with the result that what they confided to one another soon thereafter became the property of the prosecuting officer of New York County.

District Attorney Swann expressed surprise yesterday when he discovered it was known that he had torn out his predecessors' detectaphone.

"Yes," said he, "I tore the thing out the second day I was in office. Not only that, but I ordered it taken entirely out of the building."

The District Attorney was then asked his reason for dispensing with what might appear a useful instrument.

"I don't want any such things around here," he said. "Other District Attorneys might have found them useful, but I would not. I believe that when any man, even a criminal, talks to me in confidence there should be no other listeners."

Judge Swann made it very plain that he did not wish his action taken as a criticism of any other District Attorneys. It was with him, he said, merely a question of ethics.

"I don't wish anything that might look unlike a person was getting an open deal in this office," he said. "There was an instrument here, a complicated thing, that I could talk through and hear from any person in the building by simple conversation. I was afraid some one might take it for a detectaphone or something of the sort, and so I threw it out."

District Attorney Swann then sent an assistant for the instrument, which proved to be a large desk telephone-dictaphone.

"The simple old-fashioned telephone will do for me," said the District Attorney as he said good-bye.

A WILDE COMEDY SMARTLY REVIVED

"A Woman of No Importance," with Margaret Anglin and Holbrook Blinn, at the Fulton.

ITS WIT SEEMS UNDIMMED

A WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE—Oscar Wilde's comedy revived by Margaret Anglin, at the Fulton.

Mrs. Arbuthnot.....Miss Anglin

"A Woman of No Importance," one of the four famous society comedies by Oscar Wilde—the second in order of composition and the third, perhaps, in order of merit—was revived last evening at the Fulton Theatre. It is given now with Margaret Anglin in the rôle Rose Coghlan was the first to play in this country, and with Holbrook Blinn as Lord Illingworth, the part that fell to Sir Herbert Tree when the play was first presented at the Haymarket in London some twenty-three years ago, and also when it was revived by him at His Majesty's Theatre in the late Spring of 1907.

In all these years when so many changes have been at work in the theatre, the flashing wit which plays in the dialogue of this comedy has lost none of its lustre, and even the stale, outworn theatricalism of which the piece is also curiously compounded takes on vitality by virtue of Miss Anglin's admirable performance as Mrs. Arbuthnot. The audience that made its way to the Fulton last evening found "A Woman of No Importance" interesting, for one reason or another, from beginning to end.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" is a perfect thing, sheer gayety from first to last, but the other three plays have two separate and increasingly discordant elements, the brilliance which he lavished on so much of the idle dialogue on the one hand and on the other the hollow emotionalism and theatrical trickery which he handled contemptuously and which was later to come more and more into disrepute.

The one was his own contribution to the theatre of his day, the other he borrowed under the impression that it was necessary for financial success. The one is as fresh today as if it were a product of yesterday. Brilliants do not rust. The other shows signs of decay, and occasionally these confront you disconcertingly, so that there are fleeting moments when you feel as though you were gazing upon an imposing mummy, all ablaze with incongruous but imperishable jewels.

These moments come oftener in "An Ideal Husband" and "A Woman of No Importance" than they do in "Lady Windermere's Fan," which Miss Anglin revived with so much success about two years ago this time. It takes acting of a very high order to quicken the moribund portions of Wilde's drama, and it is only the fine, glowing work of Miss Anglin which keeps the fourth act from crumbling at the touch. That is why she is such a tower of strength in the present revival.

With the real fire, skillfully, discreetly, and reservedly used, she imparts something of the old tingle to the "big" scenes. It is somewhat ironically true that to Miss Anglin in her two Wilde revivals has fallen little or none of those very portions of the plays which make them so immensely entertaining in 1916, which, indeed, make them worth reviving at all. The keen pleasure to be found in them today is not in Mrs. Erlynne or Mrs. Arbuthnot. It is in eavesdropping on the conversation of two duchesses: it is in the sparkle of the screeds of dialogue written just for the sparkle and nothing else.

Wilde, says W. B. Yeats, was "incomparably the finest talker of his epoch," and it is just to hear him (not his lifeless puppets) talk that you read his plays and go to see them. This is Wilde at his best, and much of his best is in this famous, nonchalant first act of "A Woman of No Importance." In this act, he himself said complacently, there was absolutely no action at all. "It was a perfect act," he added. At least it is immensely entertaining.

Mr. Blinn makes much of it as do Annie Hughes, who is quite Marie Tempestuous as Mrs. Allonby, Marguerite St. John, and that fine artist, Fannie Addison Pitt. Mr. Blinn is dominant as Lord Illingworth without suggesting any of that accomplished elegance, that languid, impersonal, polished, insulting indifference it seems certain Wilde had in mind when he wrote the part.

Mr. Blinn's complete composure is of value to the dramatic moments of the play, but it does seem to derive a little from the ever present suggestion of great physical force, and, curiously enough, this robs the third act climax of some of its thrust. The young actor, who is not precisely engaging as Gerald, is so comparatively frail you cannot help feeling that Mrs. Arbuthnot need not be so alarmed when he rushes toward Lord Illingworth with assault, battery, and assassination in his eye.

Mrs. Arbuthnot brings down the big curtain with her intervening cry of "You must not kill him. He is your father!" or words to that effect, but you are disturbed by an inner conviction that her heroics are unnecessary. This Gerald would be like the waves washing fretfully against the rock-bound coast of Maine. He would simply carom off this Lord Illingworth. However, it is nothing to get excited about, and "A Woman of No Importance" is one of the things to see—decidedly.

Mrs. Horton Sings in Vaudeville.

Mrs. Margaret Horton, who figured in the Waite poison case, began a ten weeks' engagement in vaudeville yesterday at Loew's American Theatre. So great was the desire to see the studio companion of the story that occupied such an important place in the papers a few weeks ago that several hundred eager ones were turned away in the afternoon because there was not room for them to stand.

Mrs. Horton sang several songs, for which she played her own accompaniment. She displayed a good natural voice that showed lack of training, but that has possibilities.

300 OLD ADMIRERS DINE THE SOTHERNS

Edwin Markham Reads a Poem and Ames Praises the Guests for Playing Shakespeare.

Some 300 men and women of that vast multitude of admirers of E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, who in private life is Mrs. Sothern, gathered to do the stars honor in the ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night. The occasion was a dinner given under the auspices of the Civic Forum as a testimonial to the Sotherns upon their permanent retirement from the stage. Mrs. Sothern has not acted within the last two years, while Mr. Sothern will leave the stage after a brief engagement beginning Saturday night for the benefit of the Actors' Fund.

Representatives of all the arts and of society were at the dinner and later, when the playhouses had closed, many professional associates of the distinguished couple joined the assemblage.

At the table with the guests of honor were Dr. John H. Finley, who was toastmaster; Edwin Markham, Agnes Repplier, Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, Maud Ballington Booth, Augustus Thomas, Winthrop Ames, Otto H. Kahn, and Dr. Talcott Williams. Mr. Finley's words of introduction were in blank verse. Indeed versification vied with puns on the names of the speakers for first place in the oratory. It was Mr. Thomas who remarked late in the evening that he wondered what would have been the general subject of the speeches if there had been no names susceptible to punning.

Praises the Sotherns' Courage.

Mr. Markham read a poem on Shakespeare, which was the least he could do since Mr. Finley introduced him as Prospero Markham. Winthrop Ames was Jacques Ames, and he talked upon the alleged decadence of the drama as instituted one of such melancholy mein. The Director of the late New Theatre made a careful analysis of the drama of the last twenty years, and told why it appeared to be decadent by way of emphasizing the great courage displayed by the Sotherns in electing to present Shakespearean drama when it no doubt would have been easier to cling to modern plays. Mr. Ames spoke from the viewpoint of the men behind the curtain who were in a position to realize the measure of this courage.

"The intelligent people who occasionally sit in front of the curtain," he said, "intelligent people like you here tonight, have fallen into the habit of berating us pretty constantly. They say the stage is degenerating—at least that it is not on the whole keeping up with them intellectually."

Mr. Ames said he believed that any broad statement that the stage in our day had gone backward was far too sweeping. The subtler plays of Augustus Thomas, the plays of the worthy, of Shaw, and of Barrie disproved this statement. As further proof he challenged his hearers to scan the list of plays produced at Wallack's, and, if their titles did not convince them to seek out the scripts themselves in the library. "They can be found there," he said, "and the movie people have already found them.

"I believe there are more good plays produced now and, on the whole, more competently acted than there ever have been," he continued. "And yet those of us behind the curtain are the first to acknowledge that something seems very wrong with our stage, and that intelligent people have every right to grumble.

Good Plays Submerged by Rubbish.

"I think we shall diagnose the trouble more accurately if we say the average isn't as high as it ought to be, that good plays are so submerged and overwhelmed by the flood of inferior of rubbish they seem to have got lost in the shuffle altogether and so give the stage the general air of retrogression. A constant diet of ten trashy plays to one good one is what has disgruntled and alienated so many of the more intelligent theatregoers. Neither the audience nor the managers are to blame."

Mr. Ames said the average quality of plays had declined in the last twenty years because of four things—the democracy of America, the public schools, prosperity, and the labor unions. These things had conspired to create a vast new audience, innocent of dramatic standards and of culture to whom a play was just a show.

"We of the theatre, my dear Mr. and Mrs. Sothern," Mr. Ames said in conclusion, "know that no other actor or actress has done so much as you for the American stage in our time. You leave us an example of lives of noble service.

"Take the well-
The elements be kind to thee, and make
Thy spirits of all comforts."

Miss Repplier and Mrs. Robinson gave reminiscences of their early impressions of the theatre. To Miss Repplier the going of these players seemed a greater pity since they left behind only "an arid waste of plays like sermons, and not orthodox sermons, either, plays that are pathological lectures, or sweet little plays of the kindergarten."

Thomas Predicts Their Return.

Mr. Thomas said that no man stood as high in the theatre, and no man had Mr. Sothern's record for decent doings. He predicted that like other great players they must come back. But this Mr. Sothern, when he arose, denied. Mrs. Sothern's health precluded that, he said, and he could not play with an actress inferior to her nor would he care to play with one her superior. Mrs. Sothern read from the Sonnets of Shakespeare, and Dr. Talcott Williams, Otto H. Kahn, and Sir Herbert Tree were the other speakers.

Among those at the dinner were William Norman Guthrie, Norman Hapgood, Robert Underwood Johnson, Charles Rann Kennedy, Kathryn Kidder, Joyce Kilmer, F. F. Mackay, Dudley Field Malone, Marcus M. Marks, Brander Matthews, Edith Wynne Matthison, George Haven Putnam, Franklin H. Sargent, Albert Shaw, Mary Shaw, Isaac N. Seligman, Clara B. Spence, Oscar S. Straus, Henry W. Taft, Ida M. Tarbell, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Edward J. Wheeler, Gertrude Atherton, George P. Baker, David Belasco, Edwin H. Blashfield, William H. Bliss, Eva R. Ingersoll Brown, Henry Clews, and Cornelius C. Clifford.

In Carnegie Hall tonight an open meeting of the Civic Forum in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Sothern will be held.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

H. H. Frazee produced a new farce, entitled "A Pair of Queens," Sunday night in the Alexandra Theatre, Toronto. In the cast were Joseph Sauley, Mark Smith, Maude Eburne, Hugh Cameron, Francis McGinn, Ola Humphrey, Otto Hauerbach, A. Seymour Brown, and Harry Lewis.

"The Yellow Jacket," the play by George C. Hazleton and J. Harry Benrimo, first acted here at the Fulton Theatre some years ago, was produced at the Teatro de la Princesa in Madrid, Spain, Sunday night. Jacinto Benavente arranged the Spanish version, and, according to information received at the New York offices of the Sociedad de Autores Espanoles, the play was given the most brilliant reception accorded any foreign play since "Cyrano de Bergerac" was given there in 1899.

Jules Bois, the French envoy now in New York, will deliver an address preceding Yvette Guilbert's recital tomorrow at the Maxine Elliott Theatre.

Adolf Link, who was in Emanuel Reicher's production of "The Weavers," will play five characters in "The World Aflame," a pageant of the European war now in rehearsal under the direction of Julius Hopp.

For the first time in its history the Strand will reserve seats at special performances during the week of May 7, when Geraldine Farrar's "Maria Rosa" will be shown there. These special showings will be given at 10:30 A. M. o'clock each week day.

John McCormack will give his last recital in New York this season next Sunday night at the Hippodrome. The program will be made up entirely of request numbers.

Today's exhibitions of "Ramona" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre will be under the auspices of the American Indian League. The matinée portion of the orchestra at both performances has been reserved for members of the league.

Marion Davis has been added to the list of principals for the new Ziegfeld "Follies."

TREE SEEN IN FOUR SHAKESPEARE ROLES

$3,500 FOR THE RED CROSS

Richard II. and Macbeth Included in a Day's Work That Consisted of Five Shakespearean Parts.

Sir Herbert Tree did his bit for Shakespeare and England yesterday afternoon, observing the day by a special matinée, in the course of which he assumed four widely varied Shakespearean characters and playing to such a scale of prices that last evening he was able to cable $3,500 to the funds of the British Red Cross. His performance in at least two of the parts—Malvolio and Falstaff—measurably enhanced his American reputation as an actor with that necessarily limited section of the public which was represented at the New Amsterdam Theatre yesterday afternoon. Both of these parts are quite to his taste, and his work in them is far superior to his work in Wolsey. Of course he was Wolsey again last evening, so that in one day he undertook five Shakespearean rôles—a really staggering undertaking.

Obviously Tree is at his best in that variety of rôle which is preposterously called a character part. He is really immensely engaging as Falstaff, developing an unexpected heartiness for the fat knight and doing wonders with his voice. Sir Herbert's Wolsey is afflicted with a monotonous 'and seemingly inflexible voice, but his Falstaff is full of deep chuckles and equipped with tones you would swear only countless flagons of sack at the old Boar's Head could have cultivated.

As Malvolio he is capital; he is best as Malvolio, satisfying one's notion of that cross-gartered gull more nearly than any other player who has done the rôle in this neighborhood in recent years. He has played it often, and in the process embroidered and incrusted it with much business of his own—all of it good.

The other two rôles were Richard II. and Macbeth. For the former part he gave the abdication scene with such stately trappings as he uses for "Henry VIII.," and making it effective theatrically on somewhat the same plane. He makes the pathetically irresolute and muddled King a picturesque figure. It is good, although not supremely good, work. But it is in "Macbeth" that the shortcomings are most apparent. The needful deep feeling scarcely appears, and a certain habit of pretty and carefully considered gesture ill becomes the blood-stained hands.

Many players of note collaborated with Sir Herbert in making a special matinée of unusual dignity and interest. There are many beauties in Constance Collier's Lady Macbeth, her reading of the letter in particular being most satisfying. There should be note, too, of Miss Matthison as Olivia, of Phyllis Neilson-Terry's reappearance as Viola, and of a momentary flash from Eric Maxon as the fiery Aumerle in "Richard II."

Then Laurette Taylor, greeted with the warmest applause, was one of those who helped between scenes, reading most charmingly two bad poems by Elsie Janis. It all went very well indeed.

DITRICHSTEIN HAS IRITIS.

He Must Spend Week in Dark Room, and "The Great Lover" Suspends.

On account of the illness of Leo Ditrichstein there was no performance of "The Great Lover" at the Longacre last night, and the theatre will be closed throughout the remainder of the week. Mr. Ditrichstein is suffering from iritis, an inflammation of the iris, and Dr. Henry T. Wandless of 9 East Thirty-ninth Street, who is attending him, has ordered the actor to spend a week in a dark room.

Mr. Ditrichstein played two performances as usual Saturday. When his eyes, which had begun to trouble him some days ago, grew worse, it became necessary to suspend the engagement, since the play is built around the character of Jean Paurel, played by Mr. Ditrichstein.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, APRIL 25, 1916.

A WARNING STILL UNHEEDED.

No argument could be more moderate in tone or more logical than that of Rear Admiral FISKE in his letter of Nov. 9, 1914, to Secretary DANIELS setting forth the defects in the United States Navy and urging that immediate steps should be taken to remove them. This letter has just been made public, by action of the United States Senate. Mr. DANIELS explains that he was ignorant of its existence until lately. The most generous inference to be derived from this statement is that the Secretary's mind is overburdened with the details of work in a field for which obviously he has no special qualifications, and in a period when that work has been much more exacting than it usually is. His memory sometimes fails him. It is a pity that the naval legislation of 1914-15 should have been carried through while Admiral FISKE'S clear statement of needed reforms remained unheeded on the files in the Navy Department.

Eighteen months ago the Admiral, in his capacity as Aid for Operations, placed before the head of the department the important facts that the navy was short of men and officers, that there was practically no naval reserve, while experiments for thirty years had produced an incompletely trained naval militia of less than 7,000 men; that the navy lacked organization and could never be prepared for war without a General Staff, and that it was deficient in training because of its lack of men and its lack of a General Staff to devise and carry out a system of progressive training. Admiral FISKE did not write this letter in the mood of an alarmist. He pointed out that a state of war existed in the world and might be expected to continue for a term of years, and that the destruction of the Maine precipitated our Spanish war. He argued, not that we should seek war, but that we should be prepared for it.

Yet in those eighteen months the management of our navy has been carried on in the old defective way. The first practical step toward naval reorganization was taken yesterday when the Committee on Naval Appropriations reported to the Appropriations Committee an estimate of the cost of the navy for next year. This provides for the pay of only 13,500 additional men, though it is now common knowledge that at least 25,000 more men are needed to put all our available ships in action. It is worth bearing in mind that the most important part of the naval legislation of the session of 1914-15 has been practically inoperative. Neither of the two dreadnoughts authorized by Congress in that session has yet been laid down. The naval estimates submitted yesterday provide for two more dreadnoughts, two battle cruisers, three scout cruisers, fifteen destroyers and other vessels. Presumably this is the building program decided on. Where these ships are to be built and when is conjectural.

Secretary DANIELS, however, is, as usual, in a lyrical mood regarding the preparedness of the navy. If optimism could overcome perils the Secretary could easily save the nation. Battleships and aeroplanes, officers and men, guns and ammunition in our navy, as Mr. DANIELS sees them, are in ample supply and perfect condition. As for our firing accuracy, well, he is not publishing records, but it was "never better." Surely we can lick the world and Admiral FISKE must be a croaking raven. All the same, there is a growing fear throughout the country that the Naval Reorganization bill, when we get it, may be a great disappointment to the people who feel that this country should be placed in a condition to defend itself in any emergency.

THE POSTMASTERSHIP.

The President was on the point of sending to the Senate the name of JOSEPH JOHNSON to be Postmaster of New York City when his purpose became known in this community. The public dissatisfaction with the proposed appointment was immediately made known, it was general, deep, and loudly expressed.

The President actually did appoint Senator WAGNER. That proceeding was so extremely unsatisfactory to the Senator himself that he resolutely declines. He will not serve.

Now let President WILSON appoint Postmaster MORGAN to be his own successor. Then everybody will be satisfied. The President will be rid of a problem that has caused him great worry and embarrassment, the people of the City of New York will give him their applause and their gratitude, and the best man for the Post Office will be kept in the Post Office.

THE STIVERS BILL.

As the organized militia of New York State is already so much larger than that of any other State, it is fair to infer that it can be increased in size, when the system of pay for officers and men is put in operation, without any resort to compulsion. The opposition to a State Constabulary is not likely to be effective next year. The bill might have passed both houses of the Legislature this year if it had been introduced earlier. Meanwhile, under the new law the National Guard can be called into service by the Governor only in case of a riot. Governor WHITMAN will not summon the citizen soldiers for police work unless the situation is unusually grave. Inducements to young men to enlist in the National Guard will be so much greater, therefore, that it is not likely that the Stivers bill, which the Governor's signature will make a law, will have to be enforced.

This must be regarded as a precautionary measure. It permits the Governor to call upon citizens between the ages of 18 and 45 years to join the organized militia and subject themselves to military training. But not more than 33,000 men will be needed for the National Guard in the whole State. No new principle is involved in the bill. All male citizens not specifically exempted already belong to the militia. All are liable to military duty in times of peril. The bill only provides that a certain number must at all times be under training. It is not a bill for pacifists or cowards to worry about. There will be enough hardy men willing to serve in the organized militia under the new conditions in this State. About the other States we shall know more in course of time.

PANAMA CANAL RATES.

Within a week after the Panama Canal route was reopened the Supreme Court made a ruling regarding competitive transcontinental rates affecting 182 cities known as Pacific Coast terminals. During the seven months the canal was closed the rates in effect on the railways crossing the continent were those fixed by the Interstate Commission, allowing the railways to reduce rates to meet water competition. Meanwhile water freights so advanced throughout the world on account of the war that the conditions of competition made the reduction of railway rates unnecessary to retain the traffic, the water rates now being the higher. It might seem that the railways would hasten to raise their rates.

In fact, proceedings have been begun not to permit but to compel them to do so. All the producing centres between the Atlantic and the Pacific regard themselves prejudiced by the unfair competition of the rates fixed below the economic level by the Commission, and they have opened proceedings before the Commission to require the railways to raise their rates on commodities in the group competitive to the water route. Traffic across the continent in both directions is concerned, and the Southern Pacific route has declined to make the advances. That puts the Commission in another dilemma, for it raises the question of the Southern Pacific's ownership of steamship lines which enable the railway to quote low transcontinental rates without using the canal route. As a question of land transit the Commission for the first time faces action for the raising of rates fixed by itself. As a question of combined land and water rates the Commission is embarrassed by the conflict with its order that a competitor which cannot be overlooked shall dispose of its means of competition at the order of the Commission.

This aspect of the case is not so much transcontinental as universal. It involves traffic on ocean, sound, and lakes. The California shippers are like all shippers in resisting the action of the Commission under the Panama Canal act in requiring the divorce of the ownership of steamship extensions by railways. In fact the shippers are asking to be saved from their friends, the Commission, and delivered to the mercies of their enemies, the railways. When the proceedings were begun the shippers and the Commission thought only of the rate. In the course of events the accommodation has become more important than the rate. A rate is a law, and a law cannot change suddenly or regardless of principle. The Commission cannot be as quick on its feet as trade, which shifted its position before the Commission began to think the matter over.

What is the Commission to do? Congress has enacted that the railways must charge more for a long haul than for a short haul, and the Commission has proceeded for years on that principle. The Commission cannot repeal the principle, and trade is proceeding as though it had not been enacted. The Commission fixed land rates on the theory of canal transit. The rates were collected although the canal was closed, and the rates are to be revised although the canal is opened. The Commission is badgered as badly as the railways ever were, and is pulled and hauled between shippers with conflicting interests, carriers with conflicting interests, and courts which take alternately differing views, one court suspending the action of another.

Business cannot stop, nor can it be stopped, for the reconciliation of irreconcilable things. Railways and shippers alike must make instant decisions upon subjects which courts and commissions disagree about for years, and reach decisions which might have been right if made promptly, but which become wrong by the alteration of conditions during the law's delays. The tangle seems inextricable, but not for that reason should regulation be despaired of. The politicians will be the last to allow the quarrel to be composed. Their interest lies in agitation, and in befriending the shippers against the extortions of the railways. That was the popular view to take when the shippers were distressed and the railways were too prosperous. Now the shippers' profits are limited by the accommodations the prostrate railways are unable to increase. Abuses should not be condoned, principles should not be abandoned. But contentious and debatable questions might well be soft-pedaled for a while. Railways and shippers might make a short circuit, and put politicians, courts, and commissions out of business by settling their own disputes between themselves.

PARLOUS STATE OF THE REPUBLICANS.

The Republican Party has made a horrendous pother about Mr. WILSON'S Mexican policy and his German policy. There never was anything in the clamor about Mexico. The country is not cheering over the fragments of old issues. Disorder and anarchy, the assassination of Americans and other foreigners in Mexico, are no new things. Mr. WILSON inherited the troubles there. Whatever may be said by some historian with all the documents before him of Mr. TAFT'S, of Mr. WILSON'S, Mexican policy, the people of the United States are not interested in criticisms, in mistakes, if such have been made, in noisy bombination about "ifs." A new Mexican issue, or the Mexican problem in the form of an actual new issue, will be set before them in a few hours. It will not be Republican, or Democratic. It will be national. The Republicans will stand, will have to stand, behind the President.

A few hours or days will determine whether or not diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany are to be suspended. If they are not, if Germany complies with Mr. WILSON'S demands, the United States wins a memorable victory, the honor of which cannot be taken from Mr. WILSON. If Germany does not yield, then there will be nothing Republican, nothing Democratic, in the support which the American people as a whole will give to the President.

The Republican issues, one of which was but wind and foam, are gone. What is to take their place? We humbly propose Senator HARDING of Ohio and the tariff that fell from Heaven and has been going up most of the time since.

The absolutely disorganized condition of the Republicans, their poverty of leaders, their helplessness at the primaries, their surrender in Congress and the Middle West to the Germans, their confusion and uncertainty as to the choice of a candidate for President, the emergence of so many second-rate, ridiculous or German-made candidates, the blankness of "uninstructed," the absurdity of "instructed" delegates: these things are plain as a pikestaff. There is no candidate in sight that will unite the party. Effort is made, part pretense and finesse, part earnest, to pull the robes off a member of the Supreme Court, and acclaim a man of opinions necessarily unknown as the awaited hero of reconciliation and union. Colonel ROOSEVELT is yelling from the side lines and eager to break into the shindy. No man. No issue. Heaps of trouble.

DELUSIVE AND VICIOUS.

During the war between the United States and Spain there was some division of opinion among Americans. The overwhelming majority unreservedly supported the Government. Some, grouped at the time under the general name of anti-imperialists, did not believe that we should go to war with Spain, they were in opposition to the Government during the continuance of the war, they disliked the conditions on which peace was made. But the American supporters and the American opponents of the Government in that year 1898 based their action upon purely American grounds.

The German-Americans and the newspapers printed in the German language in the United States were almost unanimous in opposing the war with Spain. Germany also opposed our war with Spain. It soon became evident that the German-Americans were opposed to the war for other than American reasons. Americans were divided, but for reasons wholly American; the German-Americans stood together for reasons not American.

The Government paid as little attention to the opposition of German-Americans at home as it did to the attitude of the German Government so frankly manifested at Manila Bay. The war was pushed to its conclusion. German-American opposition had no visible influence upon its beginning, its progress, or its ending.

Men in politics or seeking office who make speeches in favor of denying to our manufacturers the unquestionable right to export munitions of war, who denounce the President for the measures he has taken to protect the rights and the lives of Americans at sea, and then on that ground appeal for the support of German-American voters, might profitably study the political history of their country during the year 1898 and succeeding years.

There is no German-American vote that can launch or sustain a politician in an honorable public career. No vote, however won, is worth having that is not an American vote cast because of the voter's devotion to an American view of American principles and institutions. Any other theory of the action of the electorate is a delusion, it is vicious, fatal, bound to bring political ruin upon the man who accepts it and acts on it.

We are one nation, not two or twenty. The German-Americans themselves, all of them who are intelligent and sensible, will denounce the plan of organizing the German-American voters in opposition to the Administration and its policies as soon as they become aware of the country's attitude toward that alien plot. Not popular favor but popular detestation will be the fruit of any effort, by a party or its candidates, to gain votes by professed devotion to a policy of surrendering American rights and of condoning the taking of American lives. Advocacy of interests alien to our own, hostile to our own, will neither now or ever hereafter commend a candidate to the confidence of Americans.

AN EXAMPLE IN TAXATION.

The effort of the Harkness $100,000,000 estate to establish a residence for the testator in a State where the tax laws are less burdensome than New York's explains both why New York's inheritance tax law is so disappointing and how it might be made less so. It would benefit New York to make its tax laws attractive rather than repelling to capital. Mr. HARKNESS'S residence and clubs were in New York and he was buried in Woodlawn, but he paid his taxes elsewhere. His estate is the second largest to come as a windfall to New York, and there is danger that it may escape for the same reason that $400,000,000 of investments were withdrawn from the State within the first eight months after the law was passed.

In the report of the Controller for 1911 it was stated that investments had been diverted to other States and that custodial institutions lost business for that reason. Naturally the law is a disappointment as a revenue producer, and there is a disposition to restore the teeth which were removed from the law when the attempt was made to prevent the withdrawal of taxables from the State by exempting them from the tax. The Mills committee told why that should not be done. Such intangible property is taxable at the decedent's residence, and nearly all States now have inheritance tax laws. Accordingly, to rescind the exemption would be to repeat the original mistake and would strengthen the disposition to remove from the State on account of its law not only the property but the residence of the owner. As taxes grow there is an increasing appreciation of the attraction of low taxation, and movable capital tends toward the place where its cost of living is least.

It is a first maxim of taxation not to tax heavily anything which can flee the jurisdiction. The converse maxim is to attract whatever is repelled elsewhere and thus to give value to real estate, which is immovable but the values of which reflect the movement of movables. Millionaires are not undesirable citizens, to the tax gatherers at least. They buy the best real estate to live on and they pay taxes to correspond. They build palaces and pay wages to architects and all trades. They give the shops trade and are worth while generally. The Mills committee appreciated this, and the subject will be heard from again, for the committee is to continue its labors. It is a curious example of the troubles of wealth that the attempt of the Harkness estate to escape taxes in New York has exposed it to a greater expense in Kentucky. Promptly after the filing of the affidavit of residence there suit was begun for $7,500,000 taxes and penalty for past evasion, or more than the inheritance tax in New York.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Criticise a Public Benefactor?

It was admitted by the correspondent whose letter about the verdict of Judge TUTHILL for BACON against SHAKESPEARE was printed on this page yesterday that the decision added to the gayety of nations. Why, then, was he moved to take so seriously the proceedings in the Chicago court or to condemn so severely the fact that such proceedings were permitted?

This is a time when forgiveness of almost anything that allows the nations even for a few moments to forget their troubles ought to be easy, and while it is apparently impossible, by any stretch of charity, to believe that Judge TUTHILL allowed this suit to be tried before him merely to lighten the world's gloom, still, if, or as, it did do that, in a way he deserves gratitude. And after all no harm was done. The Baconians will go on arguing for their contentions without appreciably greater confidence in their truth than before, and the Shakespeareans will remain sure that their fortress of belief is impregnable.

Incidentally, both Mr. SELIG and Mr. FABYAN have gained for their respective enterprises a large amount of the most valuable sort of advertising publicity, and there is no danger in assuming that both are happier than they were before. That, too, is something gained.

The only man with a real grievance is he who invented the theory that the plays were written by neither SHAKESPEARE nor BACON, but were produced by Father CAMPION and other Jesuit Fathers who at that time were hiding in England and had far better reasons than BACON had for employing a literary "ghost." Judge TUTHILL gave scant attention to that ingenious gentleman's plea for the privilege of having his claims heard and considered, and that in spite of the fact that his petition is decidedly interesting reading and deserves at least as much attention as does the Baconian hypothesis.

As a truly lovely complication of a pretty quarrel, this Jesuit theory of the plays would not be lightly dismissed by anybody with a sincere love of sport, and Judge TUTHILL'S neglect of it almost warrants a charge of judicial partiality.

An Attempt to Explain the Pacifists.

Not a few observers have noted of late with not a little of puzzled astonishment that antagonism to military preparedness is strongest and most nearly general in precisely those parts of the country where in the past the inhabitants have been credited—or discredited—with the largest amount of pugnacity as individuals, with the keenest sense of their personal rights and privileges, and with both willingness and ability to use deadly weapons when occasion arose. On the other hand, whatever of "militarism" exists in the United States, and practically all of the more ardent advocates of adequately preparing for possible wars, are to be found in the Eastern and Northeastern States, among the citizens who long since stopped carrying guns and pistols—who were the first to give up the private war of the duel as a means of settling quarrels, and not infrequently have been criticised as lacking courage and fibre.

One of the country's best known servitors, to whose attention this curious phenomenon was called, pondered the problem for a moment, and then suggested what he thought might be its explanation, at least as regards the South, where it is at once most clearly visible and most surprising.

The Southerners now forming the dominant class, he declared—the men in the neighborhood of 50 years old—were all born in the years when the horrors and sufferings of war, its cost in lives and property, were realized with cruel and special vividness in that particular region, and naturally they made a deep and lasting impression on many maternal minds. What are called pre-natal influences and the less dubious effects of early environment were, therefore, brought strongly into play in the South—far more strongly than in New England, for instance, where the war was a thing terrible, indeed, but distant, inaudible, and invisible.

This theory of the Southern pacifists and of Southern reluctance to prepare for war has interest, but it is hardly convincing. It leaves the manifestation of the same characteristics in the Middle West unexplained.

Protection Needed by Horses.

This is not the time of year when even the best friends of horses are particularly excited over sufferings of those animals that are due to the failure of their owners to give them the shoes required for safe and comfortable movement over snow and ice. The fact that the issue is not now a pressing one, however, has its advantages as well as its disadvantages, perhaps, for those who are interesting themselves in the fate of an ordinance relating to the shoeing of horses that is at present waiting action by the Aldermen.

On the one hand, the opening of the happier season for horses may tend to decrease the energy of pleas in their behalf and so lead to the dropping of the subject by the City Fathers; on the other hand, by putting special expenditures for frequent shoeing far into the future, it decreases the vigor of antagonism from the unwise economists upon whom the bills will fall. It may be just as well, therefore, that the matter now comes up for settlement by the Aldermen, and those who suffered last Winter from the slippings and fallings of improperly shod horses should take care to be well represented by competent speakers at the public hearing on the proposed ordinance to be given at the City Hall next Friday at 11 o'clock by the Aldermanic Committee on Thoroughfares.

There are no good reasons why the ordinance should not be adopted. If all self-interest were enlightened it would not be necessary, but every snowstorm makes it evident that the city's horse owners include many who are in need of compulsion to make them take proper and decent care of their animate property. That compulsion the regulation as drawn would bring to bear, and the only antagonism to it that has yet been shown is easily enough explicable by the officials of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Offers an Ambulance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In early response to the various requirements set forth in THE TIMES of this morning by Colonel Kean, Medical Corps, U. S. A., Director General of Military Relief of the Red Cross, I beg to say as an act of practical American preparedness for war I will equip, maintain, and run one ambulance, the only conditions of my service being that it shall be within the limits of New York City, and that the ambulance shall be known as the "Edmund Randolph Peaslee," in memory of my distinguished father, the late Dr. Peaslee of New York. Constantly, for years, I have run the cars of my friends, but have never been an owner. In this connection I now propose to fit myself to make all field repairs and pass examination for license as chauffeur.

What Roosevelt Has Not Said.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With trumpet and brass band on every occasion Mr. Roosevelt heralds Mr. Wilson's shortcomings. But with all the discord he has created he has as yet failed to tell us what he would have done under the very trying circumstances which President Wilson has been combating for so long a time.

SIX CAPITAL SHIPS IN 1917 NAVY PLANS

APPROPRIATION IS RAISED

Nearly Quarter Billion Is Carried in Measure, Outside Building Budget.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A Naval Appropriation bill carrying nearly $250,000,000 probably will be the contribution of the House Committee on Naval Affairs to the national defense program. The committee will meet on Thursday to act on the tentative bill prepared by its sub-committee.

This tentative bill, however, does not cover the building program. This will be voted upon by the full committee without recommendation by the sub-committee. There are increases all along the line in that part of the bill framed by the sub-committee.

Predictions were made today that the full committee would recommend as many as six capital ships. The Navy Department's program calls for four ships of the capital class—two dreadnoughts and two battle cruisers. Two more battle cruisers are likely to be added. It is also probable that the committee will increase the number of submarines recommended by the department.

The tentative bill prepared by the sub-committee is understood to provide an appropriation of $2,000,000 for aviation in the navy, including experimental work and maintenance of aircraft stations, and $85,000 for the work of the Advisory Committee on Aeronautics.

In personnel, the bill provides that the navy shall be increased by approximately 13,500 men. Construction of a plant for the manufacture of projectiles is recommended. The estimated cost of such a plant is $1,411,000, and half the amount is made available at this time.

A big increase is recommended in the appropriation for ammunition for the navy. The appropriation will approximate $13,000,000 as compared with the $3,000,000 authorized in the current bill. It is also understood that the bill will carry a new issue of $4,500,000 for a reserve of ordnance supplies, and $480,000 for purchase and manufacture of torpedo nets and equipment.

New Dry Docks Provided.

Initial appropriations toward the construction of drydocks at Philadelphia and Norfolk are said to be included in the bill. Each of these dry docks, when completed, will cost in the neighborhood of $3,500,000.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 for the construction of a research laboratory for the Edison Advisory Board is tentatively fixed. The bill also carries a new item of $280,000 for storage of munitions of war at navy yards and stations. The appropriation for the purchase of smokeless powder is more than double, the sum of $1,800,000 being suggested by the sub-committee.

The chief fight in the House committee will come over the naval increase, and the total carried by the bill will depend largely on the outcome of the contest between the "big navy" and "small navy" factions. It was authoritatively estimated today, however, that the bill would carry far in excess of the $217,000,000 recommended in the estimates submitted by Secretary Daniels.

The sub-committee presented a memorandum summarizing the recommendations of various naval officers who were examined on the building program. They were so much at variance that the committee would have been virtually forced to accept the Secretary's plan had not many Republican members and some Democrats already announced their intention of supporting a compromise program of six capital ships.

The bill framed by the sub-committee grants virtually all of the recommendations made by Secretary Daniels. These include, in addition to those above named, provision for:

The creation of a naval flying corps; authorization of an elaborate Naval Reserve Corps system, with an appropriation of $1,000,000 to begin its organization; $30,000 for Summer camps of instruction similar to the army-citizens' training camp plan; $5,000,000 for naval fuel; $1,000,000 to re-engine the North Dakota and other ships with defective power plants; fixing the commissioned personnel of the line at 4 per cent. of the enlisted strength in both the navy and Marine Corps; to permit line officers on request to be detailed to specialize in engineering duty; the addition of 300 qualified college graduates to the engineering force during the next ten years; deduction of pay of officers and men absent from duty because of the use of liquor or other misconduct; furloughing enlisted men into the first-line reserve, and increasing appropriations for civilian instructors at Annapolis to $150,000.

Aid for Admiral Badger.

The bill makes special provision for Rear Admiral Badger, who has been retained on the General Board since his retirement, with a loss of $3,528 annually in pay. It is proposed that any officer who has commanded a fleet in active commission and been retired for age, and who is retained as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the General Board shall suffer no loss in pay through retirement.

The department's building program, which is for two battleships, two battle cruisers, three scout cruisers, fifteen destroyers, thirty submarines, two gunboats, one hospital ship, and one fuel-oil ship, was embodied without change for the committee to take up Thursday. This proposed building program would cost $85,372,127, against $45,053,801 for this year, and includes $27,647,000 for hulls, outfits, and machinery of proposed new ships, and $7,675,000 for hulls and outfits of five fleet submarines and twenty-five coast submarines proposed, and $21,681, for the armor and armament for vessels authorized in the 1917 building program.

There is also an item of $28,369,127 for construction and machinery of vessels heretofore authorized.

APPROVES FILM BILL.

Governor Signs Measure Affecting Employment of Children.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—Governor Whitman approved thirty-two of the bills left by the Legislature today, including these:

Senator Crowell's, prohibiting the employment of children under 16 years of age in making motion picture films, except with the consent of the Mayor of a city or President of Village Trustees.

Senator Joseph's, incorporating the United Synagogue of America, for the promotion of traditional Judaism.

Assemblyman Adler's, providing that the Mayors of first-class cities shall designate the Chairmen of the Parole Commissions and that no person shall be committed to a penitentiary under the jurisdiction of a Department of Corrections in a first-class city for failure to pay a fine or furnish surety, and prohibiting commitment to a penitentiary, reformatory, or workhouse under the department's jurisdiction, for a term of imprisonment with a fine imposed in addition. It also fixes maximum terms of imprisonment and makes certain other changes.

Assemblyman Goldberg's, making changes in membership of the Board of Trustees of the Homeopathic Medical College in New York City and increasing from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 the maximum amount of property which the hospital may hold.

ANALYZES PROFIT SHARING.

Civic Federation Reports Opinions of Employers and Workers.

One of the most exhaustive reports that has ever been made on the various profit-sharing plans that are in force or have been tried in the United States was made public yesterday by the Welfare Department of the National Civic Federation. Civic workers have been engaged for twelve months in investigating more than three hundred so-called profit-sharing schemes, and their report covers the analysis of some two hundred plans. On Feb. 20 last THE NEW YORK TIMES Sunday Magazine contained the finding of the Federation as told by Louis A. Coolidge, Chairman of the Welfare Department.

"The work was undertaken," says Chairman Ralph M. Easley of the Executive Council, "in response to many requests for up-to-date information from men interested in the subject in a practical way. There has been a marked growth of interest in the profit-sharing idea during the last year, and a large number of new schemes have been launched, but thus far the newspapers have been the only source of information with regard to these recent experiments, some of which are far-reaching in extent."

The report itself comes to no set conclusion, for or against the profit-sharing idea. George W. Perkins, Charles M. Schwab, Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor; Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; W. D. Mahon, President of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, and many others are quoted at length.

The view of the leaders of organized labor appear unanimous in opposition to the general theory and practice of profit-sharing, while a large number of the employers, whose plans are analyzed in the report, consider profit-sharing a success. The report says:

"Union representatives also point out that labor itself is making no demand for profit-sharing, either in the organized or unorganized fields, and that the things of real vital interest to labor are not those which employers propose, but which emanate from the workmen themselves."

The report reaches the conclusion that the five-dollar-a-day minimum wage plan of the Ford Motor Company, although described by the company and popularly understood as profit-sharing, does not fall within the standard definition of profit-sharing, and is in reality a unique high-wage system made possible only by extraordinary conditions.

MORGENTHAU'S BIRTHDAY.

Friends Will Congratulate Ambassador Tomorrow.

His many friends will congratulate Henry Morgenthau, Ambassador to Turkey, tomorrow on his sixtieth birthday. The distinguished Democrat will spend the day quietly with his family in his home at 30 West Seventy-second Street. On Mr. Morgenthau's last two birthdays he was at his post in Constantinople.

The financier and diplomat is a native of Germany. Born at Mannheim in 1856, he came to America with his parents when a boy. He was graduated from Public School 14 in 1870, attended the City College, and received his diploma from the Columbia Law School in 1878. He practiced law until 1890, when he went into the real estate business, where he won success in the conduct of negotiations involving millions.

Mr. Morgenthau managed the finances of President Wilson's campaign in 1912 and in August of 1913 was named Ambassador to Turkey. He received high praise for his services in behalf of the Zionists in Turkey and for persuading the Ottomans on more than one occasion since the beginning of the war to soften their decrees.

Mr. Morgenthau returned to America on leave of absence last Feb. 22 and is expected to stay in this country for some months.

BRANDEIS FACES A TIE.

Committee Apparently in Deadlock Over His Nomination.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A continued deadlock over the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States was indicated in today's sitting of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary. The nomination was discussed for several hours, and, although no vote was taken on reporting the name to the Senate, the discussion disclosed that a vote probably would develop a tie.

Mr. Shields of Tennessee, a Democratic member, who formerly was Chief Justice of his State, was absent in New York City, but it is understood that he sides with all the Republicans against confirmation.

Mr. Brandeis's name has been before the full committee several weeks, since the extended hearings on his fitness for the bench were concluded. At each meeting final action has been postponed.

FOR THE WAR'S BLIND.

An Appeal to the Women of America for British, French, and Belgians.

Sixty-five thousands letters, each addressed to a woman prominent in her community, were sent out last night under the signatures of Lady Arthur Paget and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, acting for the B. F. B. (British, French, and Belgian) Permanent Blind Relief War Fund of 590 Fifth Avenue, appealing for support for this fund for soldiers rendered blind in the war and those dependent upon them. The appeal has been hastened by the large number of men thus disabled by the German use of flaming liquids in the attack on Verdun. The purpose of the fund includes instructing these men in useful occupations by which they can earn a living for themselves and their dependents after the war. The appeal says:

You have a kind, generous heart and a deep, earnest consciousness of human duty. For this reason we respectfully ask you to read every word of this letter.

Thousands of wives, mothers, and daughters in France, England, and Belgium are speaking to you. Their husbands, brothers, and sons, blinded in the war, are helpless and hopeless. They cannot see to work at their former trades. These brave, true women are now obliged to assume the entire burden of supporting them and their children, of supplying all their daily material needs, and of encouraging them constantly in their complete despair and continual distress.

Unless you act these thousands of women will be condemned for the rest of their lives to an existence of hopeless drudgery and hardship.

For humanity's sake help these European women. They are your sisters, even though you have never seen them.

Six months' training will educate the blinded men dependent on them in trades not requiring sight. Even your single donation alone will go far toward enabling one of these sightless men to support himself and partly support his family for the rest of his life.

These women stretch appealing hands to you from across the ocean. Make at least one of them permanently happy and her husband, father, or son permanently useful by sending us a contribution. Notice the persons who, in four great nations, are interesting themselves in this tragic world situation.

The sooner you act the sooner one brave, good, faithful woman will be rescued from an existence of despair and crushing slavery, and the sooner the man who is tragically anxious to support her will be saved from a life of uselessness and hopelessness.

This charity, in which we ask you to cooperate, is endeavoring to relieve a condition the tragedy of which passes the barriers of race and nationality. It is trying to give new life, hope, and independence to thousands of despairing, helpless men, and will ultimately contribute benefactions upon every blinded person throughout the entire world.

According to statistics, the world, a year before the war broke out, contained 2,500,000 blind. The number of blind men who will be added to this total by the war cannot be estimated until years after the war itself is over.

In all new buildings erected in connection with this work the cornerstone will bear the following inscription:

This is given by the people of the United States of America to the French (Belgian or British) who have lost their eyesight in this war.

Make your check payable to Frank A. Vanderlip, Treasurer, and mail to the B. F. B. Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, 590 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

DEMOCRATS ROUSED BY ARMY BILL DELAY

Administration Program of New Laws May Go Through with Slight Debate.

WASHINGTON, Apr. ..—Aroused by Minority Leader Mann's success on two occasions today in keeping the Army bill as amended by the Senate from going to conference, House Democratic leaders declared tonight that without further delay they would force their legislative program through with the aid of special rules.

A rule to discharge the Military Committee from further consideration of the Army bill and to permit the Speaker to appoint House conferees after debate on one motion to recommit will be reported by the Rules Committee tomorrow. Majority members of the committee will suggest an hour's debate on the motion, but if this is not agreeable to the Republican minority, debate will be limited to twenty minutes on each side.

Following disposal of the agricultural appropriation measure, the Democrats also decided today, the Philippine, Porto Rican, and Shipping bills will be brought up for passage in the order named. This course was agreed upon despite the protests of Republicans that some preparedness or appropriation measures should receive immediate consideration

Drastic rules to provide for limited debate will accompany all these Administration measures, with the view of having them enacted into law before the conventions, if possible. On the Philippine measure, for instance, it now is planned to limit general debate to five hours.

Democrats were greatly disappointed late this afternoon when Speaker Clark sustained a point of order raised by Mr. Mann on a rule designed to send the Army bill to conference without an intervening motion. Mr. Mann maintained that adoption of such a rule would deny the minority the right of a motion to recommit, to which it long has been entitled. Immediately after the Speaker's ruling Representative Garret of Tennessee sought to have the rule that the committee will report tomorrow adopted by unanimous consent, but again Mr. Mann objected, ending debate on the proposition for today.

Earlier in the day Mr. Mann had prevented the bill going to conference by objecting when unanimous consent was asked by Chairman Hay of the Military Committee. A meeting of the Rules Committee was called hastily and the rule which was later rejected was reported.

Mr. Mann is objecting to the bill going to conference, it is understood, in the hope that he will be able to obtain a vote to instruct the House conferees on the provisions to provide a regular army of 250,000 and the Federal volunteer army system and nitrate plant proposals. His objections are not believed to be connected with filibuster, which, Democrats charge, the Republicans are conducting for the purpose of delaying consideration of the Administration legislative program.

JAPAN'S PROTEST HEEDED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Following the recent protest of Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, against the inclusion in the immigration bill of the provisions of the Root-Takahira agreement restricting Japanese immigration, Senate leaders believe that the offensive provision will be eliminated without difficulty when the measure comes up for consideration in the Senate. Secretary Lansing today conferred with Senator Stone of Missouri, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, and Senator Smith of South Carolina, Chairman of the Committee on Immigration, urging them to see to it that the objectionable language was omitted from the bill.

"I see no reason to believe that a satisfactory solution cannot be reached," said Mr. Smith after the conference.

The Committee on Immigration will meet Thursday, when Ambassador Chinda's protest will be considered. It is expected that the committee will report favorably an amendment to the bill simply striking out the reference to the Japanese, leaving the restriction of Japanese immigration under the terms of the more or less informal agreement.

The State Department assured the Senators that Japan has faithfully performed its part in the agreement, withholding passports from Japanese laborers wishing to come to the United States. The immigration bill has already been reported in the Senate, but an amendment favored by the committee would probably be received in a friendly spirit when the debate commences.

After the conference Viscount Chinda called on Secretary Lansing and was assured that the Senate leaders believe the offensive provision can and will be eliminated without difficulty and without alteration of the real aim and purpose of the measure.

Viscount Chinda saw President Wilson last week, and was assured that the President would urge the Senate to make the modifications that the Japanese Government desired.

CLARK REBUKES THE HOUSE.

Cuts Short Debate on Race Question as a Waste of Time.

MISS GRAY A BRIDE AMID EASTER LILIES

Daughter of Mrs. Cornelius H. Callaghan Married to Edward Loudon Norton, Jr.

HER BRIDESMAIDS IN PINK

The wedding of Edward Loudon Norton, Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Loudon Norton, and Miss Ada Bryce Gray, the daughter of Mrs. Cornelius H. Callaghan, by her first husband, the late Bryce Gray, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, by the Rev. Herbert Shipman, assisted by the Rev. Edward Matthews. The church, which was crowded with guests, was decorated with Easter lilies and palms. Lilies banked the chancel rails and were tied in clusters to the nave pews.

The bride walked to the chancel with her brother, Bryce Gray, who gave her in marriage. The white satin gown was draped with silk net, which served as a foundation for the duchess and point lace that draped the skirt, forming panniers, and the Eton coat effect on the corsage, which was only a bit low. The sleeves were long ruched tulle affairs, and the long satin train edges with net puffings and small flowers was completely covered by the point lace veil laid in plait effect and arranged in a slightly hooded effect about the coiffure, which was decidedly novel, and was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms and an Easter lily over each ear. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids. A diamond brooch, the gift of Mr. Norton, was her only ornament.

Mrs. Alfred Macy was the matron of honor, and the Misses Dorothy Manice, Thelma Violett, Ruth Moller and Louisa A. Johnson were the bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in orchid pink net over pink taffeta, and had short full skirts with high panniers. The corsages were loose, and light turquoise blue velvet ribbons were looped from one shoulder down across the corsage to the pannier on the other side, where it was knotted as though holding it in place.

Their immense hats had drooping overbrims of pink chiffon, and were trimmed with silver roses and blue velvet ribbons that caught the brims high at one side against the crowns in knots and loops. They carried bunches of deep pink sweet peas with full short showers, and wore silver slippers and hose.

FINDS PHILANTHROPY A TROUBLESOME JOB

ACTRESS WANTS RENT PAID

Man with Fallow Iron Mine Seeks Capital and a Poor Undergraduate Masseuse Asks $300.

When the curious Miss Pandora lifted the lid of the now well-known box she released no more trouble than Louis A. Hoffman of New Orleans has brought upon himself by his announcement that he desired to create a fund of $6,000 for the purpose of giving a four-year college course to two poor young women. Mr. Hoffman, who is publisher of The Catholic Churchman and The United Labor Journal, reached his New York office, 212 Broadway, yesterday morning and found the advance guard of trouble in the form of a prepossessing young woman waiting his coming. She had such a real yearning for an education that she did not want to trust her plea to the mails.

There were others, however, who were willing to trust the postman to carry their requests, some of which came in the first mail. They were still coming when the last mail arrived, and Mr. Hoffman, the newspaperman who acts as his secretary, and his youthful stenographer were assured, when they left the office late in the day, that there would be, as one young woman remarked at the end of her letter, "more to follow."

Mr. Hoffman is frankly of the suddenly grown rich class and as yet unexperienced in the wiles of those who would separate rich men from their money. Besides, Mr. Hoffman is softhearted. He almost shed tears as a statuesque caller pleaded for $75 to pay two months' arrears of rent. This visitor had a leaning toward the stage, but had been unfortunate in her managers, but the secretary cut in with the unfeeling remark that no person in poverty should pay $37.50 a month rent. That ended the call.

Has a Busy Day.

Between receiving callers and opening his mail and giving interviews to the newspapers, Mr. Hoffman had a fairly busy day. Still, Mr. Hoffman, who is unmarried, seemed to enjoy some moments of it.

The second woman caller came, she said, to explain personally to the man from New Orleans that she had a "beautiful daughter only 17 years old," who was not only mentally fit to receive a college education, but had since infancy been consumed with a desire to "be something in the world." After she had bared the ingenuous Mr. Hoffman into a corner of his very small office, it took the combined efforts of the secretary and stenographer to shoo her from the room. They explained in chorus that the Superintendent of Schools was to select the ones to enjoy the Hoffman scholarship.

After the interviewer departed there came a call from a bright-eyed young miss, who said she was in high school and did not want to go to college.

Mr. Hoffman had returned from lunch and settled down to the serious work of dictating a letter, when a young woman in a brown dress, brown shoes, and an attractive brown hat, opened the door and thrust her head in.

"Come in," said the hospitable Hoffman.

"Really I can't," and the face in the door flamed scarlet. "I want to see you alone."

Mr. Hoffman invited the coy one in brown into another room. A few seconds later he had escorted her into the outer room, and was explaining to his Secretary that the caller had been a former sweetheart whom he had not seen in more than ten years. She called, she told him, after reading of his office in THE TIMES, to assure herself that he really was her old friend. They chatted together and she told those in the office that she hoped her husband would not know that her curiosity had prompted her to pay the call.

Letters from Many States.

The letters came from as far east as the end of Long Island and as far west as Pennsylvania. From the north they came from Poughkeepsie and from Virginia on the south. One was from the owner of a tract of land in New Jersey. He was sure there was iron ore in his land, and he offered to divide "fifty-fifty," if Mr. Hoffman would develop the minerals.

A New Brunswick girl sent her photograph and was voted attractive. She said she felt a strong desire to be educated and that she sent the photograph to show that, in appearance at least, she would not disgrace any college.

Sad was the complaint of a woman whom family reverses forced to give up a course in massage before she was graduated. "Only $300," she wrote, would practically make her a master of the art.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Hoffman, "that the desire for education has gone up 50 per cent. since my name became public. I want it impressed on those who write or call upon me that I simply make a free course in some good college possible to some deserving New York girl, and that is all I will have to do with the affair. The selection is not with me, and I do not desire that privilege."

WILSON SEES EGG ROLLING.

Hundreds of Children of All Classes Romp on White House Lawn.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The annual Easter egg rolling, an event looked forward to with the keenest interest by the children of Washington, was held on the White House grounds today. Despite the chilly weather, thousands of youngsters, with grown-ups as spectators, were on hand early, ready to enjoy the sport. There was no class distinction. The children of high Government officials and diplomats mingled with those from the humblest homes.

Mrs. Wilson had as her special guests the children of Cabinet members and other officials. The gates to the grounds, by direction of the President, were opened at 9 A. M. Hundreds of children carrying baskets filled with vari-colored eggs were waiting for admission. The regulations required that adults accompany the children.

President Wilson went to the south portico of the White House during the morning and watched the children rolling the eggs and playing in the White House grounds. He was greeted with applause. Lilies of the valley and other flowers grown for White House use during Easter week were sent to hospitals.

MRS. NICOLL OPERATED ON.

Sir Arbuthnot Lane Removes Plates Holding Bones of Injured Leg.

Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll of 23 East Thirty-ninth Street, whose right leg was badly broken in a motor accident near Northampton, England, several months ago, when she was struck by a rapidly moving automobile engaged in war service, was operated on last Sunday in London by Sir Arbuthnot Lane, the noted surgeon, for the removal of the plates which he had used to hold together the bones of the injured limb.

He found that there was an abscess at the point of the break, which was in the lower third of the right femur, and that a portion of the bone had mortified and refused to join. The abscess was drained, and Sir Arbuthnot announced that he hoped the leg would heal in time, although the dead bone must slough away before a new one is formed. He said that Mrs. Nicoll was making satisfactory progress toward complete recovery.

PREPAREDNESS IN SERMONS

Major Loveland Asks Ministers to Aid Defense Movement.

If military preparedness were preached from American pulpits and a "Heman" were in charge of the nation's affairs at Washington to put preparedness ideas in force, the country would soon be placed upon a basis of adequate defense, according to the opinions of Major John Winthrop Loveland of the Fifth Regiment, New Jersey National Guard, who spoke yesterday to the Alumni Association of Auburn Theological Seminary, assembled for luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin. He said:

"You ministers should preach military preparedness from your pulpits. It is your religious duty, and, besides, it is an opportunity which you should take advantage of. I am firmly convinced that compulsory military training in this country would do more to make good citizens of our children than the training they receive in Sunday school. You are not better than the Belgians, and will suffer the same fate as they if you do not insist that our country be put on an adequate defense basis. We are now spending over nine billion dollars per year for sensual indulgences, including liquor and tobacco, and only $250,000,000 for armament."

He spoke with enthusiasm about Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, and said:

"We need at Washington a man who can meet a crisis instantly. We well remember the Perdicaris experience only a few years ago when five words and a naval vessel brought the bandit Raisula to terms. These words were 'Perdicaris alive or Raisula dead.' Now we write notes for our dead citizens."

SHEPARDS TO ADOPT GIRL.

Helen Smith, 5, Is Now in Tarrytown Home with Finley, Jr.

It is reported that Finley J. and Helen Gould Shepard, who adopted a boy, whom they named Finley J. Shepard, Jr., some time ago, will soon adopt a five-year-old girl named Helen Smith from an institution. The child is said to be at present visiting at the Shepard home in Tarrytown, where she is playing with the little boy, his playmate, Louis Seaton, and Mrs. Shepard's two nieces. Physical and mental tests have already been made, and it is expected that after the child has been in Tarrytown about three weeks she will be adopted.

Mr. Shepard said some weeks ago that he and Mrs. Shepard were thinking of adopting another child, but the legal steps, it is understood, have not yet been taken.

JOHN C. TATUM DEAD.

Wealthy Cotton Broker Who Figured in Long Marital Troubles.

John C. Tatum, wealthy cotton broker, died of pneumonia at his home at Great Neck, L. I., at 7 o'clock last night. He had been ill ten days.

The marital troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Tatum were many before the courts in the last two years. Following his loss of a divorce suit in January of 1915, Mr. Tatum took steps to oust his wife from Pontiac, their handsome Long Island home. She was ousted, but later again took possession with the aid of two constables. She held the "fort" for five months and then disappeared. On June 23 she sold her claim in the home for $150,000. In April Mr. Tatum had been ordered to pay her $75 a week maintenance.

DR. J. WILLIAM WHITE, NOTED SURGEON, DIES

Professor Emeritus of Surgery of University of Pennsylvania a Victim of Pneumonia.

HIS SERVICES IN FRANCE

Author of Widely Known Medical Books and Member of Many Scientific Societies.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Dr. J. William White, noted surgeon, author, trustee, and Professor Emeritus of Surgery of the University of Pennsylvania, died from pneumonia at his home here tonight. He was in his sixty-sixth year and since last September had been virtually helpless from a disease of the vertebrae. Dr. White then returned from France, where he served as Chairman of the Philadelphia Committee of the American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly-sur-Seine. Pneumonia developed last Thursday and since that time his life had been despaired of.

Dr. White, who was a distance swimmer of note in his younger days, was known for his active interest in athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was President of the Athletic Association, a member of the University Committee on Athletics, and the first Professor of Physical Education. He was held in high esteem by both the students and Faculty, and it was largely through his efforts that the football relations between Annapolis and West Point were resumed. In addition, he was instrumental in bringing their annual gridiron contests to Soldiers' Field in Philadelphia.

For more than twenty years Dr. White had spent several months annually in foreign travel. While in France last year he wrote extensively about the war and the work done for the wounded by the American physicians and surgeons.

Dr. White was a son of the late Dr. James W. White and received his education in the public and Quaker schools of Philadelphia and in the University of Pennsylvania, from which he received the degrees of M. D. and Ph. D. He also received the degree of LL. D. from the University of Aberdeen, which was conferred on him for his distinguished services to surgery in 1906.

After graduation Dr. White joined the staff of Professor Louis Agassiz during the Hassler expedition to the West Indies, the Strait of Magellan, both coasts of South America, and the Galapagos Islands, from which he returned at the end of 1872. He then became resident physician at the Philadelphia Hospital. Following this Dr. White was surgeon of the Eastern State Penitentiary and surgeon of the First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry. He was Professor of Clinical Surgery and finally John Rhea Barton Professor of Surgery of the University of Pennsylvania. In addition Dr. White was surgeon of the University Hospital, consulting surgeon of the Philadelphia and Jewish Hospitals, and advisory surgeon of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Dr. White was one of the Commissioners of Fairmount Park and a member of the American Surgical Association and the College of Physicians of Philadelphia. He belonged to a number of scientific societies, both local and foreign, and a number of clubs, among which were the Rittenhouse, Corinthian Yacht, and Country Clubs of Philadelphia, the Reform and Automobile Clubs of London, and the Swiss and American Alpine Clubs.

Commodore Charles M. Holloway of Cincinnati, Ohio, one of the last of the pioneer empire builders of the West, died yesterday morning at the home of his son-in-law, W. L. Before the days of railroads he engaged in river transportation on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, where he later obtained a controlling interest in several of the more important lines. During the civil war he commanded the river fleet of the Northern Army, and took part in several battles on the Cumberland River. Following the war, Commodore Holloway engaged in the salt business in the Middle West, and became the leader of the industry, from which he retired on the formation of the so-called Salt Trust.

IRA H. LE VEEN DEAD.

Former War Correspondent Succumbs to Blood Poisoning.

Ira H. Le Veen, a reporter for the New York City News Association and former editor of a newspaper in San Francisco, Cal., died yesterday at his home, 704 Freedom Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I., from blood poisoning, as the result of having his foot crushed by an automobile.

Shortly after the beginning of the war Mr. Le Veen was sent abroad, and while at the front in France his eyes were affected by poisonous gases and he spent several months in a London hospital. When he returned a year ago, his eyes still gave him trouble, and he was forced to go to St. Luke's Hospital for treatment. Mr. Le Veen was a correspondent for The New York American during the Russo-Japanese war. Of recent years he was active in politics in Queens, and managed a newspaper in Long Island City.

Mr. Le Veen was educated as a lawyer and practiced his profession here for some time before taking up journalism. His daughter recently married Alfred M. Jesse of New Orleans, La.

During his career General McKerrell served with the Egyptian army, in the Soudan, on the Dongola expedition, and the Nile expedition. He had received the medals of the various campaigns, and was made a Commander of the Bath. His last command was the Second Battalion of the Cameron Highlanders. YANKEES LOSE THEIR THIRD GAME OF THE SEASON—WALTER JOHNSON TURNS TRICK AGAIN

JOHNSON TRICKS YANKEE BATSMEN

Wins His Third Victory of the Season Over New Yorkers by Score of 8 to 2.

BAKER FAILS IN SERIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24.—Walter Johnson, the Senators' great pitcher, triumphed over the Yankees this afternoon for the third time this season, winning an easy game 8 to 2. Johnson, with his old battery partner, Ainsmith, in the game, looked better than at any time this Spring. The six hits credited to the New Yorkers came during the last three innings, four of them coming in the ninth and avoiding a shutout.

After sending the Yanks back to the bench as fast as they came up for six innings, Johnson eased up a bit. The six-run lead his teammates had carved out for him hardly made it necessary to overexert himself.

Bob Shawkey, who started in the box for the Donovan clan, was batted so hard in the fourth inning that Cullop replaced him. Cullop worked until the sixth, when he in turn was relieved by Urban Shocker.

Walter Johnson's triple to the centre field fence, scoring two runs, sounded Shawkey's recall in the fourth.

Maisel opened the Yanks' seventh with a single to centre, but was forced at second by High. Cook flied to Milan, Baker singled to centre, but the side was out when Morgan retired Gedeon.

The New Yorkers averted a shutout in the first half of the ninth. Shocker fanned to start the inning, Maisel singled, High shot a safe hit to left, and when Cook duplicated the trick Maisel scored. Baker forced Cook, but Gedeon's smash to right field scored High.

During the four-game series, which closed here this afternoon, Frank Baker failed to get a safe hit until he came to bat in the seventh inning. When the great slugger was with the Athletics he invariably found all of the Senators' pitchers easy. The score:

LUCK FAVORS CLEVELAND.

Erratic Playing of Browns Tosses Away the Game.

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—Cleveland defeated St. Louis here today, 5 to 4. Groom started pitching for St. Louis, but gave way to Davenport in the fifth inning after yielding eight hits. In this inning three singles, a stolen base, and Tobin's muff of Smith's fly netted the visitors three runs. Cleveland got its first two runs in the second, when, with two runners on bases, Pratt and Tobin let Graney's fly drop between them, scoring Turner and Wambsganss. Lawdermilk started for Cleveland, but after giving seven bases on balls and hitting a batter was displaced in the fourth by Bagby, who held the locals to one hit until the ninth, when they rallied, getting four hits and two runs. EXCUSES MULTIPLY TO POSTPONE GAMES

Giants Take Fright at Low-Hanging Clouds—Third Base Worries McGraw.

They are finding new excuses every day for postponing baseball games. Yesterday's tilt scheduled between the Giants and the Phillies at the Polo Grounds was called off on account of clouds. There was no rain and the field was not too soft for the teams to practice on, but seemed too soft for a regular game. The main reason for postponing the game was the threatening aspect of the low-hanging clouds.

There was a crowd of about 3,000 outside the Polo Grounds at 2:40 o'clock, when the game was called off. With the prospect of a pitching battle between Alexander and Tesreau in sight, the disappointment caused by the postponement was keen.

Both clubs had batting and fielding practice yesterday, Manager McGraw pitching to the Giants. Manager Pat Moran put his National League champions through their paces, and his players were deeply disappointed because they could not get another chance at the Giants.

The Giants left for Boston last night, where a four-game series with the Braves begins today. It is going to be a hard week on McGraw's club, for after the sojourn in Boston they return here for a series with Brooklyn, which begins at the Polo Grounds on Saturday.

Just now everybody is trying to sell Manager McGraw a third baseman. He has had so many offers of players for that position from friends all over the country that if he tried each one the same player would not be seen in the position in two games during the season. It is just as well not to mention third basemen to McGraw at the present time. He has heard so much about them that it is getting on his nerves.

The New York leader has not yet given up his confidence in Brainard and Hunter. Hunter will go in at the third sack just as soon as his injured hand is free. He may prove to be the Giants' find of the season. McGraw is confident that his pitchers will measure up to expectations just as soon as the warm weather comes, and he is not worrying about the club's batting and fielding ability.

The National League umpires have been instructed to follow the ground rule at the Polo Grounds which has been in practice at American League games for some time. Hereafter, when a ball hits the front of the upper tier of boxes in the right-field stand, it will go as a home run. Formerly, in the National League, if the ball did not go into the stand, the runner was limited to the number of bases he could get on the hit.

These are cheerful tidings. No longer will the rasping shouts of the peanut vendors jar the sensitive ears of the fans at the Polo Grounds. Impresario Harry Stevens of the forces which distributes the refreshments has issued a new edict prohibiting his hawkers from shouting. For this he is entitled to some thanks from suffering mankind.

The vendors at the Brush Stadium include probably some of the loudest voices in captivity. As they hopped up and down the aisles they shouted as if they were talking to some one a mile away. Hereafter, at the peril of losing their jobs, the vendors must use silencers and ask the fans quietly and softly if they care to be favored with refreshments. They have been ordered to speak at all times in a low tone of voice. Notices have been posted where the vendors can see them, "Stop shouting."

President John K. Tener of the National League, who has just returned after looking over a few of the clubs on his own circuit, is one of those who believe that the Giants are going to be prominent among the first-division talent in this year's race.

"You may talk about your $100,000 infields and your Ty Cobbs and your great stars of the diamond," he said, "but it is the pitching staff which counts in the long run. I think the Giants' pitching staff will show up remarkably strong just as soon as it hits its stride. I look for the team to accomplish a great deal as soon as it gets under way."

President Tener is also much pleased over the awakening of the Chicago Cubs and the Cincinnati team. He says that the attendance, both in Chicago and Cincinnati, shows a remarkable revival of feeling for the game, and he predicts a big season for both teams. Another pitching staff which President Tener has his eye on is that of Brooklyn. He considers the Dodger twirlers among the best on the circuit. The National League President predicts that this stretch of bad weather will not have much effect on the season, as the interest will make itself evident just as soon as the good weather comes.

The International League will get under way tomorrow, the games scheduled being Montreal at Baltimore and Buffalo at Richmond. The openings scheduled for Thursday are Toronto at Newark and Rochester at Providence. President Barrow has notified his umpire staff to meet him here today for final instructions. The umpires have been assigned as follows: Carpenter and Chestnutt at Baltimore, Cleary and Bransfield at Richmond, Hart and Keenan at Providence, and Freeman and Handiboe at Newark. President Barrow will attend the opening at Baltimore on Wednesday and at Newark on Thursday.

The Yankees will return to the Polo Grounds today for a four-game series with the Boston Red Sox, the world's champions.

EASTERN LEAGUE MEETS.

H. I. Cornen and A. C. Knorr Get the Bridgeport Franchise.

BOSTON, April 24.—At a meeting of the Eastern Baseball League here today the Bridgeport, Conn., franchise was declared forfeited to the league, and later was awarded to the Bridgeport Baseball Club, of which Harry I. Cornen is President and A. C. Knorr is Secretary. Both men live in South Norwalk.

The league voted that any Sunday games in Connecticut excepting those already scheduled must be arranged through the Secretary, who was authorized to provide two umpires for each of them.

In connection with the claims of clubs to several players, the league decided that such matters should be adjusted between the clubs concerned.

Umpires will meet next Thursday at Springfield for a conference with Vice President O'Neil. Assignments for the opening games on Friday will be made at that time. The next meeting of the league will be held in New Haven on the night of May 2.

Baltimore to Get Jack Ness.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Negotiations are pending, it was announced today, for the release of Jack Ness of the Chicago Americans to the Baltimore club of the International League. Ness, who is a first baseman, was obtained from the Oakland club in the Pacific Coast League, where he established a world's record for consecutive hits.

COLUMBIA BASEBALL SLATE STILL CLEAN

Union College Nine the Latest Victim of Morningside Collegians.

Columbia won another game of baseball yesterday, with Don Beck, the southpaw, in the box, on South Field. Union College of Schenectady was defeated by the score of 6 to 1. Columbia has not lost a game this season.

The Union nine was playing its first game of the season. Bill Goff worked on the mound, and, although he issued only eights hits, two of which were doubles and one a three-bagger, he blew up in the sixth frame, when he passed two, and singles by Buonaguro, Mernstein, and Beck, and a double by Lane resulted in five runs for Columbia. Friday had a big day in left field for Union. In the sixth inning he made the first put-out by spearing Hauck's drive with one hand. He also made two other difficult catches and got one assist.

Bunny Buonaguro, Columbia's short stop, who has been hitting well over .600, connected for a couple of singles in four times at bat.

Don Beck, in winning his third game of the season, allowed the visitors only three hits. Only in the sixth inning did he appear to show weakness. Goff then got a single and Moynihan reached first on a fielder's choice. Friday fanned and Beck filled the bases when he passed May. Goff was caught off third, and another pass to Steel again crowded the bases. Beck then tightened, and Zimmer went out on an easy grounder, retiring the side. Beck came back strong in the next inning, striking out the three batters that faced him. The score:

Hard Hitting in Eighth and Ninth Defeats Reds, 5 to 2.

CINCINNATI, April 24.—Hard hitting in the eighth and ninth innings by St. Louis enabled the visitors to win the second game of the series here today 5 to 2. Cincinnati took an early lead, but was tied in the third by Bescher's double and Beck's single. The local team took the lead again in the sixth, but the visitors managed to tally four runs in the last two innings. Bescher and Louden carried off the batting honors. The score:

YALE'S SWIMMERS DEFEATED IN WEST

Chicago Athletic Association Team Wins All Except Two Events.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 24.—Chicago Athletic Association swimmers defeated Yale's team, 30 to 19, in a dual meet tonight. In addition to this the Cherry Circle's relay team beat the Blue squad which had taken the national intercollegiate title last Saturday by a fair margin. The result was quite a surprise to the large gathering, as many had figured the Easterners the favorites.

Kenneth Huszagh was prominent in the victory of Coach Cox's team, as he won the 100-yard swim, finished second in the 40-yard event, and performed nobly on the victorious relay team. His brother Ralph, a high school boy, also earned a number of points for Chicago.

L. A. Ferguson, the Chicago member of the Yale team, swam a pretty race in the 220-yard event and won it by a good margin. After the 100-yard mark had been passed he loafed going to the finish line, while Hayford and Hopkins of Yale fought it out for the second position. The latter won it. The time was 2:37 2-5. The summaries:

40-Yard Swim.—Won by Rosener, Yale; K. Huszagh, C. A. A., second; Schlaet, Yale, third. Time—0:19 3-5.
Plunge for Distance.—Won by Lichter, C. A. A.; Bright, Yale, second; Olmsted, C. A. A., third. Time—0:18 4-5.
100-Yard Swim.—Won by K. Huszagh, C. A. A.; R. Huszagh, C. A. A., second; Rosener, Yale, third. Time—0:57 4-5.
Fancy Diving.—Won by Heyn, C. A. A.; Bernamann, C. A. A., second; Scobey, Yale, third.

CHANGES TO BE MADE IN HARVARD'S CREW

HARVARD SATISFIED WITH NEW STROKE

QUIMBY TO GET A SEAT

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 24.—Harvard's oarsmen returned to the Charles today and began work for the annual two-mile race with Cornell. The showing made by the regular eight against Princeton last week was not at all satisfactory, although the stroke was instructed not to take too much out of his crew, even though beaten. However, the second eight did so well that it is believed one or two of the men are due for a trial with the 'Varsity.

There will be changes almost from day to day for the next two weeks, in the hope that the final combination for both the Cornell and Yale races can be picked. No order will be at all significant until May 1, and all sorts of changes and shifts are in the air. One man sure to be placed in the 'Varsity boat is Quimby, who rowed No. 7 for the second crew at Princeton. He would have been in the first eight weeks ago had he been eligible. White, the second crew stroke, will be tried in Lund's place for a time, and his becoming a regular is not unlikely.

The crew at Princeton was heavier forward than it was aft, there being a difference of nearly twenty pounds in the two fours. Taylor, who has been at No. 4, probably will land at No. 6, and Morgan will be sent forward to No. 4 or No. 5. Talcott will go from No. 7 to No. 5, to make room for Quimby, while Cabot will be tried at bow. Stebbins's place probably will be No. 3.

Harvard is satisfied with the stroke the men are rowing, but the problem of the next few weeks will be to get the proper combination. It is hoped that this will be done at least by May 6, as a week later Harvard's second and third crews will enter the American regatta at Philadelphia.

QUARTERS FOR OARSMEN.

Columbia Crew Men Assigned to Dormitory and Training Table.

Columbia 'Varsity crewmen will go into training quarters tomorrow until the annual regatta at Poughkeepsie on June 17. The oarsmen will room together in one of the campus dormitories until the squad is taken to Poughkeepsie the end of next month and meals will be prepared at one of the boarding houses near the university grounds.

All the Columbia shells put out from the Edgewater boathouse yesterday morning, but the water was rough and the wind cold, so Coach Jim Rice ordered only a four-mile spin. There was no rowing in the afternoon.

HARVARD STARTS PRACTICE.

Football Men Respond to Call of Capt. Dadmun for Spring Work.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 24. Development of Harvard's football team for next Fall began today, when a squad of candidates for places on the eleven responded to Captain Harrie H. Dadmun's call for Spring practice. Under the direction of Lee H. Leary, who is to act as field coach in charge of the squad, until Percy D. Haughton, head coach, is able to take over supervision, the candidates were given light work indoors.

Most of those who reported were members of the freshman team and second string men of last year, the remaining members of Captain Mahan's eleven being encompassed with other sport activities. Prospects of obtaining likely players to replace men lost by graduation or by deficiency in studies were said to be encouraging. The Spring drill will last three weeks.

BOURGEOIS FAR IN LEAD.

Gelding Romps Away In Grand National Steeplechase.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 24.—George Brown, Jr., riding the big bay gelding Bourgeois, owned by J. Sawyer Wilson, Jr., today won the seventeenth Grand National Steeplechase, the principal event of the racing run annually in the Green Spring Valley. Society folk from New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Baltimore watched from a plowed field on a hill overlooking the course while Bourgeois led throughout the three miles over a natural course. The winner passed the finish line fully a quarter of a mile in front of Thomas E. Cottman's Patrick, ridden by Buchanan Blakistone.

Mr. Wilson also had the honor of seeing his colors carried to the finish in third position as his Game Chick, with Ralph Hutchins up, was not far behind Patrick. The only other of the eleven thoroughbreds which started and finished was Victor Flat, owned and ridden by Albert G. Ober, Jr.

The only Philadelphia contestant was F. Ambrose Clarke, who rode his own horse, Chateau Lafitte. Mr. Clarke's mount suffered several fences and was never in the running.

John Sawyer Wilson will present a silver cup to the winner of the race. The race last year was won by Meltoner, owned by William J. Clothier of Philadelphia, and ridden by J. G. Leiper, Jr., of that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harris Brewster, Jr., gave a dinner at Scrooby Manor in the Valley following the race. There were 150 guests.

BIG ENTRY FOR RACE MEET.

Nominate 270 Thoroughbreds for Belmont Park Terminal Events.

Two hundred and seventy entries of thoroughbred horses, owned by upward of two score prominent horsemen, have been entered for the annual Spring two-day race meeting of the United Hunts Racing Association, to be held at Belmont Park Terminal on May 18 and 17. This is by far the largest nomination ever received for an amateur race meet in this country, and has been rarely exceeded in the history of American thoroughbred racing.

The excellent meeting conducted by the United Hunts Racing Association last Autumn only received eighty-six entries, while the total for last Spring's meet did not reach that figure. There are thirteen events on the two-day program for the Belmont Park Terminal, and this gives an average entry for each event of twenty-one. Big fields of starters are assured, because the entrants are such that scratches will be the exception rather than the rule.

The list of nominators includes August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club; F. Ambrose Clark, Harry La Montagne, Millidon Stable, Edward F. Whitney, Archibald Barclay, Foxhall P. Keene, Malcolm Stevenson, A. J. A. Devereux, Ralph Parr, Mortimer L. Schiff, H. W. Sage, Herbert L. Pratt, and the Greentree Stable.

Several championship races are included on the card, the purses for which are valued at $13,500 in cash, in addition to handsome plate. The events include steeplechases over the brush course, races for hunters over post and rails, and races on the flat. Two races each day are limited to gentlemen riders, and to encourage their participation in all the events the amateurs are allowed a five-pound handicap in the other races.

Columbia Interclass Track Meet.

Columbia University's annual Spring interclass track meet will be held on South Field this afternoon. Juniors and freshmen are expected to fight it out for first honors. The meet will afford Coach Bernie Wefers his first opportunity to judge the candidates for the weight events. Columbia will be lacking in dependable men for the shot put and discus throw this year, but the track management has entered a large number of novices for these events.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 24.—The Cornell wrestling team has re-elected F. C. Sager Captain of the team for next year.

Eight Clubs in Medley Race.

At a meeting of the Long Island Athletic League held last night at the Trinity Club of Brooklyn eight clubs nominated teams for the medley relay race, which is to feature the games of the Smart Set A. C. They are the Trinity Club, Central Y. M. C. A., Emanuel House, Long Island A. C., Knights of St. Antony, Presentation Club, and Loughlin Avenue. Plans were also drawn for the holding of a novice meet at Celtic Park in June.

MAY RESTRAIN FOUR DESERTING CYCLISTS

Union Men Jump Back to National Association Ranks After Signing Contracts.

The bicycle war in Newark will probably reach the courts in a day or so, John A. Matthews, Vice President of the Federation of American Cyclists, stated yesterday morning that he would recommend suing for injunctions restraining George Cameron, Harry Kaiser, Martin Ryan, and Lloyd Thomas from competing in bicycle races at the Newark Velodrome. These riders signed contracts with the Velodrome promoters last week and were prepared to compete in the races scheduled for Sunday, which were not run on account of rain.

Matthews stated that the quartet had signed contracts with the Harry Pollok syndicate to ride twice each week at the track being built at Washington Park, Brooklyn, and that the contracts called for exclusive competition under Federation of American Cyclists' control, which, according to Matthews, will undoubtedly hold in court. Alf Goullet will confer with Pollok and the latter's associates this morning on the case. Matthews will suggest that Kaiser and Cameron be proceeded against in New York. He will take care of Ryan and Thomas in Newark courts, he said.

The plans for the Bronx track to be built by Billy Gibson at Bronx oval are complete, and it is expected that the foundation will be started within a few days. One signature to the lease on the Bronx property is holding up the promoters.

FAST BOUTS IN NEWARK.

Pennant A. C. Makes Good Showing in A. A. U. Tournament.

NEWARK, N. J., April 24.—Many prominent people, including Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, witnessed the close of the amateur boxing tournament held by the National Turn Verein tonight. It was the first tournament held under the new State law which permits A. A. U. bouts. The chief honors were divided between local contestants and the members of the Pennant A. C. of New York, the best-contested bout of the evening being between Harry Glazer of the Pennant A. C. and Fred Jacobs, Pennant A. C., in the 110-pound class. Glazer earned the decision after three fast rounds. The summary:

WENCK TO CHOOSE REFEREE

Four Candidates In the Field for Fulton-Reich Bout.

The squabble over the question of naming a referee for the Fulton-Reich bout has reached such a stage that Fred A. Wenck, Chairman of the State Athletic Commission, who was requested to appoint the official, asked for time while he considered the evidence in the case. He has promised to render his verdict today. There are four applicants for the honor of being the third man in the ring when Fulton gets his tryout before the New York boxing fans at the Stadium A. C. Friday night. They are Matt Hinkel, Charlie White, Bill Brown, and Kid McPartland.

Hinkel was alternate referee of the Willard-Johnson fight in Havana, but Commissioner Wenck said that it would be unfair to nominate a Cleveland man with such an array of home talent to choose from. Maxey Blumenthal advocates the appointment of White, Johnny Mack, financial backer of the bout, wants Brown appointed, and Billy Gibson holds out for the official referee of the Stadium A. C., Kid McPartland.

For holding up the Genesee Athletic Club of Syracuse for $25 before he would box there on the night of April 20 Young Coulon of Buffalo was suspended for thirty days and ordered to return the money to the club.

JOHNNY ROSNER DEFEATED.

Jimmy Wilde Stops New Yorker in Eleventh Round in London.

LIVERPOOL, April 24.—The seconds of Johnny Rosner of New York tonight threw up the sponge to Jimmy Wilde, the English flyweight champion, in the eleventh round of what was to have been a twenty-round bout. The American boy was badly punished, but throughout the fight showed great gameness.

The stadium was packed with spectators. Both Rosner and Wilde were in perfect condition for the battle, except that Rosner had a black eye, which had been bruised during his training.

Wilde was the aggressor from the start and frequently landed on the damaged eye of the American. From the third round Rosner bled profusely from a cut under the eye, but he retaliated with extraordinary gameness and used both hands effectively in landing body punches on his antagonist. Wilde, however, obviously was the master of the situation, and despite Rosner's pluck his damaged eye brought about his downfall in the eleventh round, when his seconds gave in for him.

NEW ORLEANS, April 24. Jack Britton of Chicago wrested the world's welterweight championship title from Ted Lewis of England tonight, when he was awarded a referee's decision over the British boxer at the end of a twenty-round bout. Dick Burke of New Orleans refereed the match.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Recover Very Sharply—Wall Street Thinks Break with Germany Will Be Avoided.

In some high banking quarters, as well as in Stock Exchange circles, the view prevailed yesterday that there would be no break with Germany as a result of the demands which the United States embodied in the note which was sent to Berlin last week. In more detail the belief was that Germany would make a conciliatory answer which would lead to further discussion and to an avoidance of a severance of diplomatic relations over the submarine attacks which have been made so far. This interpretation of the international situation was based in part on past experience in reference to American demands on Germany and in part on the dispatches from Berlin telling of the German reception of our note and of the existence of a strong sentiment in favor of maintaining diplomatic relations with the United States. The adoption of this viewpoint regarding the submarine controversy was at the bottom of the very striking upturn in prices which occurred in yesterday's Stock Exchange trading.

The first hour was marked by great activity and the whole day by a show of strength, at first feverish and then more settled in its tone. The response made to the calls for margins which went out after Saturday's sharp break was so satisfactory that there was relatively little forced selling yesterday. During the closing days of last week there was a good deal of liquidation of long stock which was reflected in the fact that brokers paid off a long amount of loans yesterday. This itself relieved the market situation considerably and gave all the more effect to the short covering which went on from the very start of yesterday's trading and to the new buying for the long account, which reached considerable volume.

Saturday's break was accentuated by aggressive bear pressure exerted partly on the theory that the news over Sunday would do nothing to relieve the diplomatic tension. As a matter of fact, the news was interpreted to mean that the situation had become much less acute instead of more acute, and the bears were thus caught at the double disadvantage of having the news go against them and of having to contend in their repurchases with a good deal of new buying by those who had come to the conclusion that the danger of a break with Germany was as good as past.

Just as conclusions were jumped at in Saturday's market, so they were jumped at in yesterday's trading. A more sober view might have lessened the force both of the decline and of the recovery. Speculators have been keen to gain a position of advantage on the basis of news which was regarded as capable of producing decided effect upon the market, and as they have believed that the news was going one way or the other they have changed their position rapidly to adjust themselves to their varying interpretation of the outlook. This has brought about the feverishness of the market these recent days with its sharp reversal in prices. It would appear that in going as far as they did yesterday in assuming that the crisis in our relations with Germany had passed traders were exposing themselves to surprise should their interpretations of the news not be borne out by the official Germany position. That still remains to be defined, and obviously any effort to determine what it is to be involves a good deal of guesswork. That is a poor basis upon which to base calm judgment, but it is the basis upon which a great deal of speculation is conducted.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Response to Margin Calls.

The Monday morning mail brought to the commission houses a readier response to margin calls than most of them, judging from previous experience in wide breaks, had reason to expect. All houses, of course, had customers who could or would go no further, but their number was offset by an unexpectedly large number who took up their stocks or supplied their brokers with funds sufficient to mark them down another 50 per cent. In one of the houses it was said that the total of its margin calls was $42,000 and that more than $160,000 had come in. While other houses reported no such excess of receipts over requests, it was the consensus that money made in last year's speculation was still widely enough distributed among the people to keep the wheels of speculation whirling for some time longer.

The depleted margins on the call loans of brokers caused no more trouble than did the weakened margins of the customers of the brokerage houses. All the banks had envelopes that needed filling in the morning and most of them were supplied with the additional collateral before the notices reached the borrowers. Three of the largest Wall Street banks noted that many loans were paid off. In all of them the Stock Exchange and banking positions were described as strong enough for any reasonable contingency. As was the case last Fall when the banks first called a halt on the hilarious speculation in the war stocks, customers paid the brokers, the brokers paid the banks, and the market could go forward unrestrained by any weakness in funds or credit.

Looking Backward.

Hindsight in Wall Street sometimes paints things in a more roseate hue than before and often it does not. The holder of Lackawanna Steel shares who balked three months ago at selling into the combination of the Cambria-Youngstown Sheet & Tube—Lackawanna companies—for $80 a share because he thought $90 should be paid, would have received $12 a share less than the lower figure if he had liquidated at yesterday's best price. The Youngstown stock is quoted considerably nearer $200 than $300 a share, and there were owners who desired something like $350 a share in the merger. There are regrets in some quarters because the deal did not go through, but as far as can be learned no new steps are being taken for a combination. A Director of one of the companies said yesterday that they are making plenty of money individually and prefer to go it alone.

Steel's Quarter.

The report of operations in the year's first quarter will come from the Steel Corporation today, following the Directors' meeting. Estimates put the probable net income, after operating costs and interest on subsidiary company bonds, between $61,000,000 and $64,000,000. If the lower of these figures is realized, the increase over the preceding quarter will be not far from $10,000,000 and far and away the biggest quarter on record. There have been rumors of late that an extra dividend would be declared, but no strong impression appeared to be held in brokerage offices yesterday that an extra disbursement would be voted at this time.

March Kind to Southern Pacific.

In prehistoric times the announcement that the Harriman roads were to put out their earnings statements at noon meant that the market would wait until it had the figures, after which there would be a spirited burst of activity. The earnings usually furnished the big market news of the day. Now the traders hardly pay them the compliment of looking at the totals. On the publication yesterday of an excellent March statement for the Southern Pacific the price

MERCANTILE MARINE REPORTED IN DEAL

American International Corporation Said to Have Acquired Control.

BONDS REMARKABLY ACTIVE

Yesterday's Turnover $464,000—Purchase Would Result in Largest American Shipping Concern.

Reports that the American International Corporation, the $50,000,000 corporation headed by Charles A. Stone and Frank A. Vanderlip and designed to develop the country's foreign trade, had acquired a large interest in the securities of the International Mercantile Marine Company, were widely circulated about the financial district yesterday to the accompaniment of an impressive display of strength in the Marine company's securities.

That company's common stock, on sales of more than 30,000 shares, advanced 2½ points to a high and closing price of 23½. The preferred, closing at 80¼, scored a net gain of 6⅜ points on the day after more than 85,000 shares had changed hands. The 4½ per cent. bonds sold from 96 to 98⅛, with $70,000 of them changing hands at the high price just before the close, and $861,000 representing the day's turnover.

This remarkable activity and strength in the three classes of the company's securities attracted all the more credence to current rumors because the same securities were strong last week, while most of the other speculative industrials were all but panic-stricken by the German war scare. From the low prices of last week yesterday's close showed gains of 8¼ points in the common, 0¼ points in the preferred and 3¾ points in the 4½ per cent. bonds.

Men who are representative of the stockholders' committees, which have been engaged in the long fight over the reorganization of the company and whose business it is to watch the transfers of stock as closely as possible, declared that they were confident that the heavy buying of the past week had been principally for the account of the American International Corporation or for interests closely connected with that company. Not only had large blocks of stock been bought for that account, they said, but there had been bought enough to transfer to the new corporation the upper hand in the control after reorganization.

It was insisted by these men that there had been bought for the International Corporation's account large blocks of common as well as preferred, and that the potential strength of that company in rehabilitation proceedings was strengthened by the ownership of large blocks of stock by individuals who are disposed to work with the strong interests in control of the International Corporation.

A member of one of the stockholders' committees also said that no objection to the change of control would be raised by his committee, for the reason that the interest of his committee was to secure proper consideration for the stock, and that he was satisfied that the company would be conducted to good advantage by the new interests.

The American International Corporation has an authorized capital of $50,000,000, but only $10,000,000 has been called and paid in. The company is in a position, however, to issue its own debentures against new acquisitions. The first important piece of business of the company was the purchase of ships and the formation of plans for developing the company's commerce by ships under the country's flag. The ships it secured were from the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, which had previously sold five of its largest vessels to the International Mercantile Marine. With the addition of the entire Mercantile Marine fleet the position of the company would be superior to that of any American company which has entered the shipping trade.

But while the rank and file of Wall Street, arguing from the tape, and representatives of stockholders' committees, basing their belief on close analysis of stock transfers, accepted the reports of buying for the new corporation, official advices were either disparaging or lacking in conviction. One of the Directors said he had not heard of the reports, and did not believe them. The company was not organized for any such purpose, he insisted. Another Director said that while the matter had not been brought before the board and he had no official knowledge, he had heard "on the outside" that the reports were true.

Mr. Stone, the President of the company, was in Boston, confined to the house by an attack of laryngitis.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Prices were improving on the Consolidated Stock Exchange the greater part of the day, the closings being at or about the best figures. Absence of fresh disturbing news over Sunday was taken as good news at the start of business. The general tone of the latest advices from Germany regarding the submarine dispute was construed as conciliatory. Opening quotations in most instances reflected substantial improvements compared with Saturday's closing levels. The advance in International Mercantile Marine shares was one of the features of the day.

CLOSER GUARD ON EXCHANGE

Members Forbidden to Take Guests to Luncheon Club.

Following other measures for the exclusion of strangers since the dispatch of President Wilson's note to Germany, the Stock Exchange authorities yesterday notified members that in the future they would not be permitted to bring guests into the rooms of the Luncheon Club on the top floor of the building. Previously outsiders were permitted only when accompanied by members, so that the new rule destroys the bare chance that a member might entertain an enemy unawares.

On the day following the crisis with Germany the New Street entrance was closed to all except members, and the Wall and Broad Street entrances were more closely guarded. Uniformed messengers were placed at both entrances to point out persons accustomed to enter the Exchange building on business. Yesterday, as a further precaution, experienced messengers in plain clothes guarded the Broad Street entrances from the outside and tipped off the guards, so as to reduce the chance of any but members entering there.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Harris, Forbes & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company, William P. Bonbright & Co., and H. M. Byllesby & Co. are offering $18,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the Northern States Power Company.

D. H. Foote, Secretary of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company, announced yesterday that the Bankers Trust Company had been appointed transfer agent for the corporation's stock in New York on April 1.

The Hupp Automobile Company reports net earnings of $155,098 in the quarter ended March 31, a gain of $69,026 over the same period last year. March net income was $75,-356, an increase of $18,461 over February and of $30,033 over January.

A report of the annual meeting of the Exploration Company, Limited, of London reached this city yesterday, showing that on April 7 the company had $880,990 invested in copper stocks, the most important being Chile Copper and Greene-Cananea Copper shares.

A syndicate headed by F. J. Lisman & Co. has bought $750,000 three-year 6 per cent. notes of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, dated May 1, 1916. The proceeds will be used to pay off an equal amount of notes due May 1.

CHARGE WASTE ON L. I. R. R.

Litigants Ask That $27,000,000 Debt to Pennsylvania Be Canceled.

Testimony was taken yesterday before Justice Lehman of the Supreme Court in the suit of E. R. Dick of Dick Brothers & Co., and other minority stockholders of the Long Island Railroad for an accounting against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and its Directors. The plaintiffs want an accounting of the expenditures made on the Long Island Road since 1910. The testimony of Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Road, taken before trial and consisting of nearly 400 pages, was read into the records by Kellogg & Rose, counsel for Dick Brothers.

This testimony is suplementary to that given by Vice President Tatnall of the Pennsylvania Road. It has been learned that the plaintiffs will seek a restraining order whereby all of the indebtedness of the Long Island Road to the Pennsylvania Road in the form of notes and debentures amounting to about $27,-000,000, will be canceled. The plaintiffs say that more than $28,000,000 was spent in a manner that did not benefit the road.

John F. Stevens, a civil engineer, and an expert in railroad expenditures, testified that the Long Island road lost $1,-033,000 a year because of extensions of the tubes under the East River as the majority of passengers no longer used the road's ferries, that for three years the Long Island road lost $89,400 by paying rent for offices to the Pennsylvania system in place of using its own offices in Long Island City, and that an unnecessary expense of $5,558,000 was incurred by electrifying the road beyond Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn.

Mr. Stevens also said that the expenditure of $8,883,408 for the Bay Ridge cut-off for freight was not necessary because there was little or no freight business in that section, that the expenditure of $875,770 for the Sunny Side and North Shore yards, and the construction of the Montauk cut-off might be regarded as unnecessary as far as the Long Island road was concerned. He testified that the depreciation of real estate values of the Long Island City terminals amounted to $3,200,000, and that the total loss through the operation into the Pennsylvania Station since 1911 to 1914 amounted to $2,808,827.

The trial will be continued today.

N. Y. U. FACES DEFICIT OF NEARLY $40,000

Cost of Running the Departments Next Year Will Increase $90,000.

NAME NEW MEDICAL DEAN

Dr. Samuel A. Brown Succeeds Dr. Park—Teaching Staff Is Increased.

At a meeting of the New York University Council yesterday the annual budget, expecting an expenditure of $760,000 to meet current expenses for the coming year, received the ratification of the university officers. To defray the cost of running the university the budget submitted yesterday included an estimate of all receipts, including the income from students' fees, room rents, the income from endowments and gifts, which, it is expected, will total $723,301.50. The figures ratified by the Council, as compiled by the Executive Committee, show an uncovered deficit of nearly $40,000. The cost of running all departments will show an increase of $90,000.

The Council approved a plan by which students in the University College will receive both the degree of Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Medicine upon the completion of a two and one-half year course in the college department, together with the regular medical course in the university and Bellevue Hospital Medical College. Dr. Samuel A. Brown was appointed Dean of the Medical College, while Professor Marshall S. Brown, head of the Department of History, was made acting Dean of the College of Arts and Pure Science, during the absence for one year of Dean Archibald L. Bouton.

It is estimated that $526,208.50 will cover the cost of instruction for next year, which is an increase of $50,000 over the appropriation for salaries for the present year. This increase includes an advance of approximately $13,000 to the salaries of instructors. Total expenses will be $762,850.

Dr. Samuel A. Brown, who becomes the head of the university and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, has been a member of the teaching staff of the Medical College for about twenty years, and is a graduate of the school and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. During former Dean Dr. William H. Park's term of office Dr. Brown served as Secretary of the Medical College, and has been acting Dean since the resignation of Dr. Park. Among the other appointments in the Faculties of the various university departments ratified yesterday was the appointment, in the School of Commerce, of Professor Ralph Starr Butler as Professor of Business Administration. Professor Butler was formerly in charge of the business course in the Extension Department of the University of Wisconsin.

Other appointments to the teaching staff were W. J. Buchanan to be instructor in biology in the University College, E. Levy to be assistant in the Department of Pathology, Physiology and Pharmacology in the Medical College, Wolslav Petrovitch to be lecturer in French in the Washington Square College, John Q. Frey to be instructor in chemistry in the Newark Branch of the Washington Square College, Thomas R. Stanley to be instructor in business English, B. Carroll Reece to be assistant in finance, and Irving M. Olwright to be assistant in commercial law in the School of Commerce, Milton E. Loomis to be Assistant Professor of Government, and Dr. Charles A. Fenner to be Assistant Professor of English in the University College.

The university authorities have decided to establish a New York University Press to publish books.

The Students in Engineering Receive the Illig Prizes.

By formal vote of the Columbia University engineering faculty yesterday the Illig medals were awarded to John P. Hubbell of Garden City, James T. Kemp and Joseph J. Kuchar, both of New York City. Each year the medals are given to the three students in the graduating class in the schools of engineering who in the judgment of the faculty have completed their college courses most proficiently. They are provided by the income of a fund willed to the university by William C. Illig, a graduate of the School of Mines in the class of 1882. John T. Kemp, one of the three students named for this year's award, is a son of Professor James F. Kemp, head of the department of geology.

The faculty awarded the Darling prize in mechanical engineering to Ferruccio Baseri, a young Italian-American, who was voted by the members of his class to be the most helpful and deserving student in the fourth-year division. Both the Illig medals and the Darling prize will be conferred formally at the annual commencement on June 7.

STRIKERS ARE ROUTED; SHOTS FIRED IN RIOTS

Westinghouse Laborers Repulsed by Stream of Hot Water—Two Persons Injured.

PITTSBURGH, April 24.—The first serious rioting in the strike of 13,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in East Pittsburgh occurred tonight. Several shots were fired and an unidentified striker and a detective were injured. The trouble was the climax of a day of disorder.

Fifteen hundred strikers were returning after breaking up a meeting of shell makers in Wilmerding, an adjoining borough, when the clash tonight came. When the marchers reached the Cable Avenue bridge at the Westinghouse plant the strikers, it is said, charged past Deputy Sheriffs and mill guards and started toward the plant. The guards seized their riot guns, but this failed to intimidate the strikers. In the fight that followed one of the guards discharged a revolver. A detective knocked an unidentified striker senseless, and he was carried away by companions.

As the strikers neared the plant guards turned a stream of hot water from a fire hose on them. The strikers retreated, throwing stones as they ran. Charles Oakes, a detective, was struck by a stone. The strikers were finally compelled to scatter, and order was restored.

In Wilmerding late today strikers forcibly entered a building in which 1,800 shell makers were holding a meeting. The strikers overpowered the leaders and threw them out of the building, and then held a meeting of their own, presided over by J. H. Hall, whose discharge is said to have been an indirect cause of the strike.

The demands of the men were today presented to R. L. Wilson, Assistant General Superintendent at the Westinghouse plant. They ask an eight-hour day, restitution of men discharged within the last two weeks, no discrimination, continuation of the bonus system and the same pay for forty-eight hours a week as now received for fifty-two.

2,500 GET A WAGE INCREASE.

Tide Water Oil Co. Grants Advance Before Demand Made.

Notices were posted at the plant of the Tide Water Oil Company, Bayonne, yesterday that on May 1 an increase of 10 per cent. in wages would be given the men in the mechanical department and to laborers. A 5 per cent. increase will go to the others of the 2,500 employes. No demands had been made by any of the men, but there was much talk of a possible strike on May 1. Following the unsuccessful strike last July the Tide Water Company granted a 10 per cent. increase all around and in September reduced the working hours to eight a day.

Yesterday the National Sulphur Company announced a 10 per cent. increase in salaries for the 300 men at its Bayonne plant. Saturday the laborers demanded an increase, and fearing trouble, K. F. Miller, the Superintendent, closed down the plant until the officials acted on the demand. The plant will resume operations tomorrow morning.

COTTON RECOVERS AFTER EARLY DROP

MAY OPTION SHOWS LOSS

Moderate Amount of Selling on Orders from the South—Favorable Weather Reported.

After making an opening decline of 9 or 10 points, cotton yesterday rallied and closed unchanged to 3 points lower. The only option showing a loss was May, which was made the subject of considerable liquidation in anticipation of delliveries today. There seems to be little prospect of any big volume of notices on account of the excellent character of the local stock of cotton and the additional fact that contract prices are well below a basis of replacement.

The early break was due almost entirely to nervousness, and as a reflex for Saturday's break in stocks. There was a moderate amount of selling on orders from the South, which were sent largely through apprehension that the international political situation might result in a general break in all markets. On the decline there was good buying by trade interests, and the demand caused a quick though moderate rally.

The weather over the holidays was favorable. Scattered showers occurred in Texas. This moisture was beneficial and was sufficiently heavy to be of assistance to early Spring farming operations. Good showers also were reported throughout the Central and Eastern belts. The precipitation was not heavy except in the Memphis district, where rainfall of more than one inch was reported at several points. The visible supply of American cotton showed a decrease of only 60,000 bales, against a decrease of 105,000 bales last year.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged. The local market for spot cotton was steady, 5 points decline, 12.05c for middling. Sales, 1,000 bales.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat market was nervous and price changes during the day were feverish. At the outset there was some good buying on a more favorable interpretation of the political news, which was reflected by firmness in the security market, but, after showing an irregular upward movement which at one time carried values 1½ to 1¾c above the final of Saturday, prices eased off toward the close and final quotations were but ⅝c net higher. In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter was quoted at $1.23¾, No. 1 durum, $1.26¾; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.28¾, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.28¾, free on board, New York.

CORN.

The corn market was moderately active and net price changes were comparatively small, the market closing ⅛c higher to ⅛c net lower. The visible supply decreased 2,001,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 4,134,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 90 cents, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was irregular early in the day, with May showing some weakness under liquidation, but toward the close shorts in May were disposed to cover, and final quotations were net unchanged to ⅛c higher. The local cash market was steady, standard quoted at 50⅝@51⅝c; No. 3 white, 49¾@50¼c; No. 4 white, 48¾@49¼c; fancy clipped white, 52¼@53¼c; ordinary clipped white, 49¼@50¾c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Reports that the Belgian Relief Commission had purchased about 4,000,000 pounds of lard from Western packers on Saturday caused active buying in the lard market, and the entire provision list developed strength, and prices advanced to new high records for the season. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 33,000, estimated for Tuesday 15,000; Kansas City received 11,000 and Omaha 6,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

There was an active trade in the market for cottonseed oil, and most of the active positions advanced to new high records. The sharp upturn in lard was the principal bullish factor, which served to stimulate confidence in the price of oil, as it was said to have brought about a better demand for compound lard. COFFEE.

The coffee market was easier during the first part of the day, prices declining 3 to 5 points for the active positions, but at the close there was active covering, which resulted in a quick rally and final quotations were 2 to 6 points net higher. Total sales for the day were 61,250 bags, but the day's business was comprised principally of switching from May to the distant positions, especially to December at 24 points and to September at 13 to 16 points. The local spot market was inactive and unchanged, with Rio 7s quoted at 9¼c. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The strong support given futures today by Cuban interests caused a rush to cover by shorts, and prices on the Exchange reached new high records. The market opened generally 3 to 13 points higher and gradually advanced, with trading through out the day very active. Rumors of large export business in granulated sugar and the fact that holders of Cubans/raws were firm and higher caused additional strength to the market at midday, when prices were 7 to 20 points net higher. Later in the afternoon the market was sensational and closed strong, 12 to 24 points net higher, with sales for the day 35,000 tons, a record day's business since the opening of the Sugar Exchange. Range of prices:

The local market for raw sugar was firmer in tone, with holders asking higher prices, but trading was very quiet and no business reported. Spot prices were quoted nominal, with Cubas, cost and freight, 5¼c, equal to 6.14c for centrifugal and 5.37 for molasses, but there was no sugar available at these prices, holders generally asking 5¾c to 5¾c for Cubas, cost and freight. The market for refined sugar was firm, with two of the leading refiners advancing list prices, while others remained unchanged. Fine granulated was listed at from 7.25c to 7.40c. There was a fair trade reported, while withdrawals on old contracts were moderate.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 4,166 packages. The fresh stock came in slowly, and while a moderate supply was carried over from Saturday, it was all absorbed quickly and the market closed a little firmer. General sales of extras were at 35½@35¾c, and the fancier lots brought 36@36½c. The market is very strong for the cheaper goods. Renovated in good demand and firm. Ladles and packing stock still scarce and in sellers' favor. Creamery, extras, 92 score, 35½@35¾c; higher scoring, 36@36½c; firsts, 35@35¼c; seconds, 33½@34½c; thirds, 31@33c. creamery, half extras, 92 score, 34@34¼c; firsts, 33@33½c; seconds, 32@32½c; thirds, 30@31½c; State dairy, finest, 35c; good to prime, 33½@34½c; common to fair, 31@33c; renovated, extras, 33c; firsts, 31@32c; lower grades, 28½@30c; imitation creamery, firsts, 30@31c; ladles, current make, firsts, 28½@29c; seconds, 28c; lower grades, 27@27½c; packing stock, current make, firsts, 27½@28c; No. 2, 27c; lower grades, 25@26c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 25,905 cases. The market opened with strong Western advices and a very firm holding of high grade eggs owing to the high cost of stock arriving. There is fair trading for current distributing needs, but local dealers are not inclined to speculate at all freely at present high prices. There is but little change in the range of values. A few exceptionally fine marks of storage packed eggs are being in a little more than recently quoted for firsts, very rare lots even selling as high as we quote for extras. Current packings ruling firm and some lots of graded eggs are selling in range quoted for storage packings which might not pass a technical inspection in that grade. Dirties and checks firm in the better grades. Nearby white eggs plentiful and moving slowly; receivers are dependent upon speculative buyers for an adequate outlet, and the very top price appears to be 24c for the finest goods; many fair to good lines are being obtained at 23@23½c. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 23½@24c; storage packed, firsts, 22½@23½c; regular packed, firsts, 21@22c; seconds, 20@20½c; trade eggs, 19½@20½c; dirties, No. 1, 19½@19¾c; No. 2 and pewee, 18@19c; checks, good to choice, dry, 18@18½c; inferior checks, 17@17½c; State Penn., and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 24c; ordinary to good, 23@23½c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 22½@23½c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 22½@23½c; State Penn. and nearby, hennery browns, 23½@24c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 21½@23c; Duck eggs, State and nearby, Indian Runners, 31@32c; Md. and Baltimore, selected, 28@30c; Western and prime Southern, 27@28c; common to fair, Southern, 25@26c; goose eggs, per dozen, 40@60c.

terday, charged with arson in the second degree. According to the indictment, Mrs. Haeckeling on Aug. 15, 1915, set fourteen fires in her apartment at 615 West 143d Street in order to obtain $2,000 worth of insurance.

Assistant District Attorney Weller, who is prosecuting the case, presented evidence yesterday tending to show that Mrs. Haeckeling's home was overinsured by at least $1,000.

Among the witnesses called was an 11-year-old girl, Dorothy Perl, who said she saw Mrs. Haeckeling, who is 60 years old, leave her apartment fifteen minutes before the fire was discovered.

According to the defense, the fire was purely accidental. The trial continues today.

TRAFFIC VIA CANAL IS KILLED BY WAR

RATE REVISION IS AT ISSUE

Preference for Pacific Coast Consignees Is Attacked Before Commission.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Whatever promise the Panama Canal may hold for steamship competition with so-called transcontinental railways, the Interstate Commerce Commission was told today it lies in the somewhat distant future. Officials of the chief steamship lines which used to ply from coast to coast testifying in the reopening intermountain rate case declared that not only had they ceased to operate their vessels via the canal, but that there would be no resumption of the traffic certainly for a year, probably for two, and maybe for much longer. Higher profits in other traffic, due to the war, is the cause.

The commission heard two witnesses, H. H. Hamilton, General Manager of the Luckenbach Steamship Company, and H. E. D. Jackson, Vice President of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company. To these companies, the former with ten steamers, the latter with twenty-six, went much of the trade between American ports before the European war. The fleets of both companies are now scattered all over the world.

The Luckenbach Company will not resume coast to coast business before two years, Mr. Hamilton said, and the American-Hawaiian Line will not within one year, if then, according to Mr. Jackson.

Messrs. Hamilton and Jackson testified on behalf of the organizations in intermountain territory virtually the entire strip of the United States extending from a line drawn north and south through Denver to the Pacific Coast—who seek to prove that there is no longer reason for permitting the railroads to charge less for shipments from Eastern manufacturing and industrial centres to Pacific ports than to intermediate points.

The railroads oppose any change in rates, and in this stand are joined by trade and other organizations of Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Ore., San Francisco, San Diego, San Pedro, and other Pacific Coast cities to which the low rates now apply.

"We chartered three of our vessels the other day to the United States Steel Corporation for a year," Mr. Jackson said, "at much higher figures than we had ever obtained by operating them."

One of the Luckenbach boats has been in the service for two months, Mr. Hamilton said, with the exception of one or two which sailed to carry freight already contracted for. No other sailings were scheduled on this line.

ROMEIKE ESTATE IS $203.

Clipping Bureau Never Paid Till After Founder's Death.

An appraisal of the estate of Henry Romeike, who started the clipping bureau bearing his name and died in 1903, was filed yesterday by Transfer Tax Appraiser Berwin. The total assets of the estate were $2,087, but after deductions for debts and expenses of administration the net estate amounted to $203. The assets were a three-dollar bank deposit, personalty $84, and 498 shares of Romeike, Incorporated, clipping bureau, valued at $2,000.

The corporation was formed in 1902 and capitalized at $50,000, of which the decedent's share represented $49,800. At the time of his death the company owed him $5,936, had not yet paid a dividend, and had no profit on hand for that purpose. It was several years before it paid his estate the indebtedness and declared a dividend.

The beneficiaries were George D. Romeike, the son, and Henriette E. Mowen, the daughter of the decedent.

Appraisal of Part of Druggist's Estate Filed in Surrogates' Office.

The personal property in the estate of Henry T. Cutter, organizer of the Riker-Hegeman drug stores, who, with his wife, in his last years turned from a life of luxury to one of seclusion and who died on Jan. 20, 1914, was appraised at $2,478,536.31. An inventory was filed yesterday in the Surrogates' office by Appraisers Michael J. Egan and Leslie J. Tompkins.

The property was appraised as follows: Bonds and mortgages, $1,117,756; bonds, $414,072; stocks, $101,316; promissory note signed by decedent's wife, the late A. Gertrude Cutter, $800,000; cash, $34,75, and jewelry, $14,857. Of the bonds and mortgages, all but about $128,000 were shown to be recorded in the name of A. Gertrude Cutter. Promissory notes amounting to $87,000 were appraised as valueless. Other promissory notes made to the order of A. Gertrude Cutter were also appraised as of no value.

Guantanamo Sugar

The tock at present market, when compared with that of other sugar companies would seem to be far selling below its instrinsic value.

With the price of both raw and refined sugar continually advancing, caused by the increasing demand both from home and abroad, the earnings of this company should be the greatest in its history.

Moreover, it is estimated that with sugar at current prices, within the next fifteen months, earnings will amount to at least $75 per share.

At the present quotation of $80 I consider it an exceptionally attractive purchase and confidently expect to see a much higher price prevailing in the near future.

Supreme Court Holds That Even if Value Is Given Offense Still Exists.

LIMIT OF A FRAUD DEFINED

Justice McKenna's Decision Is Expected to Pave Way for Rigid Honesty.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—In defining today more clearly than ever before what constitutes dishonest advertising through the mails, the Supreme Court held in effect that advertisers, even though they give purchasers value received, are guilty of fraud if by exaggerated advertising propaganda they have led clients to expect more. Officials declare the decision will pave the way to scores of prosecutions and make possible the enforcement of a much more stringent Federal supervision of mail advertising.

The opinion was announced by Justice McKenna, reversing the District Court in Southern Florida which quashed an indictment against officials of the New South Farm and Home Company. The indictment charged unlawful use of the mails in selling tenacre farms. The Florida Court held that if a purchaser received his money's worth exaggerated propaganda was not fraud. Justice McKenna took the position that it was an offense if the article sold did not serve the purpose represented, no matter what the value might be.

In discussing what constituted a criminal offense under the statute governing the use of the mails, Justice McKenna said:

"Mere 'puffing' might not be within its meaning, of this, however, no opinion need be expressed, that is, the mere exaggeration of the qualities which the article has; but when a proposed seller goes beyond that, assigns to the article qualities which it does not possess, does not simply magnify in opinion the advantages which it has, but invests advantages and falsely asserts their existence, he transcends the limits of 'puffing' and engages in false representations and pretenses. * * *

"When the pretenses or representations or promises which execute the deception and fraud are false they become the scheme or artifice which the statute denounces."

PEARL MARKET IS HERE.

This City Now Taking the Place Which Paris Formerly Had.

The war is robbing Paris of the distinction it long enjoyed of being the world's distributing centre for Indian pearls. Hostilities had not been in progress many months before the Bombay exporters of the precious bead began to realize that operations in the Paris and London markets were no longer profitable. The same thing happened in the diamond markets in Paris, London, and Amsterdam, while the Antwerp market went to pieces completely when the Germans occupied that Belgian port.

Customs records show a steadily increasing business in direct pearl transactions between Bombay and New York. William B. Treadwell, the Government's sworn expert who examines practically all of the precious stones entering the United States, yesterday said New York Indian pearls were coming in direct than at any time in the history of the port.

Formerly, the trade was for the Bombay pearl merchants to ship their goods to Paris, and, to a less extent, London, where the French and English handlers sold to the European and American dealers. The war made distribution almost impossible, while as a matter of fact no demand exists for the pearls in the Old World.

The Indian trade, confronted with absolute stagnation in Europe, turned to the United States as the only solution of a serious problem. In some instances Bombay merchants have sent Indian representatives to New York to work up a direct buying market here. Direct importations have also been made by Madden Lane and Fifth Avenue dealers, while the foreign trade departments of one or more of the local banks have received consignments of the pearls from Bombay for which they sought customers.

WILL LEAVE RETAIL ZONE.

Manufacturers Join Movement to Restrict Fifth Avenue.

J. Howes Burton of 267 Fifth Avenue, Chairman of the "Save New York" Committee, which is endeavoring to keep manufacturing garment trades from the Fifth Avenue retail centre north of Thirty-fourth Street, received the following letter yesterday from Kram & Match, manufacturers of waists, now at 29 to 33 West Thirty-fifth Street, showing their hearty cooperation in the movement by consenting to move out of the retail zone:

Dear Sir: We beg to extend to you our hearty co-operation in your most worthy project to preserve New York's famous shopping district.

Having achieved our success in the manufacture of waists in New York City, our pride in the community fills us with the humble desire to do all in our power to further civic prosperity.

We are now negotiating for quarters outside the restricted zone and will move before Feb. 1, 1917.

Wishing you every success, we are,

KRAM & MATCH.

The Skirt and Garment Makers' Association a few weeks ago drew up resolutions expressing their approval of the plan to preserve the Fifth Avenue blocks above Thirty-fourth Street for retail trade, and several firms at that time said they were negotiating for loft space below the retail area. No manufacturing firms are moving into the district.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Determining the Duties Under Various Tariff Schedules.

R. H. Macy & Co. won yesterday before the Board of General Appraisers in a controversy dealing with the classification of table covers made of cotton velvet. Collector Malone returned the goods as pile fabrics, and took duty at 40 per cent. Judge Cooper sustained the claim for entry at 35 per cent. as Jacquard figured upholstery goods a reliquidation being ordered.

George Borgfeldt & Co. lost in the claim that small plain white china knobs, returned by the Appraiser as small guides, were properly dutiable as "buttons." The Collector assessed 50 per cent. as chinaware undecorated. At the hearing the testimony of one witness was offered by the importers to show that the merchandise was used as buttons. His testimony did not prove very convincing to the board.

The Badische Company imported aniline colors, the invoice calling for 168 casks. It was discovered and reported by the customs discharging officer that ten casks were not found in the shipment. The Collector made no allowance for the shortage, duty being paid on the 168 casks. Later, another steamer brought over ten casks to make up the importer's shortage. The Collector took duty. Judge Hay, reversing the Collector, said that there was no principle of law more fundamental as a guide in the administration of the customs than that the citizen was not required to pay duty upon merchandise he did not import.

The board upheld the claim of the Frank P. Dow Company, Inc., Seattle, for lower duty on importations of merchandise invoiced as "Babbit metal." After melting, however, the metal was found to be unsuitable for use as such by reason of the presence of an excess quantity of zinc. The Collector took duty at 20 per cent. as "manufactures of metal not specially provided for," whereas the board sustained the claim for entry at 10 per cent. as "waste not specially provided for."

Favorable action was taken in the case of J. D. Nordlinger, who imported Italian sour cherries. After picking, the cherries were dried in the sun for two or three days and then packed in barrels for shipment to New York. The Collector took 1 cent per pound duty on the plea that the merchandise was "dried fruit." Judge Waite disagreed and admitted the importation at 10 cents per bushel as "ripe cherries."

PUBLISHERS IN CONVENTION

Exhibits of many kinds of machinery used in the making of a newspaper were opened yesterday in the East and adjoining rooms of the Waldorf-Astoria, giving the appearance of a large composing room, when the typesetting, slugcutting, and other inventions were set in motion for the inspection of hundreds of newspaper publishers and editors, here to attend the annual meetings of the Associated Press and American Newspaper Publishers' Association, beginning, respectively, today and tomorrow.

The Board of Directors of the Associated Press held its regular quarterly meeting yesterday at 41 Chambers Street, and all the Directors were present, with the exception of two who died since last election, Charles W. Knapp, who left files of the Louis Republic to become Treasurer of The New York Times, and Herman Ridder, publisher of the New York Staats-Zeitung.

The annual meeting of the Associated Press will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Waldorf-Astoria, and after the regular business of the association it will have luncheon, at which President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University will deliver an address.

PLAN $1.000.000 TENEMENT.

Harlem Operation to Benefit 648 Families of Moderate Means.

One of the largest model tenement operations ever projected in New York has been planned for the upper Harlem district. The buildings, which will be constructed on the open-stair principle, so successfully worked out five years ago in the John Jay tenement dwellings in East Seventy-seventh Street, will be erected on a plot of twenty-six lots, now vacant, including the middle portions of the north side of 146th Street and the south side of 147th Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues.

The property, which has a frontage of 325 feet on each street, has just been purchased by a newly formed company known as the Open Stair Dwelling Corporation of 52 Vanderbilt Avenue. Among the Directors are Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Miss E. Mabel Clark, Miss M. DeG. Trenholm, Samuel Osgood Miller, Will Walter Jackson, Henry Atterbury Smith, John G. McIntyre, and William G. Speers. Mrs. Jenkins, with several other members of the company, has been interested for many years in providing healthy and sanitary homes for persons of modest means who are not able to pay the prices demanded in the large apartments, but who desire better conditions than are often found in the average tenement.

This new Harlem operation, including land and buildings, will cost about $1,000,000. Three large six-story houses will be built on each street, each about 100 feet in width, with ample courts and the best sanitary facilities. The suites will be arranged from two to four rooms with baths. There will be no interior halls or stairs and there will be a street court on each side of the houses in addition to a large central court. Public laundries with steam dryers will be provided in the basement. The six houses will accommodate about 648 families. The property was purchased from the Tubman estate through the Firm of Leonard J. Carpenter and Horace S. Ely & Co.

Waists Are Doing Well.

Present indications in the waist trade point to a continuance of the good business that has been done so far this season. A wide variety of fabrics is being used in these garments, many of which are elaborately and daintly trimmed. In the cotton waists the style trend seems strongly in favor of such cloths as organdies, dimities, lawns, and voiles, while crepe de chine and crepe Georgette are well up among the popular silks. Fine handkerchief linen, plain and ornamented with stripes or dots of varying size, is also being cut up to a considerable extent. A liberal use of color is one of the novel features of the current season's goods. Many yoke effects of one kind or another are seen in the most favored waists, and considerable hemstitching is also made use of. "Shadow" surplice effects are also seen in some models.

Duty Raised on Goose Skins.

The Treasury Department has advised Collector Malone of a change in the practice of returning dressed goose skins covered with down. Most of the custom houses of the country, it seems, have classified such merchandise as "furs dressed on the skin" by similitude. Some time ago the Treasury's experts started an investigation, which resulted in the proposal that goose skins of the kind referred to be uniformly classified as "downs on the skin, advanced or manufactured, not suitable for use as millinery ornaments." Under this classification the tariff rate would amount to 40 per cent. Assistant Secretary Malburn directed that the higher rate be levied, beginning thirty days from date.

Will Hold Orders.

The situation that has developed in the clothing trade will have the effect, so it is said, of holding the orders that have been received for next Fall, and at the same time probably bringing in additional business. Many of the retailers who either decided or were forced to send in late Spring duplicates found that the manufacturers were unable to fill these late orders in many cases. In fact, even some of the goods that were promised earlier in the season were not delivered. The retailers, it is believed, will not care to take similar chances of nondelivery for next Fall, and consequently a larger part than ever of the business they have to give will be placed early.

3,000 Silk Men Enrolled.

Upward of 3,000 men in the silk and allied industries have so far made known their desire to participate in the citizens' preparedness parade that is to be held in this city on May 13. About 5,000 paraders are expected in this division, and it is believed that within the next few days more than enough names will be handed in to fill the rolls. The headquarters banner was swung yesterday in front of 354 Fourth Avenue, where the Enrollment Committee meets today at 2:30. The silk men will assemble on the day of the parade in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, the line of march being down Fourth Avenue to Seventeenth Street, then to Fifth Avenue, at which the division will join the main parade to about Thirty-ninth Street. Individual silk flags and badges have been purchased, as has a national standard of silk for each one of the regimental subdivisions of the silk brigade. Six bands have been engaged. Alfred Wendt is marshal and Albert Tilt is chief of staff.

Silk Market Gets Soft.

The tendency during the last week or so in the silk market has been distinctly in the direction of lower prices, although as far as is known the more representative houses have made no concessions. Buyers appear to be in the mood of holding off their purchases until conditions in the manufacturing end become more settled. They are also showing a disposition to use up the goods they have on order before committing themselves further. The situation in the raw silk end is chiefly responsible for the weaker position of the market. The particular goods in demand, such as taffetas and crêpe Georgette, are probably as strong as ever from the price standpoint, but other fabrics may show somewhat of a decline in the near future.

Burlap Demand Continues Small.

The demand for burlaps continued small here during the week just passed, and prices maintained their downward course. Because of the lack of trading they were largely nominal. Yesterday they were held around 7½ cents for 8-ounce, 40-inch goods, and 10 cents for 10½-ounce burlaps of the same width. The latter, it is understood, could be bought around 9¾ cents if a sizable offer was presented. Reports from the Middle West indicate that second hands have been letting some goods out below the figures quoted on this market, but whether this is due to an opportunity of turning a profit on merchandise bought for speculative purposes is a question. Reports from Dundee indicate that, while the strike in the mills is still on, the workers are showing more of a disposition to return to work. Some have already gone back.

Dye Not So Important Now.

The piece goods selling agents have changed their argument for higher prices. Since the announcement that Germany is willing to ship 15,000 tons of coloring matter to this country the dye shortage can no longer be satisfactorily used in explaining the high prices for woolens. Increased labor cost is now the point made by the mill agents. They describe to the customer who questions a high price that the mills now have to pay from 20 to 25 per cent. more to their weavers than formerly. Even some of the mills that have so far not been affected by labor trouble or have been forced to advance labor prices a scant 10 or 15 per cent. are using the labor argument. The selling agents all agree that prices cannot come down, even if the 15,000 tons of dyes were in this country today.

To Vote on Referendums.

Ballots have been sent to members of the Silk Association of America that they may express themselves on several referendums submitted by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, of which the Silk Association is a member. Those submitted are Nos. 13, 14, and 15. No. 13 pertains to the report of the Chamber's special Committee on Maintenance of Resale Prices, the majority of which have already expressed an opinion in favor of Federal legislation for this purpose, under proper restrictions. No. 14 deals with the report of the Committee on Education regarding Federal aid in the promotion of vocational training, while No. 15 deals with the report of the special Committee on National Defense. The committees handling the last two subjects offer several recommendations favoring them, to be voted on.

Overcoat Buttons Are Short.

As evidence of the large demand for overcoats for next Fall the button manufacturers state that there has developed somewhat of a shortage in overcoat buttons. Even though the style for the next season will call for the plush back form in overcoats as well as in suit coats, thereby dispensing with the buttons that are sometimes used on ordinary belted back models, the supply of buttons has been rapidly depleted. The manufacturers in many instances are not in a position to cater to an abnormal demand owing to difficulties in getting shipments of raw materials.

Gray Goods Prices Firmer.

Good trading and firmer prices on certain constructions of printcloths marked yesterday's activities in gray goods here. It was said to be next to impossible late in the day to get 39-inch 80 squares for any delivery under 7¾ cents, some nearby goods having moved at that price, while some of the mills are asking 7½ cents. For May-June delivery there was good business on 39-inch 72-76s at 6⅞ cents, with sellers asking an eighth more in some cases. Some nearby Eastern 38½-inch 60-52s were reported to have sold at 5 cents, but this is hardly the general market figure. There were also reported sales of 38½-inch 60-48s and 39-inch 68-72s at 4¾ and 6⅝ cents, respectively, but it was said that both of these constructions could still be had under those prices in spite of the general scarcity of nearby goods. In the sheetings there were sales of "quick" 4-yard 48 squares and 4-7os at 6 and 5½ cents, respectively. Closing printcloth prices were:

39-inch, 68-72s	6½c
38½-inch, 64-64s	5¾c

38½-inch, 64-60s	5½c
38½-inch, 60-52s	4¾c

An Agreeable Climate

When it's hot in New York City people flock to Long Island's rolling hills and the seashore, where the temperature is at least ten degrees cooler.

Do you know that in winter the temperature on Long Island is ten degrees warmer than in New York City?

Doctors are recommending Long Island to their patients, as this region is noted for its freedom from miasmatic influences, and distinguished by its ozone-charged air, rich in balsamic odors, and suggestive of life, health and good spirits—utterly free from depressing humidity.

LIVE ON LONG ISLAND

NEW YORK STATE—SALE OR LET.

or commuter I have an extraordinary offering. A beautiful country home and 3 acres near Hudson River and State Boulevard, 35 miles out in Rockland County, will be sacrificed for $8,000; the price is half its cost and it is a buyer's opportunity. See it!

Howard Goldsmith, 110 West 34th St.

What a Prominent Evening Newspaper Said:

"Advice for those that are NOT Astors. Learn from the "Astor family that the way to be rich is to be patient. Do not "weep over your failure to buy Bethlehem steel. The higher "you go on that the harder you will fall. Land is better than "stock, even if it does have its ups and downs, with politicians "taxing it.

"If your money is in land, you do not have to look at the "ticker to see if it is still there. There are just two kinds of "real wealth—LAND and the MAN upon the land to get wealth "out of it.

"Own part of the land, work like a man to get it paid for, "get your house, vote intelligently against rascally overtaxation "—and in a few years you will not envy the man who bought "a 'war bride.' Such brides get quick divorces. Land sticks."

STAGE SHAKESPEARE ALL OVER THE CITY

HIS BOOKS IN WINDOWS

All-Star Casts in Tableaux and Scenes at Professional Women's League Celebration.

More Shakespeare was acted in New York yesterday than ever before on any one day, the actors ranging from the pick of the American and English stage to school children who played their parts in Morris-dances and pageants. There were lectures, addresses, and poems on Shakespeare without number. Striking signs of the Shakespearean renaissance were the show windows full of Shakespeare plays and books about Shakespeare. A second-hand dealer, with the decision of Judge Tuthill of Chicago in mind, brought out a faded and ragged copy of "The Great Cryptogram," by Ignatius Donnelly, and marked it up to $2.

Rehearsals for the Shakespeare Tercentenary celebration next month were held in many of the schools. There were Shakespearean recitals and entertainments in two large department stores.

Professor Christian Gauss of Princeton, who was the principal speaker at the Shakespeare celebration at the Washington Irving High School, combated "the Baconian heresy," revived by the Chicago judge. He said that contemporary references and documents gave a fairly full picture of the life of Shakespeare, and that the incidents of his career, especially of his years on the stage, were reflected in his works.

The second in the series of seven celebrations under the auspices of the Park Department's Bureau of Recreation took place last night at the playgrounds gymnasium, 342 East fifty-fourth Street. The program included addresses, dances, and selections from Shakespeare. This afternoon at 3:30 o'clock there will be dances and Shakespeare readings at each of the city's playgrounds.

Miss Pauline Jennings spoke on "Shakespeare in Music" last night at Public School 62, Hester and Essex Streets. Dr. Thomas K. Potterton talked on "England and Shakespeare" at Public School 50, Bryant and Vyse Avenues, the Bronx.

"King Lear" was produced by a company made up of the Chelsea Players and the Art Drama Players at the Hudson Guild, 436 West Twenty-seventh Street, last night, at the opening of the Chelsea Shakespeare Festival. Tonight's performance will be at Christ Church House, 311 West Thirty-sixth Street. Mayor Mitchel and Mrs. Mitchel will attend the performance on Thursday evening in the auditorium of the Young Women's Christian Association at 7 East Fifteenth Street.

Percy MacKaye gave a reading yesterday morning from his Shakespeare Masque, "Caliban: By the Yellow Sands," in Chickering Hall of the Lord & Taylor Building. An entertainment entitled "Shakespeare in Opera," with tableaux and instrumental excerpts from Shakespearean operas, was given at Wanamaker's.

The Right Rev. John McQuirk, Domestic Prelate to his Holiness Pius X., made his contribution to the Shakespeare Tercentenary by circulating widely a republication of a lecture on Shakespeare by the late Cardinal Wiseman, which Dr. McQuirk resurrected from an old magazine.

Last night at the Hotel Biltmore the Professional Women's League gave a Shakespeare celebration, at which were presented tableaux and brief scenes from Shakespeare's plays and passages from operas founded on them. Among the actors and actresses who took part were Lillian Russell, Blanche Bates, Hilda Spong, Lydia Locke, Trixie Friganza, Robert Hilliard, Amelia Summerville, Robert Edeson, Brandon Tynan, Iola Allen, Edith Wynne Matthison, Mrs. Sol Smith, Minna Gale Haynes, Laura Burt, Eleanor Painter, Pilar Morin, Eugene Ormond, Orville Harrold, Henrietta Crosman, Amelia Bingham, Hattie Williams, Mathilde Cottrelly, Millicent Evans, Frederick Truesdell, Wilton Lackaye, Henry Stanford, and Lyn Harding.

NEGROES GIVE "OTHELLO."

Shakespeare's "Othello" had an opening night with a new race of people last night, and the members of the audience turned to appreciation of the "myriad-minded" as readily as those whose ancestors had spoken his tongue and admired his art for centuries.

After giving modern plays with success Eugene Elmore, manager of the Lafayette Theatre in Seventh Avenue, at 131st Street, thought it would be fitting for negroes to celebrate the tercentenary of the bard by giving "Othello" with a negro cast in a negro theatre.

Scenery for the play was gathered from everywhere, from an old Frohman "Othello" of twenty-five years ago and from Sarah Bernhardt's "Rachel." But the sight of the bay in the offing, a canal in Venice, as well as Othello's gondola-like shoes, and the sight of Iago, Montano, and Cassio tippling in the blue moonlight pleased the audience, and there were 1,500 in it.

The costumes were gathered from many productions, too, and gave the appearance of a Post-Post-Impressionist painting, but the audience liked the color. In the Duke's council room scene in the first act all wore red robes, just like Sir Herbert Tree wears as Cardinal Wolsey in "Henry VIII."

Most of the men had weapons fastened to their belts and some of the fights were better than the real thing, at least better than any "first-nighter" could see anywhere else. Othello had a long, slender half-moon weapon, Roderigo, Montano, and Cassio had sharp swords, too, and they plucked them from their scabbards so fast you couldn't see anything but a silver streak. Some of the guards carried bolos.

The cast, about half amateur and half professional, was trained by A. C. Winn, who said that he was pleased with the work of the first night.

Sir Herbert Tree is going to see the play some day this week, for it's going to stay here only a week. Then it's going on tour. J. P. Morgan reserved a box for last night, but he wasn't there.

O'GORMAN AGAINST WAGNER.

Organization Influence Opposes His Nomination, Washington Believes.

WASHINGTON, April 24. The statement was made at the White House today that no word had been received there from Senator Robert F. Wagner asking President Wilson to withdraw Mr. Wagner's nomination for the office of Postmaster at New York, which was sent to the Senate on Saturday.

As far as can be ascertained here President Wilson did not consult any of the New York Democratic organization leaders as to nominating Mr. Wagner. That the nomination is distasteful to Senator O'Gorman, in spite of Mr. Wagner's close connection with the Democratic organization, came to be pretty well understood today. It was said that Senator O'Gorman had no objection to Mr. Wagner personally, but it was the unwritten law of the Senate that a Senator should have the right to choose the Postmaster of his home city, and Mr. O'Gorman would insist on the observance of this rule.

Mr. O'Gorman recommended three men for the postmastership, any one of whom he said, would be acceptable to him. One of the three was Joseph Johnson, former Fire Commissioner of New York, who was selected for appointment, but whose nomination was not sent to the Senate on account of opposition that developed when the fact of his selection became known. Mr. Wagner, it was learned today, was not on Mr. O'Gorman's list, and the New York Senator is represented as adhering to the rule that he shall have a say in the appointment of the Postmaster of New York, where he lives. Mr. O'Gorman, who went to New York Friday, has not returned to Washington.

The idea prevails among New York Democrats here that influence has been brought to bear on Mr. Wagner by the organization not to take the nomination in any case. The story is told that when State Senator Boylan decided that he would like to be Postmaster he went to Charles F. Murphy in company with his predecessor, ex-Senator McManus, and asked the Tammany chief if he had any objection to the Senator entering the contest. Mr. Murphy is reported to have said that he would take no part in the Post Office matter and would offer no advice to any prospective candidate.

Tammany Hall heard a report from Washington yesterday that President Wilson still expected Senator Wagner to accept the Postmastership. Senator Wagner, however, had not changed his determination to refuse the place, it was said.

The Senator started yesterday on an automobile trip, which will take him to Washington in the next day or two. It was said that he intended to call upon the President. Before his departure, Senator Wagner's friends in Tammany Hall urged him not to accept the Postmastership.

FESTIVE WEEK FOR MASONS.

Opening of New Temple in Astoria Is Celebrated.

The Masons of Astoria started last night a week-long celebration to mark the opening of their new $25,000 temple on Grand Avenue, near Van Alst Avenue. Troops of Boy Scouts met the delegations of visiting Masons at the Manhattan ferry and at the car lines and escorted them to the new temple.

Headed by the Board of Directors, consisting of Charles Stockton, Chairman; Howard L. Hallett, Treasurer; Henry Martin, Secretary, and George E. Williams and William K. Brown, the visitors paraded around the building and then marched to the stage to the strains of "The Stars and Stripes Forever," played by a band. Addresses were made by President Connolly and the Astoria Aldermen.

From the ceiling and around the pillars hundreds of tiny electric lights beamed. Prominent women presided over flower booths. Tonight the Order of the Eastern Star will be in charge. Wednesday night there will be a parade of fraternal societies. Thursday will be "Master Masons' night." Friday will be "Queensboro Night." Saturday night will be for the commanderies and will be called "The Night of Nights and Knights."

BUS CO. TO PAY $90.000.

Bidder Reminds Estimate Board That City Is Losing Revenue.

The City of New York is losing a revenue of at least $90,000 a year through delay in awarding the franchises for new motor bus routes, according to President R. W. Meade of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, who sent a communication yesterday to the Board of Estimate. President Meade said that by the terms of the coach company's bid, which has been before the board since last Fall, the city would be entitled to receive half of the annual net operating profits of the coach company in excess of the average of such profits for the two years ended June 30, 1915. The city's share of these profits, President Meade said, would amount to about $8,000 a mile.

President Meade said the bid of the New York Motor Bus Company would yield the city a guaranteed income of only $32,000 currently, and as the company asks for about thirty-four miles of city streets, the return to the city under the offer would be at the rate of less than $1,000 a mile.

The bids of the two companies were placed before the Board of Estimate last Fall in a series of hearings, but no action was taken.

ACTORS HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Inmates of Home on Staten Island Receive Painful Injuries.

Bound for the city farm colony at New Dorp, where they were to give an entertainment last night, three inmates of the Actors' Home were injured early last evening by the upsetting of a carryall in which they were riding.

The injured are: Miss Gabriel Campbell, 66, an actress, who suffered internal injuries; James Hubbard, 50, an actor, lacerations of the face; Richard Russell, 70, an actor, scalp wounds; Arthur Halfpenny, Superintendent of the home, contusions, and Mrs. James Halfpenny, matron, fractured hip and scalp wounds. The injured were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital and Smith Infirmary.

The horses drawing the carryall shied at an automobile at Brook Street, near Henry Street, and the carryall was turned over on its side. Owen Rooney, the driver of the conveyance, was the only one who escaped injury.

PASTOR CUTS 1,361 FROM CHURCH ROLLS

Dr. Kemp of Calvary Baptist Persuades Board of Deacons to Act.

MEMBERSHIP NOW 800

Sentimental Objections Held by Members Prevented Earlier Action—Many on List Dead.

Acting on urgent representations by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Joseph M. Kemp, the Calvary Baptist Church last night dropped from its rolls 1,361 of the 2,300 members.

Of these about two-thirds had been carried for years on what is called the "suspected list" of persons who have not only shown no interest in church work but whose whereabouts cannot be traced. The others were still on the active list, but in their case also the church had lost all track of them and in most cases mail sent to them had been returned unclaimed. It is believed that many are dead, and that many are still in New York, but have lost interest in religious work, but none of those dropped was removed from the roll explicitly for any failure to show interest in religion.

The matter has been under consideration for several years, but sentimental objections preferred by some of the church leaders had prevented action until the Rev. Dr. Kemp took up the pastorate some months ago. He urged very strongly on the Board of Deacons last week that such action should be taken and succeeded in overcoming considerable opposition in that body. The congregation accepted the proposal with little protest.

"It is a very drastic action," said Dr. Kemp last night, "and one that churches as a rule do not resort to, but it is my conviction that it is a misrepresentation of the actual strength of a church to carry members on the rolls when it has been impossible to locate them for years. The majority of churches throughout the country have a larger membership on paper than in actuality, and I told the congregation that it was a species of ecclesiastical hypocrisy to keep up such a system, and that it would be exceedingly difficult to build up a really strong church until it was abandoned."

CHURCH ELECTION LIVELY.

Regular Ticket Wins at Holy Apostles When Rector Takes Hand.

Dissension in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles, Ninth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, found visible and vocal expression last night at a meeting called to elect two Wardens and three Vestrymen. Those opposed to the administration of the Rev. Henry K. Denlinger, the rector, put a last-minute opposition ticket in the field and, headed by James Patterson, a coal merchant, turned out in force to put their ticket through. They lost, but the meeting made church history.

Trouble in the church revolves around eviction of two sons of a former sexton from the rent-free use of a church-owned building adjoining the church. One of the sons succeeded his father as sexton and conducted an undertaking establishment. Another son lived up stairs with his mother. Nearly two years ago the rector decided that the church needed a man who could give his entire time to church affairs and the undertaker-sexton was deposed. Lately the rooms used by the other son were appropriated by the Neighborhood Society of the church. Mr. Patterson is a relative by marriage to the former sexton's son.

The regular ticket was: Wardens, Louis Schwab and George B. Covington; Vestrymen, Courtney Hyde, Charles Hillock, and Oliver Tims. The opposition ticket was: For Vestrymen, James Patterson and Matthew Kennedy; for Vestrymen, Charles Hayes, William Hookey, and William Nicolett.

The rector, under church rules, being judge of the contest, charged that outsiders were present and declared about a dozen of the opposition ineligible to vote. This raised a storm of protest but he prevailed.

EVANGELIST ASSAILS WILSON

Church Members Angry Over Utterances of E. F. Stroeter.

Members of St. Paul's German M. E. Church, at Marcy Avenue and Penn Street, Brooklyn, are aroused over a speech made in the church on Sunday night by E. F. Stroeter, a German evangelist. According to members of the congregation he assailed President Wilson as a "hypocrite," called Americans "fools," and finally refused to leave the platform until the congregation had contributed to a fund for the churches in Germany and Austria, although Dr. Eugene S. Fuessle, pastor of the church, said that he would not permit a collection to be taken up. The church members probably will take no action in the case, since neither the pastor, it is said, nor any one else connected with the church had anything to do with Stroeter's speaking there.

"Uncle Sam is a fool," Stroeter is quoted as saying. "The fool Americans and Englishmen are trying to relieve Germany of its Government. America has been playing with fire, and it will not be long before she will get her fingers burnt. The hypocrisy in the White House is worse than the German Emperor ever dared to offer to his people."

CITY HAILS BIEDERWOLF.

Crowd Which Fills Carnegie Hall Hears Evolution Assailed.

Before one of the largest religious gatherings ever held in this city the Rev. William Edward Biederwolf spoke last night at Carnegie Hall, using as his text, "How Much Better Is Man Than a Sheep?" The meeting was held under the auspices of the Evangelistic Committee of this city and is their annual Spring meeting, opening the twelfth campaign for the promotion of religious services in tents, shops, and on the street, with the view of reaching the 3,350,000 people of this city who are said to be without church affiliations. Carnegie Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. The Evangelistic Chorus, consisting of more than 200 men and women singers, filled the stage, and after a prayer had been read by the Right Rev. Frederick Courtney they joined the audience in singing, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War." A passage was read from the Scriptures by the Rev. Millard L. Robinson, in which the audience again responded, and then the Chairman, Stephen Baker, introduced Mr. Biederwolf under the title of a "Princeton graduate of whom all Princeton men should feel most proud."

The evangelist spoke for forty-five minutes with his audience sometimes amused, at times serious, but keenly interested until he had finished.

"There are some people who think it's an evidence of big intellect to talk about evolution. But I haven't gotten out of Missouri, and you'll have to show me. If any one wants to claim he came from a monkey, it's all right, but don't come around and claim relationship with me. One man is worth as much as another. Mind you I didn't say was as good as another, but in God's sight one soul is worth as much as another."

Among the other speakers were the Rev. A. F. Schauffler and the Rev. Arthur J. Smith. The meeting was brought to a close by a prayer and benediction by the Rev. Joseph Kemp.

1,200 GO BACK TO WORK.

Officials Believe Hastings Strike Will Soon Be Over.

Special to The New York Times.

HASTINGS, N. Y., April 24. The return to work of 1,200 of the 2,800 strikers, a score of street fights, twenty warrants, ten arrests, and seven commitments to jail tells today's story of the ten-day-old strike at the plant of the National Cable and Conduit Company.

Tonight the strike leaders assert that none of those who went out have gone back to work. The 1,200, they say, represent 900 who were thrown out of work when the strikers quit and 300 new workers. On the other hand, the officials of the company say more workers will re-enter the shops tomorrow and that the strike will soon be over.

Because of the presence of members of the National Guard there was practically no interference with the 1,200 who went to work. Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram of New York City was here today to do what she could, she said, to help the women affected by the strike. She said she expected to address the strikers if she could secure a suitable hall and interpreters.

The following men were sentenced by Justice Cullen on a charge of inciting to riot:

Alexander Donologits, one year on Blackwell's Island; Adam Eabasnich, three months on Blackwell's Island; Fred Kokus, suspended sentence; Michael Kuna, six months on Blackwell's Island; Joseph Kovsky, six months on Blackwell's Island; John Samal, six months on Blackwell's Island; John Stefani, thirty days in White Plains Jail; Adolph Toplowsky, six months on Blackwell's Island.

The strikers demand a wage increase of 5 cents an hour. Again today they refused the company's offer of a 2½-cent increase.

POLICE TAP WIRES IN SEYMOUR OFFICE

Deputy Commissioner Lord Tells Swann He Personally Supervised Work.

SURPRISE FOR PROSECUTOR

Member of Law Firm Asserts He Cannot Understand Motive for Espionage.

While investigating the use of a detectaphone by the Burns Detective Agency on the law office of Seymour & Seymour, at 120 Broadway, District Attorney Swann learned yesterday that the Police Department had also been tapping the wires of this firm. Mr. Swann said that information to this effect was brought to him by Allan Pinkerton, who visited the District Attorney with William J. Burns yesterday.

To the District Attorney this news came as a surprise, as he had been assured by John S. Seymour that the detectaphone, if installed at all, was used for no other purpose than to obtain information concerning a big munition contract which the law firm was handling for a client they would not name. Until yesterday there was no intimation that the police were also interested in any of the business that was passing through the Seymour office.

To verify the information he said Mr. Pinkerton gave him, District Attorney Swann immediately called up Deputy Police Commissioner Lord, who admitted that the police had been eavesdropping on the telephone wires leading into the office of Seymour & Seymour, in the Equitable Building. Commissioner Lord said he himself personally supervised the wiretapping on the Seymour office from Police Headquarters. He would not reveal the nature of the information which the police were seeking to obtain further than that the motive for the wiretapping was still a "Police Department secret."

Commissioner Lord insisted, however, that the police were interested in a matter entirely apart from that which caused the Burns Agency to spy on the law firm through the means of a detectaphone. Within a few days, the Commissioner said, he might be able to give the District Attorney more definite information.

Whatever the "police secret" was, Allan Pinkerton helped to keep it even more of a secret by denying that he had given the District Attorney any information with reference to the wiretapping. He insisted he conferred with the District Attorney upon an entirely different matter. What this "different matter" was he would not say. Incidentally, he attacked the use of a detectaphone and said such a device should never be employed in the detection of crime.

Frederick Seymour of the firm of Seymour & Seymour was astounded to learn yesterday that the police had been tapping the wires of his office. He asserted he could not understand the motive of such espionage inasmuch as there was nothing passing through his office that could possibly arouse either the suspicion or the attention of the police. He said he would make an immediate inquiry.

Erie Road Aids Preparedness.

President Frederick D. Underwood of the Erie Railroad, who in his younger days served five years in the National Guard, issued orders yesterday that any employe who was called on for military duty of any kind in the militia should enjoy leave of absence at full pay, such free time off to be in addition to the regular vacation period, and not to affect continuous service credits. The sweeping order affects all employes who are paid by the day, week, or month, but not those compensated by the piece, by the hour, or by mileage, such as the trainmen.

There is Nothing in the World Like Glacier Park!

Glacier Park is an ideal recreation spot; the like of which can't be found anywhere else in the world. It's just "chuck-full" of the things that will fill your vacation with joys. If you are interested in mountain trout, the 250 glacial lakes, with their connecting streams, furnish plenty of lively sport in that direction.

Probably your wife likes wild flowers. Glacier Park supplies an abundance of flowering dogwood, yellow adder's tongue, wild gentian, mountain lilies, for-get-me-nots, lark's spur, and a dozen other varieties, each lending itself to making every scene an unsurpassed riot of colors.

The climate and the air transcend all description; it's air that makes you eat and sleep right, and fires you with a new ambition such as you haven't known for years!

If you will call at my office, I will be glad to go over the proposition with you and outline a trip that can be made in exactly the time that you have to devote to it and within the cost that you decide you can spend. If it will be more convenient for you to send in a postal with your address, I will mail you some good reading matter on the Park, and some pictures and maps. Remember, there is no expense or obligation connected with an inquiry; that's what I'm here for.

Resinol

Don't worry any more about that itching skin-trouble. Just spread a little Resinol Ointment over the sick skin and see if the itching does not disappear as if you had simply swiped it away!

And—even more important—this soothing, healing ointment rarely fails to clear away promptly every trace of the unsightly, tormenting eruption, unless due to some serious internal disorder.

Doctors have prescribed Resinol Ointment for over twenty years, and thousands owe their clear, healthy skins to its use. It contains nothing that could injure or irritate the tenderest skin, and is so nearly flesh-colored that it can be kept on the face, hands or other exposed surface without attracting unpleasant attention.

Resinol Ointment usually gives even prompter results if the sore places are first bathed thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water.

WE SELL SO SOCONY NEW YORK KEROSENE OIL STANDARD OIL CO. OF N.Y.

A Good Cook Knows Her Fuel

DO you realize that your oil cook-stove acts very differently with different grades of kerosene?

If you want the clearest, hottest flame with complete freedom from smoke and odor, you should be careful about what goes into the reservoir of your oil stove.

All Kerosene is not alike by any means. And the good kind is enough better to be decidedly worth asking for.

Say "Socony" (So-CO-ny) to the grocer's boy when he comes to take your oil can. In that way you can be sure of getting reliable fuel—Socony Kerosene Oil, which is the Standard Oil Company of New York's best kerosene.

Socony Kerosene is absolutely clean and clear-burning whenever and wherever you buy it. It does not make wick crust—you do not need to clean the burners so often and you get a bigger money's worth of heat.

Look for the Socony sign in the windows of groceries, hardware and general stores everywhere which carry Socony Kerosene Oil. It is the sign of quality and a reliable dealer.

We recommend the following oil burning devices as the best of their kind: New Perfection Oil Cook-stoves and Water Heaters, Perfection Smokeless Oil Heaters, Rayo Lamps and Lanterns.
